1. LEANDER: "Lulu, I can stand this no longer. I cannot live without you. I must see your father at once. Where is he?"

LULU: "He is down at D'Auber's studio looking at a picture he intends purchasing. Oh, Leander, my heart is breaking."

LEANDER: "Come, go down there with me. I will see him. I know he will give me another chance. You can wait outside D'Auber's door."

2. ARTIST D'AUBER: "Mr. Peachtree, I know you will never regret paying the five thousand dollars for that picture; it is my masterpiece."

POPPER: "I'll take it. Here is the five thousand. Well, of all things! Mr. Leander, you here!"

LEANDER: "Oh, Mr. Peachtree, pray forgive me for my past misfortunes. I CANNOT live without Lulu. Oh, please give me another chance."

3. POPPER: "Well, Leander, I shouldn't do it, I know, but while we stand in the presence of such a glorious and valuable work of art my nature can't help being softened. Promise me you will have no more lapses and I will give you another chance."

LEANDER: "Oh, Mr. Peachtree, I promise, I promise! Lulu is outside. Let me call her in and proclaim the joyful tidings."

4. LEANDER (turning swiftly on his heel and ripping a slit in the canvas with his cane): "Lulu! Lulu, come! come! I am granted another chance! Oh, Joy! Oh, Joy!"

POPPER: "HI! HO! LOOK OUT THERE! YE GODS! Just see what he has done! Five thousand dollars ripped to ruin!"

D'AUBER: "Fiends and Furies! My masterpiece! My masterpiece!"

5. LULU (rushing in): "Oh, Leander, why did you do it? You deserve no consideration at Popper's hands whatever."

D'AUBER: "BRUTE! Philistine! Take THAT!"

POPPER: "Give you another chance, fool that I was. BIFF! BIFF! BIFF! You come near me or Lulu again and you'll go to jail. See?"

6. LEANDER: "Ye gods! Again and AGAIN! My life is one vast string of Waterloos. By the Keepers of my Infernal Luck, I know what I will do; I'll buy a ticket for Mont Pelee and jump in its seething crater."

$500,00 for the FINEST BABIES

VERNON DILWEG

SEND IN THE PHOTOGRAPH OF YOUR BABY AND WIN A PRIZE.

WHAT of its kind is there more interesting, entertaining and, withal, instructive than the baby contest? And when to that competition there are added, as in this case, really very handsome money prizes the affair becomes at once pleasantly seductive to baby's mamma and the zest gets spirited. The yeast has already begun to work in this baby contest, and the pretty, pouting, dimpling, or laughing phizzes of the tiny faces of the aspirants are peeping and tumbling out of the mail pouches like sweetmeats from a cornucopia.

Imagine the labor of sorting out and counting and selecting and classifying all these multitudinous babies, and consider with some pity the pleasing task the distinguished judges must endure who are to pass upon the important perplexity of what makes a really superior baby and what particular babies in this small army deserve the awards. Solomon himself would be puzzled by so much prettiness.

One little chap who fell out of a bag last week was an Eskimo-American in miniature, swaddled in full fur toggery. He had come all the way from Alaska to see what a little polar baby could do; and from under the hot sun of Hawaii came another wee naked urchin, as brown as a ripe acorn.

And so they are running up and down the whole gamut of shape and size and color and locality, wherever flies the Stars and Stripes. Yet they are all American.

They must be, for this competition is open only to babies of American parentage. Any baby under seven years of age in any town, city or State in America is eligible.

And here are the alluring specifications as to the prizes themselves:

Five hundred dollars will be given as awards by this newspaper to the finest specimens of American babies whose photographs are sent to this office in the next nine weeks.

One hundred and fifty dollars will be given to the finest baby, $100 to the next best, and $50 to each of the next five.

And it must be clearly understood that in the contemplation of the judges when adjusting the awards three requisites must be plainly borne in mind.

They are health, beauty and intelligence.

Shall beauty count 25 per cent, or 50? How much importance shall be assigned to health? In what proportionate amount shall figure intelligence?

All these subtle and difficult questions the judges must decide, and their decisions are to be the result of grave, scientific and utterly modern analysis. A delicate, but extremely intellectual baby may throw just a mere beauty baby in the shade. The robust beauty of just health might discount fluffs of flaxen hair and divinely blue eyes. Possible future Ben Franklins will have just as fair a show as tiny possessors of rosebud mouths. It's the all 'round superior baby as a whole that counts in up-to-date baby science.

Send in the photograph of your baby, and be careful to write ON THE BACK OF THE PHOTOGRAPH the full name, age and sex of the child, and also the name and address of its parents.

It must be understood that we cannot promise to return the photographs.

Address the photographs to

WHY I DEMAND TO BE HANGED

Murderer Rawlings, of Georgia, Explains Why He Begs the Governor Not to Pay Any Attention to Silly Appeals for His Reprieve, but Let Him Be Executed at Once.

"I am entitled by sentence of the Court 'to be hanged by the neck until dead,' and in simple justice I demand my legal right—I insist upon no interference with my execution."

FROM his cell in a Georgia jail a condemned murderer is sending forth appeals to stop all efforts to save his life, and demanding to be hanged.

This unique example among murderers has written a letter to Governor Terrell, of Georgia, insisting upon his rights as a murderer legally condemned to go to the gallows on the day named by the trial court—May 4. Through the newspapers, when they interview him, he makes the same demand.

This anomaly among condemned and sentenced murderers is a former clergyman, the Rev. J. G. Rawlings. In jail with him at Valdosta, Ga., are his three sons, Leonard, Milton and Jesse, convicted for complicity in the murder last June of little Willie and Carrie Carter, children of W. L. Carter, with whom Rawlings had been at feud for years.

As the actual shooting of the children was done by Alf Moore, a negro, who confessed, declaring that Rawlings paid him to do it, many persons interested themselves in efforts to have the sentences commuted to life imprisonment, and the case was even carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Rawlings's emphatic and open resentment of these efforts to save his life created a sensation in Georgia, which has not yet subsided. In his letter to Governor Terrell he said:

"I respectfully urge your Excellency not to interfere with the speedy execution of the death sentence. I am tired of the whole business, and I want to be hanged as soon as possible.

Urged the Governor to Let Him Hang.

"My boys are innocent, but I do not believe there is any hope for them, and they feel as I do, that the sooner we are hanged the better. We are suffering more than death now. The delay and uncertainty are far worse than the gallows, and I hope you will do nothing to prevent a speedy execution of the death sentence."

Being interviewed for this newspaper, Rawlings made this remarkable demand still stronger. He said:

"I am desperate. I don't care anything about the decision of the Supreme Court, and I had rather be dead than to stay shut up in this dark and stifling cell another day. It will suit me exactly to be hanged to-morrow, and the sooner it is done the better I shall like it.

"I have written to my attorney, Mr. Cooper, asking him not to take any further steps in the matter, and to let it go as it stands. I have written to the Governor demanding my rights. I don't care anything about my own fate, so far as it affects me personally, and I have only wanted to live thus long in hope of being able to do something to save my innocent boys.

"I expect to die like a man, and one of the greatest regrets I have is on account of my mother. I have just written her, though, that I shall go to my death bravely. She is old now, and can't bear up under such affliction even as well as my wife can.

"But that can't be helped. I am entitled by sentence of the Court, 'to be hanged by the neck until dead,' and in simple justice I demand my legal right—I insist upon no interference with my execution."

The United States Supreme Court has decided not to interfere with sentence of the trial court. But Rawlings's attorneys have still the plea of insanity to argue—and the condemned man's strange demand, in itself, is considered a good ground for such a plea. But this fact does not give rise to any suspicion that the murderer is playing an "insane dodge," as he is too earnest and emphatic and logical in his demands for his right to be hanged.

Milton and Jesse, who are to hang with their father, are not so anxious to go to the gallows, and they say that the old man is crazy and has been for years. Both of the boys have made a pathetic appeal to the Governor for clemency, stoutly claiming that they are innocent of the crime for which they were convicted.

Glad When He Is Hanged.

When Rawlings was told that the United States Supreme Court had refused to interfere in his case he was whistling "How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord." He continued to whistle as the news was broken to him and finally said:

"It is no more than I expected and I am not sorry. I looked for no favors from the United States. I will be glad when we are hanged. I reckon we will be at peace then."

The men have been confined in jail for a little more than ten months, and the monotony of a dingy 10 by 12 foot cell has told sadly on their spirits and demeanor. They occupy a corner cell in the jail, with windows overlooking busy thoroughfares on two sides, and as they sit day by day looking out through the bars at the people passing by, or as they pace restlessly up and down the narrow confines, reflecting on the time when they, too, were free to go and come as they pleased, it is not hard to understand that they have found jail life so irksome.

The elder Rawlings maintains that he has absolutely no hope of his soul's salvation, and says he is certainly doomed to go to hell. He believes he has committed the "unpardonable sin," and has appeared to become incensed with the spiritual advisers who, during his long incarceration, have gone to the jail to minister to him, and have attempted to disabuse his mind of the idea that he is doomed to eternal punishment if he repents of his sins. He was once a minister of the gospel, and says he has studied the Bible closely for years, with the result that he is convinced that mortals sometimes reach a stage where they are beyond the pale of God's forgiveness.

The crime for which Rawlings and his three sons—Milton, Jesse and Leonard—were convicted was committed on the night of June 13, 1905. On that night Carrie Carter and Willie Carter, daughter and son of W. L. Carter, a farmer, living ten miles north of Valdosta, were shot down in the yard of their father's home, and an attempt made by the assassins to kill the rest of the Carter family.

The girl, aged fourteen, and her brother, sixteen years old, went out of their father's house soon after the evening meal to investigate the incessant barking of their dog, and as they reached a point near the garden fence, a few yards from the house, both of them were shot down, the little girl being killed almost instantly and the boy trying to drag himself back to the door of his home. For some time his parents were afraid to open the door to take him in for fear that another volley from the assassins, who were secreted in the shade of some trees nearby, would end the lives of other members of the family.

The boy lingered until about sunrise on the following morning, and the girl's body lay in the cotton field, where she fell, until after daylight.

In the trial of Rawlings and his sons, witnesses swore that the girl's head had been battered into the ground by the heels of the murderers, or by the stocks of their guns, as she lay dead.

Suspicion at once fell on J. G. Rawlings, as he and Carter had been enemies for a long time. It developed that Rawlings spent the night in Valdosta, and at the Coroner's inquest the next day Carter and his wife and daughter swore that they had recognized the Rawlings boys as the assassins, as they walked around the Carter homestead in the moonlight on the night before.

The boys were arrested that day, and on the following day, as the elder Rawlings and his wife drove into town and to the jail with some clothing for their sons, the father was taken into custody and locked up with his boys.

Alf Moore, a negro was arrested at Staunton, thirty miles north of there, two days later, charged with complicity in the crime, and made a confession of the whole affair. He swore that the elder Rawlings hired him to go and kill the Carter family, promising him $100 for the work, and sending his three sons to see that the murders were carried out as arranged.

At the trial Moore claimed that when they reached the Carter homestead, about a mile from the house of Rawlings, that his nerve failed him and he refused to take any part in the murders. He maintained that Milton and Jesse Rawlings fired the shots that killed the two Carter children, and that he (Moore) then became frightened and ran away. His testimony was corroborated in many points by the testimony of the Carter family.

After the conviction of the men, Rawlings acknowledged that he hired the negro Moore to kill the Carters, but that his boys were not present, knew nothing of the arrangement between him and the negro, and had absolutely nothing to do with the murders. He has stoutly maintained this all the time.

Furthermore, Rawlings says he did not intend to have any of the Carters harmed except the old man, and that it was not any part of his arrangement to kill other members of the family. On the other hand, Moore swears that he had positive instructions, as also had the boys, to kill the entire Carter family and then burn the house.

If Moore was actuated in turning State's evidence by a hope of escaping the full penalty of the law for his part in the tragedy, he was doomed to disappointment, as the jury brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree, and he, too, was sentenced to death, along with J. G. Rawlings, Milton and Jesse. Leonard Rawlings was sentenced to the penitentiary for life, and served a few weeks, later being brought back to jail here on an order from Governor Terrell, to await the result of the appeal made by their attorneys to the Supreme Court.

Alf Moore has also escaped the death penalty, so far, as his testimony was considered very essential in case the Rawlings obtained another trial.

J. G. Rawlings is forty-nine years old, and in addition to his three sons is the father of two interesting girls, who are now budding into womanhood. Milton Rawlings is about twenty years old, Jesse eighteen and Leonard sixteen. The boys are away above the average in appearance and intelligence.

Boys Say Father Is Crazy.

Rawlings was a well-to-do farmer, and before his numerous troubles with Carter, and even up to the time of the murders, was a very popular man among a great number of people. In fact he had more friends, it is said, than Carter had. He was very hospitable and a good neighbor and his home was always open to his friends, where they were entertained in the best manner possible.

Milton Rawlings, the oldest son, has written their attorney, John R. Cooper, of Macon, requesting him to institute lunacy proceedings against his father and, if possible, have him committed to the insane asylum, as he and his brothers are confident that the elder Rawlings is a crazy man. It is understood that this will be the next step of the attorney, and if he is unsuccessful in that, the last page of the famous case will have been written and Rawlings will expiate his crime on the gallows—as he insists is his right.

Since his conviction the elder Rawlings has spent much of his time reading the Bible. He has a habit of reading aloud, and this habit nearly caused a duel to the death between Rawlings and Henry Hickey, said to be from New York, who is under sentence for picking pockets while a circus was exhibiting here last Fall.

Rawlings was reading the Bible aloud when Hickey cursed him. Rawlings made at Hickey with a knife, which he had been allowed to have, and Hickey drew a razor, which no one knew he had. The men were soon slashing one another and inflicted several wounds before they were separated.

Such episodes as this, manifestations of an ungovernable temper, have been frequent in Rawling's career—though, up to the time of the murder of the Carter children, he was able to keep out of serious difficulty. There is no doubt that he was sincerely religious, and when his passions were not inflamed by some infringement of what he considered his personal rights, he was a kindly and charitable man.

It is characteristic of him to still insist upon his personal rights even when they condemn him to the gallows.

ROMANCE OF THE PRETTIEST GIRL AT MISS ELY'S FASHIONABLE SCHOOL

"You Must Be My Maid of Honor," Said Her Chum---and When That Time Came Cupid Promptly Captured Her for the Best Man.

MISS GRETA SPINNING, in the midst of her shopping and her trying on of myriad hats and a multitude of gowns, quotes: "One wedding makes another," in proof of which she points to her own pretty modern romance—the romance of the prettiest girl in Miss Ely's fashionable school.

Miss Spinning is buying her trousseau for the wedding, which is to take place at her father's home, in Danville, N. Y. She will be the bride, and Floyd Evans, the son of one of the wealthiest men in the Northwest, is to be the bridegroom.

This wedding will be the sequel of one which occurred last month, in which these two principals were merely the subsidiary characters, maid of honor and best man. The maid of honor, she argues, is in the immediate line of succession to matrimonial honors. It follows, as the night the day, that the maid of honor is the logical candidate for the next connubial honors.

There are several excellent reasons for this assumption, Miss Spinning thinks. One of these is that the maid of honor, being the bride's very dearest friend, stands in the full glow of the glory reflected from the bridal altar. She is directly and resplendently in the picture. Besides she stands so near the bride at the reception and so closely follows her to the carriage that she, of course, catches the bouquet tossed by the bride.

And being the bride's most intimate friend, who is to prevent a gentle lifting of the eyebrow, a feminine telepathic wig-wagging by which the bride indicates, when she cuts the cake, that her severing knife has touched the ring? What, then, is to prevent the maid of honor noting that particular slice, marked by a little gash ostensibly made by accident, the securing of which assures her that the maid of honor herself will be a bride within the year? So [illegible] omens and all opportunities favor the maid of honor.

The love story of Floyd Evans, of St. Paul and Miss Greta Spinning, of Danville, whose climax will be an early wedding, had its beginning in what seems the long ago to a girl of twenty-one. It was four years ago at Miss Ely's school on Riverside Drive, New York.

Chums in a Fashionable School.

True, Mr. Floyd Evans never visited that fashionable and exclusive school for girls, from which all masculine society is rigorously banished. But even a girlish romance must have its preliminary introduction, and the inception of Miss Greta Spinning's occurred in a dormitory on the third floor front. It was occupied by Miss Blanche Lupkin, of St. Paul. Miss Lupkin and Miss Spinning were roommates, and—which does not necessarily follow—they were friends.

It was a dainty room, through whose pink silk, lace-veiled curtains a breeze fluttered straight from the Hudson. Red automobiles dashed past on the boulevard. The Palisades shone whitely from the New Jersey shore in the afternoon sunshine. They had just come from the tea table. Six o'clock dinners, menacing to sleep and to girlish complexions, are unknown at Miss Ely's. The girls were supplementing tea with a surreptitious box of caramels, and while they munched chocolates they peeped into the future.

"Tell me what sort of man you admire," said Miss Lupkin, with a judicial air.

"Those in Sir Walter Scott's novels," returned Miss Spinning, with a promptness that came from much pondering of the theme. 'Don't you think the Earl of Leicester was adorable?"

"Not so very. What did you admire in his character?"

"He was so handsome and so melancholy."

Miss Lupkin helped herself to another caramel.

"Men are melancholy because they are bilious," she observed.

"When you are married?" Miss Spinning stared.

"Of course, I don't know when that will be, nor whom I will marry, but, of course, I shall marry." Miss Lupkin had all the assurance of extreme youth. "You will be my maid of honor, won't you?"

Yes, She Would Be Maid of Honor.

"Of course I will." And they gave their undivided attention to the chocolates. A little later the retiring bell rang. Still later the lights went out, and the maidens in their white painted iron beds dreamed of the examination in mathematics next day.

Miss Lupkin went to Minneapolis to spend her Summer vacation. Miss Spinning went abroad. They corresponded intermittently, and when Autumn came and Miss Spinning went to the Gardener finishing school they called upon each other and went to Saturday matinees in company as often as the rigors of school discipline would permit.

When each graduated she sent the other a graduation gift the purchase of which exhausted her allowance for the quarter, but gave the giver in each case joy as great as the recipient's. Six months after commencement day they were still exchanging letters with reasonable regularity, so proving that some schoolgirl friendships survive a change of seasons.

> Dearest Greta: The time has come to keep your promise. You must be my maid of honor. The wedding will not take place until March, but I want you to come next week and help me select my trousseau and choose the bridesmaids and take care of Ninon—Ninon is my dear little Pomeranian—when I am busy with Joe. Joe is my fiance. There are a thousand things I need you for, Chummie. Now, you simply mustn't refuse. I shall expect you January 3.
> Affectionately, BLANCHE.

Miss Spinning arrived in St. Paul on the evening of January 3. She returned to Danville April 1. And between those dates, she wrote her mother, the most wonderful things happened.

One of these was dear Blanche's wedding on March 15, when she became Mrs. Joseph Cook, of Brooklyn. It was a beautiful wedding but, she interpolated somewhat disconnectedly, the most wonderful things had happened before that.

Let us go back, as Miss Spinning did, to her arrival in St. Paul. Of course Miss Lupkin was at the station to meet her, and equally, of course, Miss Lupkin's fiance was at her side. There was another young man, who did not look in the least like the Earl of Leicester, and who wasn't a bit melancholy. His face was florid and his eyes jovial as he looked at her from the depths of his bearskin overcoat, and beneath the visor of his bearskin cap.

The Best Man Was Smitten.

"This is Floyd," announced Miss Lupkin. "Didn't I ever speak of Floyd? How funny. I suppose that is because when we were at school no boy mattered much. He's my cousin and my foster brother besides, and a very good boy of twenty-eight. I suppose we won't see much of him because he's always at the office with Uncle Evans. But take a good look at him because you might meet him at breakfast two or three times while you're here."

The amateur chauffeur assisted the girl from Danville into the automobile. What he said was, "Don't believe Blanche, Miss Spinning. She's engaged and irresponsible." What he thought was, "I didn't think they had them as pretty as that in the East. Jove! what an illumination when she smiles."

Thereafter through some transformation in Mr. Evans Jr.'s habits the family met him regularly at their somewhat late breakfast.

"I've made an arrangement with father," he explained, and talked unintelligibly of a new first assistant in the office, while he looked at Miss Spinning and thought how marvellously well a girl may look in a blue morning gown. He who had formerly dined down town rather than "meet a lot of people" at dinner, faced the game with a cheerful face.

Amazement was writ upon his mother's features when he began to appear at luncheon. Privately she asked her husband whether the firm of Evans was going to fail.

"Why, my dear?" queried the elder Evans.

"Because Floyd has never had so much time before. Not since he returned from Europe has he been so much at home."

The Disease Was Infectious.

"Where are your eyes, mother?"

"In their usual place in my head, I believe, father."

"Then they've lost their function of seeing. The business is all right—never better. There's nothing the matter with Floyd, except the girl from the East, Blanche's maid of honor."

Preparations for the wedding kept the Evans mansion on Summit avenue in a tumult.

"How many bolts of white ribbon shall we need for the church pews?" asked the bride-elect.

"I should order ten bolts if it were my wedding," replied the maid of honor.

"What has that to do with it? Do run away, Floyd. You are a nuisance," cried the bride. Her uncle would also have criticised her vision.

The household was in disorder. Romance mingled with milliners' orders, young love with florists' estimates, the younger Evans' personal hopes with the elder Evans' observations about insane bridal expenditures. Floyd Evans, confessedly of little use in preparations for the ceremony, was at least not superfluous, while Miss Lupkin was privately entertaining her fiance.

While Miss Lupkin and Mr. Cook occupied a dim corner of the drawing room, Mr. Evans believed it incumbent upon him to occupy another secluded space with Miss Spinning. And from general remarks about weddings and happy pairs, Mr. Evans found himself drifting into specific declarations.

On the night before the bride's dinner the maid of honor became suddenly and excessively self-conscious. She reproached herself with having kept a secret even for a few days from her dear Blanche. She whispered it to her finally, as they sat on a window seat in Miss Lupkins's room, much like the one in the old dormitory at Miss Ely's. But this time they forebore chocolates, indulging instead in alternate tears and laughter.

The next evening, had not all eyes been upon the bride the guests would have noticed that the maid of honor was nervous. She ate but little and looked apprehensively at Miss Lupkin whenever she seemed about to speak collectively to the bridesmaids. At last the cause of her nervousness was apparent. The bride-elect smiled and nodded and began:

"Girls, I'm going to tell you something that you mustn't tell a soul until you leave this table. While I have been conceitedly imagining I was the only bride in the world, and Joe the only bridegroom, another pair have been budding under my very eyes and I never suspected it until last night. Girls, Chummie's not only to be my maid of honor but in a little while she will be my cousin-in-law, Mrs. Floyd Evans. Congratulate her and me."

Thus one wedding made another. And so it came about that Miss Greta Spinning is visiting her friend, Mrs. Joseph Cook, of Brooklyn, and that Mrs. Cook is again in the thick of the delightful and interminable preparations for a wedding. But she who is to be Mrs. Floyd Evans reminds her that there cannot be a wedding without much shopping, and that at any rate Mrs. Cook precipitated this whirl of shopping and of trying on, for one wedding makes another.

Ghost in Negative Spoils Romance

How Pretty Miss Gladys Manning, of Southampton, England, Jilted Lieut. Gordon Waters Because He Appeared Mysteriously in All Her Photographs, Dagger in Hand, Threatening Her Life.

London, April 21.

ONE of the weirdest phenomena in the history of photography has caused Miss Gladys Manning, a beautiful Southampton girl, to break her engagement with Lieut. Gordon Waters, now on service in India.

In every one of a dozen photographs the camera revealed a ghostly figure with dagger in hand hovering over her. She recognized the figure as her fiance and immediately broke the engagement, believing that it was a warning of what would happen should she become his bride.

The course of true love ran smooth for this couple until Lieutenant Waters was called away to India. He expected to return to England on a furlough in a year and take his bride back to India with him for the remainder of his service.

Letters were exchanged with regularity during six months and the preparations for the wedding had been commenced. Then one day an old friend, an unsuccessful rival of the Indian officer, paid a parting call. He was on his way to America in a few days, and begged for a photograph.

Miss Manning had no recent pictures and was easily persuaded to sit for new ones. The next day she found time during her shopping trip in London to call at a well-known photographer's studio.

Two days later, instead of the expected proofs, came a short letter of apology. Would she please make another appointment—an accident had ruined the plates.

Her London trips were very frequent just then. She sat again without a murmur. Again a letter of apology instead of proofs. This time the letter was longer and spoke vaguely of strange action of the light.

The photographer's request for a third sitting was granted with the mildly expressed hope that nothing would happen this time. Several strangers were about the studio during the third attempt. Miss Manning observed with the well-trained periphery of a woman's eye that they were watching her with evident curiosity.

Though this espionage was annoying and intuition told her something was wrong, she showed no sign of displeasure even when one of the observers stole up and snapped her with a hand camera. Miss Manning's uneasiness was further increased when for the third time a letter of apology arrived instead of proofs. There was no explanation. The photographer begged her to come to his studio as soon as possible and bring some one with her. He would then, he said, endeavor to explain why it was impossible to photograph her.

Mrs. Manning and her daughter took the next train to the metropolis. The photographer led them into a private room and produced a handful of plates.

Before showing the plates to the mystified women, he asked of Miss Manning: "Do you [illegible]pen to know a very tall young lieute[illegible] with dark skin and light hair?"

"Why, yes, I do," answered Miss Manning, glancing at her mother.

"Well, perhaps you can account for these plates," said the photographer, handing [illegible] over. "I never had anything like th[illegible] happen to me but once before."

With successive gasps of amazement the young woman looked at the plates and then at the proofs, which showed things much more clearly.

In each case her picture was clear and quite good. They were the average work of a first-class photographer. But in every case there loomed close to her a strange, ghostly, yet distinct figure. In the figure's right hand was a dagger.

There was no question of identity. It was Lieutenant Waters, tall, frowning and sinister. Sometimes the Lieutenant's figure was on the left, sometimes on the right of his fiancee, but more often behind her. In every plate the dagger was held close to Miss Manning. Three plates showed him holding it point downward just above her head. In others it was at her throat and breast. The poise of the mysterious figure showed that it was not in the act of striking a blow, but held itself balanced in readiness to stab.

So ominous and threatening was the effect that the two women were quite overcome.

"What do you think it means?" they asked.

"Were you thinking or worrying very hard about him?" he asked in reply.

Miss Manning was quite sure that during the first two sittings her mind was full of shopping, and at the third her thoughts were busy trying to account for the curiosity she was inspiring.

"I hoped it might have been thought transference from your mind to the plate," he said. "I have heard of this happening often to other photographers, but it happened to me only once."

Pressed for details of this one previous case, the photographer reluctantly gave them. They were far from reassuring.

A man just before his wedding had sat for his picture. The figure of a woman appeared on every plate. She, too, was sinister and had a revolver instead of a dagger in her hand. The man recognized her as one who believed she had a claim on his affection, and was much disturbed by the plates and insisted on destroying them.

He was married, and soon after set out with his bride for Sydney, Australia.

"And what happened?" asked Miss Manning when the narrative paused at this point.

"He committed suicide and was buried at sea," he answered. "That is all I know."

But he did know more. There was doubt as to whether it was a case of suicide or murder. The woman who had appeared mysteriously on the plates had been a passenger on the steamer, and the young widow had stated that it was her opinion that she was implicated, even if she had not done the shooting herself.

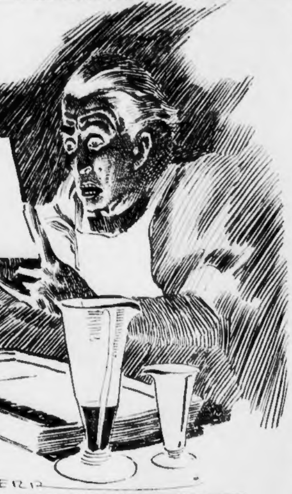
The photographer, wishing to test the phenomena more thoroughly, had brought several witnesses to observe Miss Manning's third sitting. One of these witnesses had made a separate exposure simultaneously with one of the regular camera's pictures. This plate showed the ghostly visitor standing behind the girl, with the dagger above her head. The large camera revealed him in the same position, though in one case it was a front view and in the other a profile.

Miss Manning is not a student of psychology or metaphysics. If she has any theory for the explanation of her strange pictures it must be guessed at, for she will not discuss the subject.

But her mental processes, whatever they were, resulted in speedy action. Not twenty-four hours after examining the plates a letter was on its way to Lieutenant Waters, notifying him that he might consider himself a free man. It is said that she frankly admitted the photographs were the cause.

Lieutenant Waters has by no means given up the fight. He has sent far and wide for books on the subject and has written to eminent authorities. He is at present at a loss for an explanation, but is said to suspect his defeated rival of in some way tampering with the plates.

There is more than one man who claims to have successfully imprinted an image on a sensitive plate merely by concentrating his mind upon the image and looking toward the plate. Readers of these columns will remember illustrations of several "thought pictures" published recently.



Lieutenant Waters is endeavoring to obtain his furlough at once and to get to the bottom of the mystery when he reaches England. He hopes that his broken romance will interest scientific men to help solve the mystery and win back for him the girl he loves.

The late Mr. J. Traill Taylor, former editor of the British Journal of Photography, made several most interesting tests of spirit photography before his death. One of Mr. Taylor's last works was a paper on this subject which was published after his death. Mr. Taylor calls the phenomena psychic photography, and he deprecates the word spirit, believing that spirits have nothing to do with the subject.

"For several years," said Mr. Taylor, "I have experienced a strong desire to ascertain by personal investigation the amount of actual truth in the ever-recurring allegation that figures other than those visually present in the room appeared on the sensitive plate.

"Mr. D., of Glasgow, in whose presence psychic photographs have long been alleged to have been obtained, was lately in London on a visit, and a mutual friend got him to consent to extend his stay in order that I might try to get a psychic photograph under the best conditions. To this he willingly agreed.

Experiments in "Ghost-Photos."

"My conditions were exceedingly simple, were courteously expressed to the host and entirely acquiesced in. They were that I for the nonce would assume them all to be tricksters, and to guard against fraud should use my own camera and unopened packages of dry plates purchased from dealers of repute, and that I should be excused from allowing a plate to go out of my own hand till after development unless I felt otherwise disposed.

"Dr. G. was the first sitter, and for a reason known to myself I used a monocular camera. I myself took the plate out of a packet just previously ripped up under the surveillance of my two detectives. I placed the slide in my pocket, and exposed it by magnesium ribbon which I held in my own hand, keeping one eye, as it were, on the sitter, and the other on the camera. There was no background. I myself took the plate from the dark slide, and, under the eyes of two detectives, placed it in the developing dish. Between the camera and the sitter a female figure was developed, rather in a more pronounced form than that of the sitter.

"Many experiments of like nature followed, on some plates were abnormal appearances, on others none. All this time Mr. D., the medium, during the exposure of the plates was quite inactive.

"The psychic figures behaved badly. Some were in focus, others were not. Some were lighted from the right, while the sitter was from the left; some were comely, others were not so. Some monopolized the major portion of the plate, quite obliterating the material sitters. Others were as if an atrociously badly vignetted portrait was held up behind the sitter.

"But here is the point. Not one of these figures which came out so strongly in the negative was visible to me in any form or shape during the time of exposure in the camera. I vouch in the strongest manner for the fact that no one whatever had an opportunity of tampering with any plate anterior to its being placed in the dark slide or immediately preceding development."

How Fasting Will Enable You to Become More Beautiful.

IT has become fashionable to fast. New York society has set the fashion of a brief retirement for the purpose of doing without food. Beauty doctors and Hindoo teachers are chiefly responsible for the fad, by means of which beautiful women are said to become more beautiful and plain women are made beautiful.

Mrs. George Law, of New York and Paris, was the first to adopt the theory that a short season of an empty stomach meant increased beauty. Mrs. Law, one of the loveliest of the international beauties, is an excellent exponent of any theory involving considerations of pulchritude, and her example was speedily followed by other charming women who wished to become more charming. The Countess of Warwick is an earnest disciple of occasional and systematic abstinence from food. Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Philip Lydig and Mrs. Oliver Harriman systematically take their beauty fasts.

In his book, "The Philosophy of Fasting," published by Benedict Lust, Earl Edward Purinton says:

"I would never advise an extreme mental temperament to take the conquest fast. There must be enough of the vital to store energy, with enough of the motive to spend it. Balance is indispensable, equilibrium must be maintained. Hall Caine, for instance, would probably lose by the prolonged fast; Alfred Henry Lewis, on the other hand, would probably gain. John D. Rockefeller is not adapted for it—he's too mental to be either vital or spiritual. Theodore Roosevelt would be a splendid subject. An enforced recess would transform his strenuousness into a comforting state of calm."

Mr. Purinton gives these rules for fasting:

"Choose Spring or Summer for the conquest fast. There are at least four reasons why these are the best seasons. First, fresh fruits and vegetables may be had before and after the fast. Nothing takes the place of the salts and juices obtained fresh in our garden products, both in preparing the body for active elimination and in helping it to recover tone. Either canning or drying vitiates the nourishing elements. So the season when green things grow is by far the best for any change in the dietetic regime. Second, the temperature and atmospheric conditions favor purification. You can perspire freely without special effort, a vital point in the physiology of fasting. In cool weather recourse must be had to Turkish, vapor and hot air baths; measures more or less unnatural and unquestionably enervating. Sun baths, moreover, are as indispensable to restore vitality as to quicken elimination, and sun baths in Winter are seldom feasible, at least in our Northern States. Third, the accustomed inertia of the season makes idling easier.

"Spring fever is so much the fashion, and Summer ennui so altogether proper, that the fast wont violate our conventional code of morals and manners through the effect it produces upon our activities.

"Not an ounce of energy should be dissipated during the extreme fast. It is enough to burn out the waste. Whatever is good flesh and good blood must be conserved to produce more. This means loafing, resting and not caring, clearly a Summer programme. Fourth, the gala garb of Nature attracts us to the open. You can't take a conquest fast in the house—would you try to swim in a barrel? Even through the heat of Summer you will find the clouds quite cold enough—no need to add the bareness of the earth and the bleakness of the sky in Winter. At best the conquest fast is a crucial ordeal. Let us make the conditions as comfortable as we can without compromise.

"Prepare for the long fast by the experience of a few short ones. Otherwise you might think you were going to die the second day. Fasts of from one to three days or longer, concluded safely, may embolden those who haven't the courage for a week or a month, at first. Say live a week without food in April or May, if you plan a month's fast for July or August.

"Plan work for that time that is congenial, but not compulsory. This is suggested upon the supposition that you cannot afford to be wholly idle, or that you have not learned to utterly relax. Work as you want to, play as you want to, read as you want to, rest when you wish. At first you are likely to have severe headaches. You may be subject to attacks of faintness or weakness that are not serious, but inconvenient. You may find it harder to sleep through the night, but easier to nap by day.

"Wear as little clothing as is consistent. Lie flat on the earth as much as you can. Dabble in the brook or play in the waves of the sea. Get used to sleeping on the grass, or at least to sleeping out of doors."

EXACTLY WHAT CAUSED THE EARTHQUAKE

The First Intelligent and Easy-to-Understand Explanation of the Great San Francisco Disaster as It Is Now Agreed Upon by the Foremost Scientists of the World.

Made Plain and Stripped of Technical Phrases by Prof. Garrett P. Serviss, the Distinguished Astronomer.

By PROF. GARRETT P. SERVISS.

THE two tremendous convulsions which within a fortnight have laid waste the environs of Vesuvius and temporarily wiped out of existence one of the greatest cities on the American continent have brought to the front a theory of the cause of earthquakes and of volcanic action that presents our revolving globe to us in an entirely new and a very startling light. According to this theory, the cataclysms referred to were caused by the earth, as it whirls on its 8,000-mile axis, getting a little off its centre, like an ill-balanced wheel, and striving, with a sudden shift, to recover its equilibrium.

It has been known for a score of years past that the axis of rotation of the earth has what may best be described as a "wobble." By carefully watching the direction of certain stars astronomers have found that the ends of the earth's axis do not always point toward exactly the same opposite spots in the sky, but swing about a little, thus introducing lost motion into the territorial mechanism. When the axis sways out of its mean position the effect upon the earth must be similar to that produced in a balance wheel that is a little loose on its axle. A very sudden change of this kind would knock everything to pieces on the surface of the earth, send the oceans roaring over the borders of the continents, and involve the whole force of the globe in ruin.

Fortunately the changes, while in some cases rapid, do not occur in the manner of jolts. The earth's axis of rotation swings with a somewhat gradual motion, now approaching its mean position, which corresponds with the geographical axis running through what we call the North and South poles, and again departing from it. The amount of departure never amounts to more than about sixty feet as measured on the earth's surface at one of the poles, and on the average it is not more than half of that amount. This, however, is quite sufficient to produce (even though the change from one position of the axis to another is not brought about instantaneously) very great effects upon the earth.

One can easily imagine that a globe 8,000 miles in diameter, and weighing no less than six sextillions of tons—an inconceivable number!—whirling about an axis so swiftly that a point on its equator travels more than a thousand miles an hour, cannot have its axis shifted, however, little, without feeling the strain throughout its enormous bulk. A great steel flywheel if overweighed on one side may be caused to burst asunder through the effects of the unbalanced forces.

How, then, can the massive earth experience such an effect without disastrous consequences? This, in brief, is the argument of those who hold the view that the recent cataclysms in the Old World and the New are due to the wobbling of the earth's axis. They aver that the erratic motion, reacting upon the interior of the great globe, must necessarily strain the subterranean rocks, thus producing volcanic eruptions and earthquakes. Professor John Milne, the distinguished expert in earthquake studies, is represented as urging this view in opposition to the generally accepted opinion of geologists that seismic disturbances result only from readjustments of the crust of the globe in consequence of the gradual cooling and shrinking of its interior.

But the question then arises: To what cause is the unbalancing of the earth, resulting in the wobbling of its axis, to be ascribed? Sir Norman Lockyer, the English astronomer, is quoted as replying that it is due indirectly to the present sun-spot maximum, which has vastly increased the amount of solar energy exerted upon the earth, and directly to the melting away of the snows about one of the earth's poles consequent upon that increase of solar action. This, it is averred, is sufficient to remove from its ordinary place about the pole a weight of ice and snow represented by incalculable millions of tons. The water formed by melting is swept equatorward through the oceans, in consequence of centrifugal tendency, and thus one end of the earth's surface is rendered sensibly lighter than the other, and a swinging and wobbling of the great axis results. Others are disposed to attribute the cause of the change in the axis to alterations in the distribution of the internal matter of the globe. The result, in either case, would be virtually the same.

Axis May Flop Again.

In view of this hypothesis it becomes interesting to inquire: At which pole has the melting of the ice occurred? The reply plainly is: At the South Pole, because the recent intense activity of the sun, as revealed by the presence of gigantic spots upon its surface, occurred during the Summer of the Southern Hemisphere, at the time when the South Polar regions were presented toward the sun, and also at a time when the earth was about three million miles nearer to the sun than it will be next July. That there may be truth in the idea that the solar radiation has been extraordinarily effective in its action upon the vast accumulation of ice on the Antarctic continent is indicated by the fact that the past Winter has been one of unusual mildness throughout the Northern Hemisphere. This being the case, we may well suppose that the corresponding Summer in the Southern Hemisphere has been uncommonly hot.

Granting, then, the asserted lightening of the South Polar end of the earth from the causes mentioned, an increase of the wobbling of the axis should naturally result, and upon this, according to the hypothesis, the sudden cataclysmal outburst of subterranean forces is due. If the theory is correct we must be thankful that the earth's axis does not fall from one position into another with a sudden jerk, for if it did there might be no one left alive to record the awful consequences!

It is to be noted, in connection with the foregoing, that the unusual activity of the sun has not yet ceased, and that if it should continue during the coming Summer to pour upon us an uncommon quantity of heat, the obvious consequence would be to melt away the Arctic ice and snow also, and thus, by removing weight from the northern axial end of the planet, to restore the balance, upset by what had occurred at the southern end. With this restoration the axis of rotation would tend to resume its mean position, although the change back again might result in fresh internal disturbances.

There are also some who, like the Abbe Moreux, of the Bourges Observatory, France, attribute earthquakes and volcanic eruptions to a more direct influence of the sun upon the earth at maximum periods of sun-spottedness. But they have not succeeded in making it clear how this supposed influence is exerted, ascribing it in a general way to changes of electric potential and to atmospheric influences. It must be said in fairness to the Abbe Moreux, however, that as long ago as last October he predicted that "as the solar activity will shortly diminish, it is highly probable that we shall have to record earthquakes toward March or April next." This may be regarded either as a happy coincidence or as a true example of scientific foresight, according as the theory of solar influence upon the seismic conditions of the earth shall stand or fall in the light of subsequent research.

But quite independent of this explanation of the San Francisco earthquake by such distinguished scientists as I have already named—Prof. Milne, Sir John Lockyer, Abbe Moreux and others—we may briefly consider here the commonly accepted scientific explanation of the earthquakes which are so frequently felt from day to day in various parts of the earth.

The great primary cause of all earthquakes, and of volcanic eruptions, is the gradual, or so-called secular, shrinking of the body of the earth. Our globe is like a shrivelled apple, whose outer peel has been thrown into a thousand wrinkles by the shrinkage of the central core. As the shrinkage is still going on the wrinkling of the surface continues. When the shrinkage ceases the globe will be dead, like the moon, but then also life will practically cease upon the surface, for the water will be withdrawn into the interior, and the atmosphere will be profoundly changed in composition, and may largely disappear. The moon shows us what we are coming to, and Mars, perhaps, represents an intermediate stage of planetary decline.

A Critical Period.

After a series of great earthquakes and volcanic explosions there is a change in the level of certain portions of the earth's crust. The rocks have settled together, and they will resist further changes until the shrinking beneath has gone or so far that the power of resistance is no longer sufficient to prevent a catastrophe. Then another break or slip, and consequent settling, occurs, and the rock crust is rent and shaken once more.

The local results of these changes, however, are not always a lowering of the level at the surface. Taking the globe as a whole, it must be gradually, very, very slowly, getting smaller; but in certain localities its crust is thrust up higher, just as there are local elevations on the rind of a shrivelling apple, although taken altogether the apple shrinks in size.

It is usually in the places where such up-thrusts occur that earthquakes are most violent. These places lie along lines of weakness, or what may be called immense cracks and fissures of the earth's crust. There the crust, having once been broken, does not mend again, and every successive disturbance occurring beneath it reopens the old wound.

It was the misfortune of San Francisco to be situated very close to one of these fissures. There is a line of old volcanoes following the Pacific Coast from Alaska southward, and off the shore of California there is an abrupt deepening of the ocean bottom, corresponding to a line of fracture in the earth's crust. This line follows in a general way the whole western edge of the American continent, and whenever there is a deep-seated convulsion in the interior of the globe, this huge crack is wrenched and the rocks strain and groan under the tremendous forces to which they are subjected. Then, at one point or another, or perhaps at several points nearly simultaneously, a break, or a slip, occurs, and an earthquake instantly follows.

WHY is it that certain localities have a perpetu pest of earthquakes while other spots are di turbed only once or twice during a historical and legendary times? Geologists believe th strength of the earth's crust determines the matter.

The crust is not necessarily thicker in Colorado o Wyoming where something confers practical immunity than in California, where earthquakes big and littl are known to every one. But the mountainous struc ure of the unshaken states doubtless runs down an and without flaw to the molten rock layer which lie between the cooled crust and the glowing centre o the earth which is held solid by pressure.

As the cooling processes go on shrinking must occu The molten layer reduces its outward pressure fro year to year and the pressure of atmosphere and cru itself must make it give periodically in its weake places.

Where great solid beds of rock support the surfac the molten layer may retreat and leave a sort of arc above it capable of resisting gravity for a long tim When once the earth gives way in any spot it has tendency to break there again.

United States Are Immune From Earthquakes.

[illegible] The atmospheric pressure forces it down when[illegible] the fluids beneath permit.

[illegible] it fell all at once there would be one terrible [illegible]quake which would [illegible] knock down every [illegible]ing in the world. Tidal waves would surge [illegible]ss the continents and only a few mountaineers [illegible] d escape death.

[illegible]stead it slips here and there a few feet at a [illegible] and the scraping of the edges of the world [illegible] out vibrations of varying strength. Most of [illegible] are tremors [illegible] discernible by delicate in[illegible]ments. Occasionally an extra large [illegible] long [illegible]rmined is held up by an obstruction [illegible] some sort. [illegible] at last, it gives way a powerful [illegible] [illegible]d. Either a tidal wave sweeps the coasts or [illegible]arthquake shakes the land, such as fe[illegible]ed San [illegible]cisco, or both occur. Washington, Oregon, Cali[illegible] Nevada, Arizona, and the southern half of [illegible] Mexico are involved in the great Pacific "fault," [illegible] Mexico and most of Texas.

[illegible]aho, Wyoming, Colorado, the eastern portions of [illegible] Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas and the northern [illegible] of New Mexico have little to fear from seismic [illegible]rbance.

[illegible] this line of immunity to the Atlantic coast a series of lesser faults make earthquakes possible at any time, though up to the time of the Charleston earthquake the Atlantic coast rested in fancied security.

Coasts and islands are favorite locations for faults, and ocean bottoms seem to be comparatively weak spots in the crust.

It is theoretically possible for a "fault" to heal and bring immunity to the surface districts, above and around it, but scientific study of the earth is not old enough to record such an event. In the meantime, in forecasting the probability of earthquakes, the past has proved an almost unfailing index of the future.

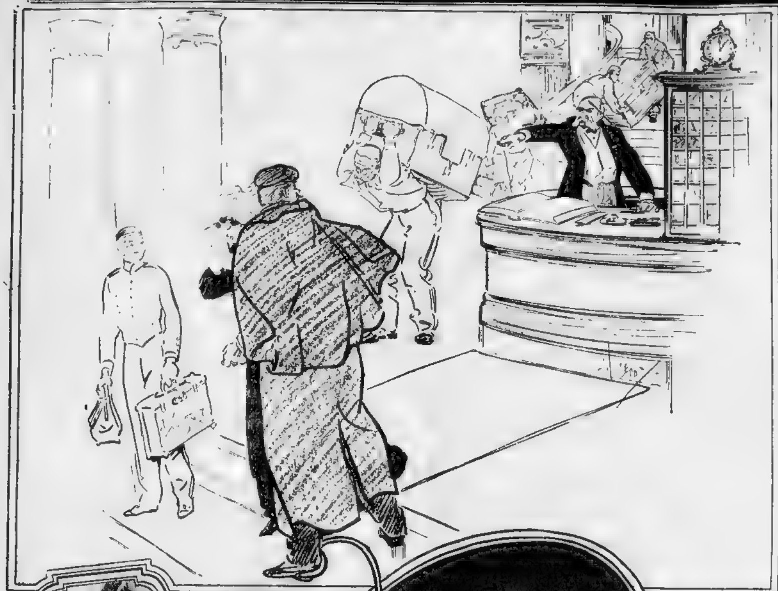
ONE THING NEW YORK WON'T STAND



How Maxim Gorky, the Russian Novelist and Patriot, Tried to Exploit a Woman Who Was Not His Wife, and How Quickly Every Respectable Hotel Threw the Pair Out and the Literary World Suddenly Dropped Him Like a Hot Potato.

MAXIM GORKY entered New York City to the fanfare of trumpets. The coming to America of this [illegible] of the new Russia had been heralded a long time before his advent, and all to this brilliant, daring and impassioned young patron, was the full cry of [illegible] from [illegible] the persecuted [illegible] Jews of the [illegible] down-town, [illegible] and [illegible] own wed wife [illegible] drew [illegible] the [illegible] ner [illegible] Kaiser Wi [illegible] der [illegible] on [illegible] deep draughts of the American ether, New York's men with greatest brains hugged him to their [illegible] welcome. The loveliest and [illegible] women kissed [illegible] the appealing woman by his [illegible] and [illegible] and Russian [illegible] and fetes and every [illegible] and intellectual diversions [illegible] for the delectation of the ex-[illegible]. The choicest viands were set [illegible] them, the choicest flowers were [illegible] for them; their healths were [illegible] in sparkling wine; the most luxurious motor cars and carriages were put [illegible] disposal. The long list of the engagements made for them was presented [illegible] and finally they were lodged [illegible] sumptuous suite at the fashionable Hotel Belleclaire, as the guests of [illegible] Gaylord Wilshire. Maxim [illegible] a tramp and afterward a Russian [illegible] had exchanged the rough stone slabs of the St. Petersburg prison for a bed of roses in America. Tender, generous sympathy hovered over him as with a halo. Then a strange thing happened. The pair were suddenly dropped like a hot potato.

The Gushing Assault of Welcome.

When Gorky had first been hailed by the hundreds of admirers who crowded into the ship's cabin to grasp his hand and bid him welcome they [illegible] one and all presented to the beaming proprietary little woman by his side as Mrs. Gorky, of course. Everybody knew that Mrs. Gorky, the true-hearted woman who had so nobly stood by her husband in all recent vicissitudes and persecution, was coming with him. And being a woman and Gorky's wife, she was even more gushingly overwhelmed with solicitude [illegible] the man himself. Then, too, Gorky does not speak a word of [illegible] tongue, not one word. And it was the woman by his side whom he leaned on to interpret his thoughts to others. She was delightfully voluble, and during all the chatter added, in her own taking way, characteristic bits of talk—little marginal notes of her own on the light of her life—her hero.

"What a delightful woman Mme. Gorky is!" one woman would say of her. "Just the ideal wife for a man like Gorky!" would add another. "It's a perfect union, and she is so [illegible] she speaks several languages [illegible] rubbed a third. So it went on. And that first evening people left the couple alone to themselves in their apartment, solicitously unwilling to disturb the communion of two such harmonious halves. An exquisite luncheon at the St. Regis, an automobile run through Central Park and to Grant's Tomb and the circus rounded out one day. Another was made memorable by the banquet at No. 3 Fifth avenue, which was given to launch a movement in this country to aid the subjects of the Czar in their coming fight for freedom. Gorky, of course, as the novelist-reformer was the central illuminating figure. Around him men of national and international prominence and distinction grouped themselves.

Chief among them was Mark Twain.

Besides Mark Twain there were about the board Robert Collier, Robert Hunter, the millionaire Socialist reformer; Alfred Bigelow Paine, H. G. Phelps, David Graham Phillips, Ivan Norodny and William D. Howells and H. G. Wells were there in spirit, their bodies being detained elsewhere. The affair was spirited. Mark Twain extolled Gorky and cried out for the freedom of Russia. It was a love feast and a boom.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I am very glad to meet Gorky. If we can help to create the Russian Republic, why let us go ahead and do it." Then Gorky said something very nice about Mark Twain and declared:

"I came to America to find hearts that sympathize with us and our aims, that deeply sympathize with my suffering people, who are [illegible] so hard for liberty and suffering so [illegible]. Now is the time [illegible] revolution, now is the time when the government will be overthrown. But what we need to do it with is money, money, money.

"My mission is to raise money."

So the boom was delightfully started. Gorky was made to feel perfectly at home and he avowed he felt so. Gorky was on all men's tongues, and his propaganda ready for the launching; the sails were well set and the flags all fluttering in the kindest of winds, when, lo and behold, the strange thing befell.

Gorky, you see, didn't happen to be married.

Imagine the tempest over the teacups—and his enthusiasts all at once had got to drinking tea à la Russe, too—when Mrs. Grundy got hold of this tid-bit and set out in her new Easter hat and her runabout to tell all her dear friends. New York society suffered such a spasm of shocked morality that it was almost comical. And the pitiable part about it all was the attitude of poor little Mme. Gorky and her cry:

"Why, of course, I am not; not what you call really married by a minister or a justice, or what you call him. Everybody knows that I am Gorky's soul wife, his affinity, his real wife in heaven. His other wife that was his, she is his wife no longer. She and he have separated forever. She has selected another affinity. M. Gorky has taken me. Both Gorky and that wife were agreed. But under Russian persecution they wont allow us to marry that way again, Gorky and me. Without me he could not work, live nor develop his great mission. This is not sin. It's the holiest, highest, purest communion. And you will no longer receive Gorky and me his wife?" "Never," said the wives of America.

Society didn't quite know when it had had such a shock. Everybody who knew anything about Gorky at all knew this Mme. Gorky wasn't the real Mme. Gorky and the mother of his children. They all knew she was the brilliant actress, Andreieva. But the sin in the thing seems like the Greek idea, to be in the finding out—and so Mrs. Grundy held up her hands in holy horror. They might have "soul-wives" and "affinities" and all that sort of thing in unregenerated Russia, but it wouldn't go in the chaste society life of New York.

Then the proprietor of the Belleclaire Hotel heard of it. Was anything ever so monstrous! What! the Belleclaire housing a couple who were not espoused! Where was Mr. Wilshire? Send for Mr. Wilshire, quick—not a minute to lose. I don't give pate de fois gras for "soul-marriages." They must get out at once—at once. Fifty women in the hotel were calling upon the distracted manager, if it could be true, that they were still there, stopping, and not married. Wives egged on their husbands. There were threats of immediate vacation if the sore spot were not cut out at once.

Mr. Wilshire argued that the Gorkys were using his own suite. But it made no difference. Nothing would. There was a taint on his hotel while they stayed and the place would be ruined. Gorky and his "soul wife" were put out bag and baggage.

The Merciless Snub for the Gorkys.

This sudden change from the ovations and the orations and the bravos of just the other day were staggering to the visiting hero. Were these people even more fickle than his own Slavs? Smuggled into an automobile the unhappy Gorkys were whisked to the Hotel Brevoort, down on lower Fifth avenue, where perhaps the outcasts might find refuge under the French flag. Alas! M. Orteig and M. Lablanche, the most exquisitely urbane hotel proprietors in the metropolis, were desolated, they were in the profoundest sympathy with the situation, but what would you? Yes, for one night, perhaps, in such a distressing dilemma, but ——

The wayfarers met the same fate at the Rhinelander, where they were put ignominiously out at midnight, and at last it was forced home to Mr. Wilshire what it is to be blackballed at a respectable hotel in New York City. If one proprietor discards a couple, give up all hope of shelter at any other hostelry.

Back to Club A, at No. 3 Fifth avenue, where there had taken place the Mark Twain dinner of enthusiasm two nights before. This is a club composed of advanced thinkers and reformers, and one of their aims is the overthrow of Russian oppression. There Gorky and his companion were allowed shelter. And there are their headquarters, while Gorky's backers are waiting for the effects of the scandal to die down and Mme. Gorky wonders where all those sweet-tongued ladies are who were going to have her to tea and to drive and to lovely mornings where they could enthuse over music and Russia's [illegible] and woes. Poor little Mrs. Gorky can't understand it a little bit. "It's so droll," she says in her pathetic ignorance.

In the meantime the Gorky movement has subsided. All the immediate enthusiasm has burst as a bubble bursts. And the two unfortunates at the present seem to be as much pariahs and outcasts here in this land of the free, which extended its arms out to Gorky with such a gush of enthusiasm, as they ever were in the Old World. In fact, there was intimation that the pair might be sent back there after all for violating the immigration laws on bigamy and polygamy. The whole episode is full of irony.

The Healthy Moral Sensitiveness of New York.

By the Rev. Madison C. Peters.

MAXIM GORKY should have taken into account American conditions, which he ought to have known. He may tell his French friends that we are a [illegible] his [illegible] his own [illegible] enlightened Americans [illegible] which [illegible] should now [illegible] against him.

That [illegible] is among us a deplorable state of affairs in [illegible] and divorce we own up, and the fact that thinking men and women are deeply stirred and have called a halt, religious, legal and social forces combining in a most tremendous effort to solve the divorce problem, make Gorky's attempt at this time to deceive us by introducing a woman not his wife as Mme. Gorky [illegible] such an attempt should [illegible] been made when so many remedial agencies are in active progress, as at this time in America, is deplorable.

We [illegible] divergence of state [illegible] enactments and [illegible] knowledge the [illegible] of enforcement of such laws as we have [illegible] we own with shame that in twenty years more than 500,000 divorces [illegible] in the United States; that more than 1,500,000 American children have been granted in the United States; divorce lawyers have been paid, it is estimated, $25,000,000 for services in divorce suits, but be it remembered that we have in America the most cosmopolitan population on the globe, and that while we are solving our own problems a European immigration of more than 1,000,000 a year [illegible] adds to our difficulties. [illegible] of the American people uphold the purity and maintain the integrity of the home, and Maxim Gorky, as a reformer, should have first reformed himself. He should have known the sentiments of the masses of the American people, and not presume that we, as a people, are [illegible] classes so [illegible] defy decency.

[illegible] have made America peerless [illegible] the nations. Any encyclopedia of [illegible] biography will prove that our [illegible] illustrious statesmen, our most distinguished scientists, our most eloquent [illegible] our merchant princes and our [illegible] came from humble [illegible] where the mother [illegible] not as a queen of fashion, but where the nursery of the family was a nursery for the church, where the first lispings of childhood were the accents of prayer and the first thoughts of the heart were the thoughts of God.

The American women whose heaven is an opera box, to whom the ten commandments are an inconvenience, and whose escapades fill our news columns, are only a small proportion of our population and their antics only add to the [illegible] of an ordinarily sane and respectable people.

CHAPTER XII.

Crusoe Learns That His Face May Be His Fortune.

I TOOK occasion to reprobate the mischievous and evil courses of the man George Rats, pointing out to him that in honest toil there would be no disgrace.

I then told him of the hardships which had befallen me, of which he himself was the principal cause, and I ended by a declaration that I was on my way to the docks, where I purposed to find me a ship, and that I wished for no more of his society.

I then took some slight refreshment from the glass which he had placed by my side.

"Robinson," he said, "your observations as to my conduct are severe, pointed, slightly rude, perhaps, but otherwise correct. I have forgotten to mention it to you, but I at one time was a lay preacher, and had the control of a Cottage Home, entirely supported by the contributions of the charitable. It happens to be rather a painful subject to me, and we will not dwell upon it.

"As for your project with regard to the docks, let me with all the earnestness of a political editor proving a moral victory, or of a dying man speaking to dying men, dissuade you from it. The docks are largely overrated. Everything, believe me, which is instituted, or is organized, or has got a set of rules hanging on it, is largely overrated. Stay with me for a time. Accept my simple hospitality. Give yourself a chance to find the career for which you are specially suited—to realize your assets to the full."

So, after thanking him warmly for his kindness, I pointed out that with the exception of my [illegible] my ability to represent a wild and semi-human animal, discovered by an eminent explorer, I had no means of making money, and that with regard to the former it was at the docks that I should find the nearest opportunity of which I might avail myself, and with regard to the latter I had not the address of my previous employer in the semi-human capacity, and in any case I believed the occupation to be precarious and one which was little likely to lead to any great advancement.

"You mistake entirely," said George Rats. "You have other means of making money. You have, for instance, your exceptionally child-like manner and appearance. It is true that if you used them in the way that I should suggest you would lose them, and you are not, like myself, enough of an artist to supply the want. Then, again, you are a liar, but I have noticed with real regret on your account that your lies are rather imaginative than practical. The really important point, the point which occurs to me principally at the present moment, is that you possess a remarkable facial resemblance to somebody else."

"But how," I asked, "could that profit me?"

"Possibly it will not profit you quite so much as it will profit somebody else. In fact, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you are helping another while you are helping yourself. I will not con-

THE INVISIBLE WAR SHIP THAT SEES IN THE DARK

The Big New Naval Problem to Be Solved When Morgan Robertson's Invisible Searchlight Further Arms the Terrible Little Submarine, Enabling It to Locate and Attack Its Enemy in the Darkest Night, Giving No Sign of Its Approach.

Morgan Robertson.

JULES VERNE inspired the submarine torpedo boat, that [illegible] little unseen enemy which has the largest battleship at its mercy when the one is able to locate the other.

Morgan Robertson, the Jules Verne of current magazine fiction, who gave to the little submarine an improved mechanical eye wherewith to locate the battleship, has gone a step farther, according to recent [illegible] admissions, to which a great [illegible] amount of space in the [illegible] foreign governments [illegible] to give [illegible] an invisible [illegible] ship [illegible] its own [illegible] into day without revealing its presence to the enemy.

Suppose [illegible] scientific fact [illegible] invisible searchlight as part of [illegible] submarine [illegible] of [illegible] any more [illegible].

All [illegible] has to do is [illegible] the waves to the estimated [illegible] its silently [illegible] equipped [illegible] surface, locate the enemy [illegible] of ex[illegible] [illegible] completing its journey [illegible] pres[illegible].

The [illegible] to a certain extent defeats its [illegible] discovers the enemy [illegible] possessor [illegible] smoke [illegible] the enemy that [illegible] be seen that with the [illegible] of one [illegible] armed with a light [illegible] shows its effects everything within the range of vision, and other vessels, [illegible] in their vicinity would be at their [illegible].

Similar to the X-Ray.

But how can a light be "invisible"? If a so-called light be invisible, how can it reflect the outlines of any image in a manner visible to eyes adjusted to visible light?

The answer to those questions is furnished by the phenomena of the X-ray, which is invisible, yet penetrates solid bodies, so that objects within them or behind them [illegible] photographed by that same [illegible]. [illegible] these rays are capable of making [illegible] visible to [illegible] the reflections [illegible] fluorescent surface that [illegible] apparent to the human eye.

It is known [illegible] the ultra violet rays shown by the spectrum are invisible to the eye, yet are available for photography. These [illegible] Morgan Robertson is supposed to have found some way of utilizing [illegible] of day and all the other compo[illegible] in combination with an [illegible] light apparatus.

[illegible] of rays [illegible] their source, and yet the [illegible] the lens of a camera which is part of the whole apparatus receives and fixes upon a specially prepared surface a clear image of every object the invisible light rests upon.

The meagre [illegible] about the details of this invention does not make it clear that the invisible searchlight is yet available for use in connection with the periscope of submarines. [illegible] it is apparent that such a [illegible] advantage given to those [illegible] in naval warfare would be [illegible] powerful and practical [illegible].

They could [illegible] attacks to the night [illegible] danger of their exposed [illegible] observed by the enemy would [illegible] compara[illegible] sight of course of the enemy, [illegible] equipped with the "invisible searchlight" sweeping [illegible] in all directions it must [illegible] the small objects [illegible] with [illegible] but the periscope would remain above the surface only long enough to enable the officers below to direct a course that would bring the enemy within range of their torpedoes.

Naval authorities have been quoted as saying that they [illegible] any such rays of light would be effective beneath the surface of the ocean. If they are mistaken, the advantage would still be on the side of the submarine, which, deeply submerged, would be difficult to reach with any sort of projectile from the enemy on the surface.

Morgan Robertson's [illegible] invention, the improved periscope, was promptly acquired by the Holland Submarine Boat Company. [illegible] more than [illegible] a foreign nation has acquired all the rights in this more startling device, in which event, if the invention proves practicable, all other nations will have a big new problem to solve. How will they make their ships invisible to the invisible searchlight?

The pictorial diagram on this page gives a pretty fair idea of the workings of the invisible searchlight in connection with the improved submarine periscope. The hollow [illegible] down which the lens at the top sends its visual message is capable of being revolved so that the whole surrounding sea above is swept by the light and by the lens at the will of the operator.

Another lens at the bottom of this vertical tube, set at the proper angle, projects upon the circular wall of the chamber in which the operator sits, a moving picture of the whole surface panorama. Upon discovery of the object sought the revolutions cease, the desired object remains stationary on the screen and the commander calculates his course for that object with mathematical certainty.

In his story called "The Mistake," printed in the March number of Munsey's Magazine, Morgan Robertson, for fiction purposes attributing his invention to a young Japanese officer, gives a graphic description of how a Japanese submarine thus equipped [illegible] the new light, but having [illegible] torpedoed the Russian warships Petropavlovsk and Pobeda, which all the world supposed to have been destroyed by sunken mines.

By accident a torpedo from this new terror of the seas is [illegible] at the United States cruiser Syracuse. Lieutenant Halpin sees it coming and jumps overboard, to be picked up by the submarine. To preserve the secret of their [illegible] the commanding officer holds him [illegible] as a prisoner, but courteously shows him how the appliance works.

Described In Fiction.

"Good," [illegible] Halpin, as he removed the ear [illegible] acquiring an immense respect for [illegible]. But how do you see? By a periscope, I suppose, an improvement [illegible]."

"My own invention, too," said the Jap, a slight gratification showing in his face. "Better than any periscope. Did you notice the circular deck surrounding the conning tower above?"

"Yes," answered Halpin, looking upward.

"It does not show from within. It is an empty superstructure enclosing, in utter darkness, the screen of my [illegible]. The mast is a hollow tube with a lens at the top. At twelve feet depth with but three feet of tubing above water, provided [illegible] even [illegible] on this screen of every [illegible] and ships within [illegible]."

There was something [illegible] of the nature of destiny [illegible] George Rats. He had deserved me [illegible] I had no doubt that he would [illegible]. His character [illegible] civilized country was [illegible]. Yet against my better judgment I permitted him to prevail over me.

His landlady, who [illegible] Mr. Sowerby, found a [illegible] and George Rats seemed to be anxious that I should occupy [illegible] at once.

"But I do not as a rule [illegible] to bed at so early an hour," I said.

"Robinson," said George Rats sternly, "a man in your circumstances and with your recent experiences should have learned to go to bed whenever possible, on the simple grounds that he may never have another chance. Besides, I have some rather delicate work on hand, which I shall manage best if I am left alone. Wherefore kennel! Robinson, kennel!"

When I pressed him as to the nature of that delicate work in which he was about to engage himself, he said that he had it in his mind to improve his penmanship by writing a few copies, nor was he in any way abashed when I reminded him that he had once been a schoolmaster, and that it would be reasonable to suppose that this elementary part of his education had been already accomplished.

CHAPTER XIII.

He Finds Himself Highly Esteemed at the Bank of England.

ON the following morning George Rats was somewhat tac[illegible] my inquiry whether he had succeeded in improving his handwriting, [illegible] no more than that for my sake he hoped that he had.

I had no means at the time of grasping the precise meaning of this, though it was plain to me afterwards, but it was clear that he was revolving in his mind some great project, and without more ado I asked him what it might be.

"I am about," he said, "to make a psychological experiment as to the cumulative value of three pieces of evidence, of which none is in itself entirely satisfactory. If the cumulative value is sufficient it will be extremely good for me. If it is insufficient it will be extremely bad for you. Therefore, my poor Robinson, you will have to be particularly careful to carry out my instructions exactly. I am now going out, and my first instruction to you is to wait here till I return."

He returned in about an hour, bringing with him a complete suit of clothes, which he made me put on.

This I did with great pleasure, for the clothes were entirely new, and the waistcoat in particular was of a bright colour and pleasing to the eye. George Rats surveyed me as it seemed, with great satisfaction.

"Yes," he said, "the resemblance is now even more striking. The capitalist who wears a very distinctive waistcoat such as that which now adorns you helps to make things easier. Some slight alterations are still wanted in the hair and beard, and these may now be arranged under my supervision."

So in the first place he took me to a barber's shop, and then to another place, where he purchased for me a hat and gloves, and at first my idea was that he was attempting [illegible] the clothes and other property [illegible] had previously stolen from me, [illegible] began to [illegible] of these clothes [illegible] to me afforded me less satisfaction [illegible] conscience [illegible].

At [illegible] appeared to me [illegible] bounds of strict [illegible] ever made [illegible] to loosen his tongue [illegible] told me that [illegible] that he intended [illegible] and that [illegible] myself [illegible] I was not afraid of any [illegible] remonstrance he [illegible] changed the subject.

For the best part [illegible] we remained [illegible] ordered a cab to be [illegible] me get into it. He [illegible] to give me his inst[illegible].

Now these instructions were so strange and withal so [illegible] I was like to laugh at them [illegible] was nothing in them to present any difficulty to a man with a good deal [illegible] experience, and though I saw no purport in them, I determined to carry them out.

Therefore, when the cab stopped at the Bank in Lombard street I got out and went up the steps without haste and with a cheerful smile, as George Rats had directed me. It gave me some pleasure to notice that a liveried servant of the bank touched his hat to me, and that the clerk with the bald head and nose like a parrot, to whom I addressed myself, said:

"Good morning, Sir William," and treated me with great respect.

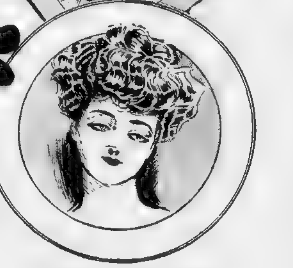
The New Method of Combing the Hair [illegible] It High Upon the Head and at the Sides.



The Coquettish Clusters of Curls Which Are Arranged on the Side of the Pompadour.

THE ultra fashionable headgear for the months to come will be the tiny hat. It sounds insignificant, but it isn't. The new tiny hat can strike a more prominent note in dress than many a hat more than twice its size. It also requires more care in the arrangement of the hair than any other type of hat.

Indeed, to talk about new hats and omit new hairdressing would be practically leaving off one of the most important features of the hat, since the hair is literally built around and sometimes over as well as under it.

Almost any little hat is becoming if the hair is arranged becomingly to both head and chapeau.

The new method of combing the hair is to build it high upon the head and at the sides. The little hat is tilted forward and rests upon a cascade of curls at the back, which often conceal a comb worn crosswise. This method of wearing the comb serves to keep up the hair and provide a support for the hat.

Some little hats have a bit of a front brim buried in a fluffy pompadour, which is actually combed over them; others disclose a coquettish cluster of curls springing from the side of the pompadour, which is parted for this purpose, and again one sees a demure bunch of curls tucked under the side of the hat toward the back. It is merely a matter of personal taste and of the shape of one's hat, whether curls appear in the back, on the side or almost in front of the coiffure. In any case, they are attractive and becoming to women of all ages and nearly every type of face.

The wearing of curls has almost displaced the wearing of combs any more, and has revived the fancy for decorating the hair with jewelled pins. The ugly fashion of wearing combs lengthwise is going out, even in Paris, where the fad had such a vogue. If worn at all they are now set in the hair crosswise, and are partially and sometimes entirely concealed by curls. Side combs are still worn; but even these are beginning to give place to the new modes of hairdressing when jewelled pins serve to keep refractory locks in order and to hold fast ringlets that seldom grow upon the heads of their owners.

These jewelled pins are made in very simple styles and shapes, unless the jewels are very good, when the pins may be much more elaborate. Any precious stones are used in these pins, but, of course, these should be selected with a view to the color of the hair.

French women devote much attention to the arrangement of their hair. This is always dressed to make the hat appear to greatest advantage, and all the false hair necessary to the attainment of this end is employed.

American women, on the contrary, have far too little realization of the relation of the coiffure to the hat and its importance in their appearance. Even the best dressed American women do not pay enough attention to the building up and out of their coiffures.

The American woman has as great a repugnance to wearing false hair as she has to making up her face, two customs that are universal among French women. But the tiny hat of this season is doing much to [illegible] can p[illegible] up by means of [illegible] in the [illegible] correct lines.

Little Side Curls with Straw Turban.

Figure A illustrates a smart little hat of black and white maline. A small round frame is covered with high tufts of black maline, relieved in the back by still higher tufts of white. On the left side, near the front, two pink roses give color to the hat, while toward the back two white plumes stand almost upright with a backward droop upon the hair. The hair is puffed around this tiny hat and a cascade of curls hangs across the back of the coiffure.

In order to make the hat harmonize with a blue, mauve or yellow costume, flowers of such colors would be used in place of pink roses, while for evening wear the hat would be lovely in colored [illegible]. A velvet bow [illegible] the place of flowers, and either an aigrette or ends of velvet might serve in place of plumes.

This hat has a low, round crown with a brim extremely narrow in front and wider in the back. The straw turban brim, or band, connects this little hat with another brim that rests upon the head. The turban band extends half an inch above the upper brim of the hat and is trimmed with a black velvet band. A large white ostrich pompon is set on the left side of the hat with a plume drooping toward the back. Bunches of [illegible] brown maline cover the bandeau [illegible] the back of the hat, and under its [illegible] side a bunch of curls lends a fetching touch to the whole.

A woman might use some other trimming upon this hat without in the least destroying its contour.

The Coquettish Flower Wreath.

This illustration is an example of the manner in which the pompadour is slightly separated to one side, the front to admit of the introduction of curls.

Satin folds pass through the turned-up back of the hat brim and form a knot above six wide, long loops of the soft liberty satin ribbon. A little twisted fold of brown tulle over the bandeau at the back is scarcely observed. Needless to say, this hat would be as smart in other colors and would be very attractive in Tuscan straw trimmed with black wings and black velvet.

The material is a fashionable leghorn straw, very small in size and slightly dented round the brim. The bandeau and upturned left side are covered with folds of maline, much the tint of the straw, which is a yellowish cream, scarcely pronounced enough in hue to convey an effect of yellow. It is tilted toward the front and over the right side and is trimmed with a bunch of raspberry colored plumes upon the left side and a little wreath entirely around the edge of the brim. A charming color effect is produced in the wreath by the use of heliotropes, tiny roses and little greenish-white flowers, mingled with small green foliage. Of course, such a wreath could be composed of flowers all of one kind, but the pompadour coloring is very charming and effective.

The trimming of the hat should either match the color of the dress with which it is worn or that of the parasol.

Where the parasol matches a hat a note of the same color is introduced in the trimming of the dress bodice, and usually repeated in the shoes.

As an example of this a rose-colored parasol trimmed with a white design in embroidery and braiding is carried to match the hat shown in figure E.

A new sort of fine black straw, something like fine black Panama, is the material of this hat, which has an oval shaped, dented crown and a brim turned up something like that of a turban and narrowing to one side of the front. This brim is covered with black satin, in which is wrought a very rich brocade of large roses, in old rose color, with foliage in soft shades of green. White and gold daisies are mingled with the roses on the satin ribbon. Where the brim narrows it is dented and the ribbon is knotted in the dent and turned up in two sharp little points against the quill of two full ostrich plumes of rose color. These slant up across the dent in the crown, stand very high in the back and droop downward over the bandeau under the back which gives a forward tilt to the hat. Close folds of [illegible] maline cover the bandeau, which is a high one and partly concealed by the brim.

A bunch of curls is worn in one side of the hair, and adds decided charm to the general effect.

Hats are not now made of the same color as the dress with which they are worn, but when the hat material is of a contrasting color its trimmings must either match the dress or the color of its trimmings and accessories. A hat is never independent of a costume except when that is gray, when fashion decrees a hat of some contrasting color, such as green, blue, mauve, red, and the like. White gowns, too, are worn with colored hats, but in this case shoes, parasol and ribbons match the hat.

It is this dainty arrangement of details which gives such cachet to a costume. No matter how smart and expensive a gown may be, the entire effect is either lost or rendered ridiculous by carelessness in the selection of a hat and those other accessories to dress which proclaim that a woman is either perfectly accustomed to or hopelessly ignorant of the art of good dressing.

Parasols are this season so much a part of the hat in color scheme that they are nearly always purchased with more relation to the hat than the dress. For instance, when I furnish a gown that needs a blue hat I also furnish with the hat a blue parasol. One of the pretty fancies of the season is to trim a blue linen parasol with some airy design wrought in white cotton soutache braid and embroidered white French knots. In this case the long Empire handle would be of blue enamelled wood, the ribs be covered with strips of blue and a tuft of blue linen would trim the ferrule.

To the woman of small means I would say, decorate your own parasols. It is an easy matter. The longest wooden handles and frames of old parasols might be taken to an umbrella maker and covered at a trifling cost. Any woman could then work some simple design in braid or embroidery upon the cover.

Trimming hats is a different matter. Home-made hats rarely, if ever, achieve the cachet necessary to make a hat look the mode. But to the woman who wants to trim her own hats let me suggest that flowers and tulle and feathers may be manipulated by unskilful fingers, but that the smart adjustment of bows and loops requires the touch of genius or years of practice.

The smart hat should have a distinct shape of its own, and ready made hat shapes should always be manipulated to give them individuality. Sewing wire around the brim or in places upon it will allow one to bend and twist straw shapes into some attractive form. The bandeaus, too, are important because the tilt of the hat depends upon their size and the manner in which they are sewed into the crown.

Every season witnesses some fad in hat trimmings. This year the fad is for aigrettes and, to some extent, for peacock feathers. Ostrich feathers, plumes and pompons are also very popular, as well as very smart, and are universally becoming. Flowers are as fashionable as they always are at this season of the year, and there is quite a vogue for roses, especially for "jack" roses, which are combined with almost any color of hat trimmings.

Ribbons for hat trimmings are invariably of some soft quality, such as liberty satin, soft taffetas and certain other weaves of soft silk ribbon. Black velvet is popular, and a touch of black velvet is frequently added to hats trimmed with other materials, just as brown maline often appears upon the bandeaus of hats, quite irrespective of the color of the hat and its decorations. Above all things in a hat, assure its becomingness to the wearer.

This "1900" Gravity Washer Must Pay for Itself

A MAN tried to sell me a horse, once. He said it was a fine horse and had nothing the matter with it. I wanted a fine horse. But, I didn't know anything about horses much. And, I didn't know the man very well either.

So I told him I wanted to try the horse for a month. He said "all right, but pay me first, and I'll give back your money if the horse isn't all right."

Well, I didn't like that. I was afraid the horse wasn't "all right" and that I might have to whistle for my money if I once parted with it. So I didn't buy the horse although I wanted it badly. Now this set me thinking.

You see I make washing machines—the "1900" Gravity Washer.

And, I said to myself, lots of people may think about my Washing Machines as I thought about the horse, and about the man who owned it.

But I'd never know, because they wouldn't write and tell me. You see I sell all my Washing Machines by mail. (I sold upwards of 500,000 that way already—nearly five million dollars' worth.)

So, thought I, it's only fair enough to let people try my Washing Machines for a month, before they pay for them, just as I wanted to try the horse.

Now, our "1900" Gravity Washer is a new invention, and I know what it will do. I know it will wash clothes without wearing them, in less than half the time they can be washed by hand, or by any ordinary machine.

When I say half the time I mean half—not a little quicker, but twice as quick.

I know it will wash a tub full of very dirty clothes in Six minutes. I know no Washer made by any other concern can do that, in less than 12 minutes, without wearing out the clothes.

I'm in the Washing Machine business for Keeps. That's why I know these things so surely. Because I have to know them, and there isn't a Washing Machine made that I haven't seen and studied.

Our "1900" Gravity Washer does the work so easy that a child can run it almost as well as a strong woman. And, it don't wear the clothes, nor fray edges, nor break buttons, the way all other washing machines do.

It just drives soapy water clear through the threads of the clothes like a Force Pump might.

If people only knew how much hard work the "1900" Gravity Washer saves every week, for 10 years,—and how much longer their clothes would wear, they would fall over each other trying to buy it.

So, said I to myself, I'll just do with my "1900" Gravity Washer what I wanted the man to do with the horse. Only, I won't wait for people to ask me. I'll offer to do it first, and I'll "make good" the offer every time. That's how I sold nearly half a million Washers.

I will send any reliable person a "1900" Gravity Washer on a full month's free trial! I'll pay the freight out of my own pocket. And if you don't want the machine after you've used it a month I'll take it back and pay the freight that way, too. Surely that's fair enough, isn't it?

Doesn't it prove that the "1900" Gravity Washer must be all that I say it is? How could I make anything out of such a deal as that, if I hadn't the finest thing that ever happened, for Washing Clothes—the quickest, easiest and handiest Washer on Earth? It will save its whole cost in a few months, in Wear and Tear on clothes alone. And then it will save 50 cents to 75 cents a week over that in washerwoman's wages. If you keep the machine after a month's trial, I'll let you pay for it out of what it saves you. If it saves you 60c a week send me 50c a week, 'till paid for.

I'll take that cheerfully and I'll wait for my money until the machine itself earns the balance.

Now, don't be suspicious. I'm making you a simple, straightforward offer, that you can't risk anything on anyhow. I'm willing to do all the risking myself! Drop me a line today and let me send you a book about the 1900 "Gravity" Washer, that washes Clothes in 6 minutes. Or, I'll send the machine on to you, a reliable person, if you say so, and take all the risk myself. Address me this way,—R. F. Bieber, Gen. Mgr. "1900 Washer Co.," 8036 Henry St., Binghamton, N. Y., or 355 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. Don't delay, write me a post card now, while you think of it.

BREATHING.

By Dr. Edward Curtis of Columbia University.

"WE feed the stomach three times a day, but we feed the lungs five times as often every minute," says Dr. Edward Curtis, of Columbia University, New York, in "Nature and Health," a popular treatise on the hygiene of the person and home, just published by Henry Holt & Co. "We are dainty to a nicety about our stomach food, but, for lung food, will complacently consume stuff that already has passed in and out of other lungs over and over again, merely remarking, 'The air is quite close in this room.'"

Just what impure air really is, how it may be most easily got rid of, and its menace to health, Dr. Curtis tells in the first chapter of his book, which deals with breathing.

He says that in inhalation the lungs absorb from the air its active principle, oxygen; in exhalation, they give out, besides water, the effete gas, carbon dioxide ("carbonic acid gas"), together with fine particles of an organic excrementitious substance. Although deadly in strong charges, carbon dioxide is by no means so poisonous as many suppose, and is not what gives to exhaled air its noisome properties. By itself the gas is neither unpleasant nor harmful, even when impregnating air in more than ten times the proportion in which it occurs in rooms that may be foul from over-breathing. Carbon dioxide is a normal constituent of the atmosphere to the extent of four parts to ten thousand. Yet air vitiated by breaths begins to acquire an odor when the carbon dioxide proportion measures six to the ten thousand, and is offensively close when the figure [illegible] reaches eight.

It is the organic product of exhalation that is the offensive element. This product is not at all a gas, but a cloud of fine particulate entities. The particles do not obey the law of gases, but the law of soot. Exactly like that horrible substance, they cling affectionately to whatever they touch. A pair of lungs, then, may grossly be likened to a smoking lamp, giving forth carbon dioxide, water and smut.

While the organic emanation is the active agent for harm in exhaled air, it is convenient to measure the contamination of a given body of air by the proportion of carbon dioxide present, since the gas and the effluvium go together, always, and it is a much easier chemical operation to determine percentages of carbon dioxide than of organic impregnation.

Poison from Bad Air.

Acute poisoning from exhaled air shows itself by a bad taste in the mouth, headache, drowsiness, lassitude, and even lethargy or faintness. Contamination of confined air by other agencies than the breath, uncleanly habits, poor and insufficient food, long hours of work, and lack of sunlight and exercise, are all concomitants of breath poisoning among the poor, who so commonly live in unventilated rooms.

Nature's scheme of life is life in the open, where breathing is done in the vast body of the general atmosphere. Under these circumstances, diffusion quickly dilutes exhaled carbon dioxide, which then, in course of time, is appropriated by plant life, while the organic effluvium of breath falls an easy prey to sun, wind and rain.

But when breathing is done in a ten-by-twelve or even a fifteen-by-twenty box in which all openings are closed, the conditions are as completely reversed from those of Nature as possibly can be. Even by a single pair of lungs the air in such a box is soon vitiated. Hence in closed places where human beings herd come readily those symptoms of foul air poisoning [illegible]. Therefore, of course, [illegible] that hath eaten of the tree of knowledge maketh it a first care of his rare intelligence that his indoor air shall be just as pure as conditions permit.

Accordingly we see that the countryman cowers over a close stove in a low-ceiled room and shuts doors and windows; the city dweller closets himself in a steam-heated apartment chamber with a dummy for a fireplace and shuts the door and the window, while the suburbanite packs himself with fellow sardines in a trolley car where there is neither steam heat nor stove and shuts both doors, all windows, and even all ventilators, ineffective though the poor things be.

The picture is true to life and tells its story without need of comment by the editor.

Necessary Air Space

Air will not move unless forced. Nature's universal force for the setting of air in motion is difference in temperature. Warm air expands and rises; cool, dense air rushes in to fill up the gap. It is mainly this action that makes the winds to blow, from the zephyr that dallies to the hurricane that rages, and it is exactly this action that must be utilized for the ventilation of ordinary domiciles. In the Summer, when all the windows and doors are, or should be, wide open, Nature herself attends to the business. In the Winter the house is warmed to a temperature higher than that of outdoors, so that by an intelligent imitation of Nature's methods this difference in temperature easily can be made to do effective ventilating.

As homes go, there is nearly always a deficiency of air space in chambers. To correct this fault there is only one thing to do—open all doors except the front door and that at the head of the kitchen stairs and leave them open, day and night. By this means the whole house becomes practically one body of air, whose halls and unoccupied rooms contribute their quota of unvitiated air to help ventilate the occupied chambers. Of course, in an apartment or boarding house, this cannot be put in operation. Hence comes about the horror of the steam heated flat, with its stuffy rooms, and the abomination of the boarding house with its dark, malodorous halls and stairways. In hotels it is different. There, end-windows to the corridors and transoms to the chamber doors supply the needful avenues of air communication.

In house warming, it is not the house that is to be warmed, but the human bodies within it. The lower the temperature of the air, while yet the body is warm, the greater the comfort, and the more wholesome the condition. A point of great importance in connection with the heating of dwellings is that of humidity of air. The human body is uncomfortable when the surrounding air is either unduly moist or unduly dry. For comfort the percentage of humidity should not fall below thirty.

A last point in connection with house air is this: By day we breathe day air; what shall we breathe by night? Shall we breathe bottled day air, befouled and stale? Let those that may be pursued by the phantom terror of "night air" understand that there is nothing abroad in the air of night different from what is to be found in the air of day save bats, owls and the mosquito. Even the latter, when he is a possibility with malaria-laden sting, is safely barred by a netting at the window. Let, then, the superstition be laid, and when comes bedtime freely put up sash as far as weather will justify, nor fear infection from the silent kiss of the sweet, pure mother of day.

The answer to last Sunday's puzzle is "gold brick." The solution is as follows: "Golf," "sod," "bowl" and "rick" with "fan" and "owl" taken away, leaves "gold brick."

Marconi Wireless
An Established, Operating, Commercial Success
The Best Investment in the World.

We have been continuously telling our customers and friends about Marconi Securities. Every word we have said is coming true and much we did not venture to predict. The American people are now awake to the importance and usefulness of the MARCONI SYSTEM, and the demand for the securities has [illegible] this greatest of [illegible] THE MARCONI WIRELESS NEWS [illegible] application.

To [illegible] made by the Marconi Wireless [illegible] few facts.

The Marconi System has [illegible] enterprise in the world, being adapted to land and sea in every [illegible] every part of the earth's surface.

The business is on an established commercial basis, now earning money every day and [illegible].

Its arrangement with the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies give it the use of their 40,000 offices, covering the United States and Canada, so that a message can be sent from and received in every town and hamlet.

Its Officers and Directors include men of the highest business standing and [illegible], John W. Griggs, President of the Company, and former Governor of New Jersey and ex-Attorney General of the United States, with a strong Board of Directors and [illegible] A. Edison with other leading scientists as Consulting Engineers.

The English Marconi Company, [illegible] American Marconi Wireless [illegible] Company, according to their annual statement, earned

GUGLIELMO MARCONI.

SEVEN PER CENT. NET LAST YEAR.
A remarkable showing for a young company. The American Marconi Company, which is younger, has the advantage of all the English Company's expenditures and is growing rapidly, and with its much larger territory its earnings should be much greater.

IT IS NOW TO THE OCEAN WHAT THE BELL TELEPHONE IS ON LAND and with many times a wider field of operation affords greater opportunity for advance in securities.

One hundred dollars originally invested in Bell Telephone stock now represents $200,000 value.

The [illegible] Bonds or Preferred Stock [illegible] patents of the System in the United States [illegible].

First in the field [illegible] and the widest experience [illegible] like the Bell [illegible].

[illegible] investments, and the Marconi Wireless [illegible] all, as it has [illegible] and wideness of field.

Its stock [illegible] conservative [illegible] America, in [illegible] all classes.

The Marconi System is now in daily operation between both sides of the Atlantic and trans-Atlantic steamships and most war vessels at sea. These securities offer the greatest investment opportunity in the world, and WILL LAY THE FOUNDATION OF YOUR FORTUNE.

Your chance for gain is in finding out that the investment is a good one before everybody else knows it. If Bell Telephone stock were offered now at the price it was sold to original investors, it wouldn't last a minute. $100 invested in Bell Telephone stock in 25 years increased to over $200,000. The only difference between the Bell Telephone opportunity you missed and the MARCONI opportunity you need NOT MISS is in the name. The time to buy is while Marconi stocks are cheap.

The New York "Sun," January 28, 1906, says:
[illegible] have been sent from one [illegible] season. This means [illegible] of more than 2,000 [illegible] New York [illegible] Hamburg the Amerika sent 700 dispatches [illegible]

Now is the time to buy Marconi Securities. To-morrow may be too late. A big demand and an advance in price are at hand.

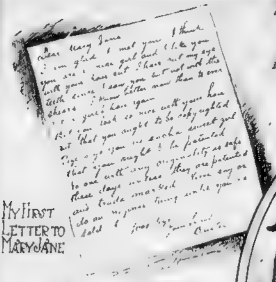
THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY of BUSTER BROWN

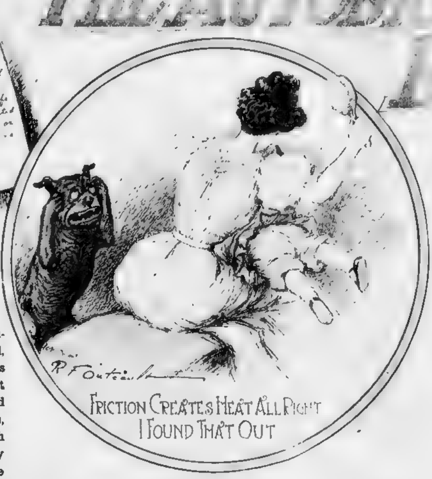
by R. F. Outcault

Copyrighted 1906, by the American Journal Examiner



Dear Mary Jane I think I am glad I met you I like you you are a nice girl and [illegible] my eye with your hair cut I have cut not with the teeth since I saw you but not with the shears I know better now than to ever [illegible] you look so nice with your hair cut that you ought to be copyrighted Tige says you are such a sweet girl that you ought to be patented [illegible] these days unless they are patented and trade marked [illegible] your loving [illegible] Buster

MY FIRST LETTER TO MARY JANE



FRICTION CREATES HEAT ALL RIGHT I FOUND THAT OUT

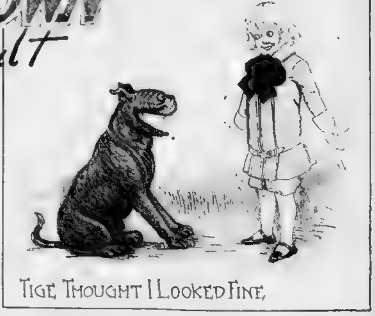
CHAPTER VIII.

The Most Eventful Day in My Sweet Young Life

EVERY day some new and interesting thing happened, but the day of days was when I put on my first suit with breeches. Mind you, I had worn overalls, but never a suit with pants to it. That day was the most eventful one in Buster Brown's sweet young life for more than one reason. You know, at least you may be able to recall, that sensation of pride you felt over your first pants. I experienced that, but more. I received my worst spanking that day, I made my first resolution and met Mary Jane.

You see Mary Jane's parents were born in the same village in which pa was born, and Mary Jane's mother was visiting her mother not very far away from us. So that day they came to spend the day with grandma and us. That was one reason why ma had put on my new suit. When the company arrived I was introduced to Mary Jane, and we were sent out to play together Tige and I took her all around the farm and showed her all the different work we had in hand, and finally came back to the house.

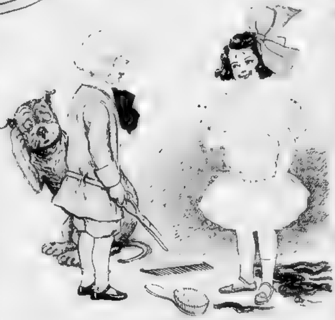
Mary Jane was a very pretty little girl with nice long brown hair. I told her how comfortable my hair felt, cut as it was, and explained to her the advantage of such a hair cut. She said she believed she should like her hair like mine, so I offered to cut it for her. Tige whined a little when I said I would cut her hair, but I didn't realize what he meant. Well, I got the shears and went to work. It turned out to be a pretty good job, but no one thought so until the next day, after they had gotten used to it. Oh, my! why didn't they think so at once?



TIGE THOUGHT I LOOKED FINE

I wonder if every boy gets his new pants fanned the first time he puts them on. Well, I had mine thoroughly massaged at the place where I sat down. It is wrong of parents to spank children, for it is usually done in anger and for revenge and not as a just punishment. Punishment should be inflicted by the laws we violate. If we put our hands in the fire they will be burnt. That is a just punishment.

I found out lots of things about hair that day I didn't know until I had cut Mary Jane's hair, and overheard the ladies talking about it, that there was so much to know about hair. Now I know that a woman's crowning glory is her hair. And it don't have to be HER hair either, just so long as it is HAIR. I know now that the crowning glory of a woman is false hair. Any woman can have beautiful hair that has the price.



"She Was Greatly Pleased with Her Hair Cut."

Woman's hair is a wonderful study Since I have been noticing things I have seen a dingy brown colored head turn to a beautiful golden color over night. I have noticed elderly ladies with streaks of gray and white blossom out some morning with a lovely brown colored head.

Why, even men wear false hair. Mercy, whatever does a man want to do that for? They'll be putting wigs on bald-headed babies next. Ma wears a thing in her front hair they call a rat. I heard them talking about switches and Marcel waves and frizzes and all sorts of funny things. Then they fell to talking about hair tonic. My, but hair is an important thing.

There's lots of different kinds of hair
To wear upon the head.
And some a lovely red.

Some people they have golden locks,
And some a silver white,
But if you've only got the rocks
Your hair will be all right

BUSTER BROWN

(To be continued next Sunday.)

RESOLVED!
THAT I DONT BELIEVE SUICIDE IS A SIN BECAUSE ANYONE WHO CANT BE HAPPY AND SATISFIED WITH THIS BEAUTIFUL WORLD IS CRAZY AND NOT ACCOUNTABLE FOR KILLING HIMSELF. IT IS NT THE WORLD THAT IS WRONG IT IS THE DISPOSITION OF THE SUICIDE. BUSTER BROWN

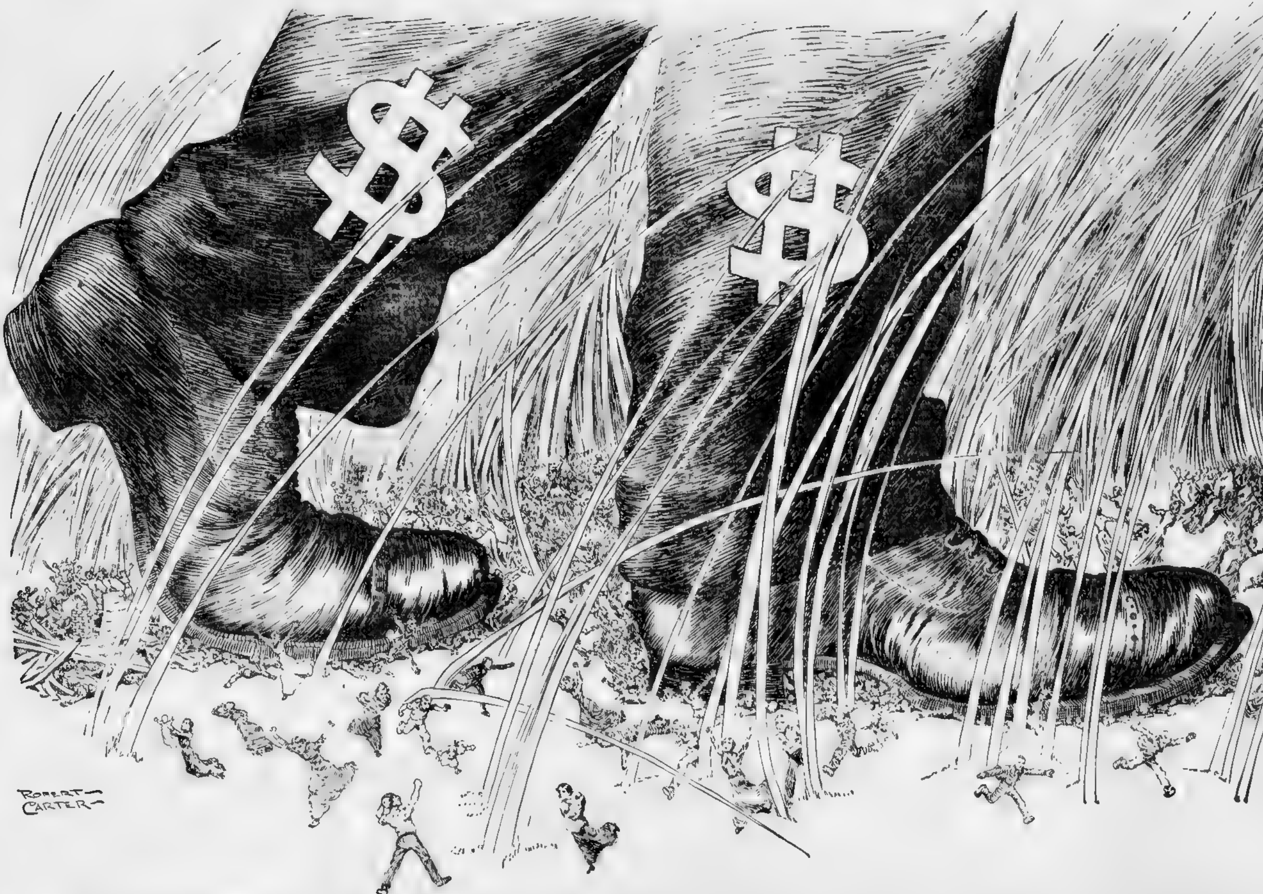
They Don't Know What They Step On



All the More Reason for Fighting the Big Feet AND MAKING THEM TAKE AN INTEREST IN THINGS BELOW

A SAD feature of life, the cause of much misunderstanding, bloodshed and unnecessary suffering, is THE FACT THAT DIFFERENT KINDS OF MEN CANNOT GRASP EACH OTHER'S MOTIVES

Marie Antoinette, who heard that there was a shortage of bread in Paris and then WONDERED WHY THE PEOPLE DID NOT EAT CAKE, had little idea about real conditions, real suffering and poverty.

On the other hand, the maddened population, which cut off the head of the vain, idle, wretched woman and the heads of other women, dragging them through the streets, had no idea of the human nature at the top of their social edifice.

They believed that they were beheading horrible, heartless creatures.

The queen and the king who lost their heads thought that those below them that showed dissatisfaction were wilful disturbers, deliberate complainers without cause

So it is, on a mild scale, in our country.

We have a few enormously powerful men with wealth exceeding that of kings, and influence greater than that of any king living, except the ruler of Turkey, AND, AT INTERVALS, the ruler of Russia

Many thousands of citizens are stepped on, there is bitter complaining, BITTER HATRED.

But the people at the top that step heavily on those below really do not understand what they are doing.

And the people below fail to grasp the motives or to understand the characters of those with whom they deal and through whom they suffer.

When a man of great power arbitrarily increases the price of coal, HE IS ACTING IN ACCORDANCE WITH HIS ANIMAL INSTINCT OF ACQUISITION

He is doing just about what would be done by nine-tenths of those that suffer through his actions

He cannot SEE the families in need He does not SEE the face of the worried mother wondering how she shall save the added price of coal from the little sum set aside for the children or for the father's food.

And the man full of bitter rage forced to pay more for his coal, and then more for his beef, and then more for his rent, and so on all the way through, WHILE HIS OWN INCOME STAYS THE SAME, does not understand the feelings at the top of the machine.

The high price of building steel adds to rent in the big cities.

But the manager of the Steel Trust does not see the family on the sidewalk, with tables, chairs, etc., piled around.

The head of the Beef Trust doesn't even open his eyes to the misery in his OWN wretched manufacturing dens. He has no conception of the sorrow in hundreds of thousands of homes to which his constantly growing prices bring terror.

We live in the great age of industrial organization. A few men seize for themselves entire industries that formerly occupied thousands of proprietors.

The world has never seen such enormous opportunities for making money suddenly. The iron and steel plants of the country are thrown together. Bonds are issued for twice what they are really worth, AND A THOUSAND MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN WATERED STOCK ARE ADDED ON TO THAT.

It is a great stroke for the men that put the stock and the bonds in their pockets.

It means that the little people under the big feet have got to pay interest on all that money, FOREVER - or at least until the LITTLE people become organized intelligently as the BIG ones have become organized

You have often stepped on an ant hill in the garden. You were not HEARTLESS. You were simply out for a walk, a good fast walk. You felt that you must have it, and while you were sorry for the ants you did not feel called upon to stay at home and injure your health to preserve the lives of the little creatures in the tiny homes along your path

So it is with your big financial giants THEY ARE OUT FOR A WALK. AND WHILE THEY ARE SORRY TO STEP ON YOUR HOMES, AND CRUSH YOUR HOPES, they would not feel justified IN INJURING THEIR FINANCIAL HEALTH BY NEGLECTNG TO TAKE THE BIG MONOPOLISTIC WALK.

Those are most blind that are most selfish. Therefore, since the big men with the great sums of money are necessarily made selfish and blind by their interests and opportunities, it is not to be hoped that they will look down and see pityingly and remorsefully what their feet pass over

It is for YOU, for all the little people with their few hundreds or their few thousands a year, to get together and discuss the situation and arrange to protect themselves.

Wild and violent talk is foolish There is no demand for it, no REASON for it.

For, after all, while the giants of the country are IN POWER, as this picture shows them, THEY ARE ACTUALLY ONLY YOUR OWN SIZE MENTALLY AND PHYSICALLY.

You can do whatever you choose in this country when you get ready to do it, when enough of you shall have been stepped upon

You must do your work of organization and co-operation intelligently and calmly, AND ABOVE ALL, WITHOUT THE HASTE AND BAD JUDGMENT THAT COMES OF RAGE AND ANGER

Remember that the big men that organize industries are doing important work.

The men who put railroads between New York and San Francisco steal land and money from the Government, it is true. They oppress farmers on the way, they bribe legislators, judges and governors on the way.

They do a great deal of harm but they do INFINITELY MORE GOOD

The railroads will remain when the thieves are gone. The great highways will be there when the dishonest judges are pulled off the bench and when the dishonest legislators are working in stores or in prison, or resting in the grave

It is absolutely necessary FOR THE INDIVIDUAL TO ORGANIZE BEFORE THE NATION CAN ORGANIZE

The great individual barons had to organize their little brigand armies before the king could come with his saner, wider organization. And the kings had to come and organize and tax and rule BEFORE THE PEOPLE COULD TAKE THE COMPLETED MACHINE AND OWN IT.

It is just so in our industrial life. The great men of industrial genius like Morgan, Rockefeller, Harriman and the others are really rendering a great service to the people of this country, EVEN THOUGH THEY STEP UPON THOUSANDS OF THEM TO-DAY.

They are showing THAT STUPID COMPETITION IS DEAD. They are proving that with competition GONE work can be done better and more economically.

They are taking out of the struggle for existence the vast number of middlemen living l leeches on consumers and producers.

THESE GIANTS PROVE THAT O MIND CAN DIRECT THE ENTIRE RA ROAD SYSTEM OF A NATION, THE E TIRE INDUSTRIES OF A NATION, they are showing the people that they, THE PEOPLE, can take and manage for themselves their wealth and their industries without competition and its shameful cheating and swindling.

This is no plea for tame submission There are ants whose little hills can be stepped upon and crushed, and nothing happens.

There are other ants, in hotter climates, whose hills ARE AVOIDED IN FEAR EVEN BY THE MOST POWERFUL ANIMALS.

There are certain ants whose attack means instant destruction, BECAUSE THEY ARE FEARLESS AND PERFECTLY ORGANIZED. They stick together, think only of the welfare of ALL, and that gives them overwhelming power, no matter how great the individual pitted against them.

The people of this country in time should take on the character of these united, fighting and thoroughly feared little creatures that set us the example in tropical ant hills.

But our work should be done intelligently, JUSTLY, and without hatred or malice. The people must unite in a party DETERMINED THAT THE NATION SHALL OWN THE NATION'S MONOPOLIES. They must realize that the control of a necessity means the control OF LIFE ITSELF.

They must replace panic and hatred with logic and calm reasoning. They must remove the big feet quietly, systematically AND LEGALLY.

They can do this any year they choose. It rests with them to decide how long or how short a time they will permit the big monopolistic feet to walk among them. It is all a question of THOUGHT and EDUCATION

Women! Particularly American Women. By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

DR. F. REICH, who is spoken of [illegible] an English [illegible] as "The [illegible] Historian [illegible] to 'Woman' [illegible]

[illegible]

"She [illegible] of her [illegible] husband [illegible] not [illegible]

Through [illegible] Dr. Reich [illegible] death [illegible] all great [illegible] empires [illegible] woman does [illegible]

"It was [illegible] an em- [illegible] that [illegible] now the British empire is great, but it contains no great men or women.

Again he tells us [illegible] Sparta [illegible] ruined Sparta by becoming too intellectual, too athletic, and the Roman [illegible] by caring for nothing but philosophy [illegible] degeneracy of Rome.

So [illegible] Russia, too [illegible] knows [illegible] woman [illegible] his novel, the Kreutzer Sonata [illegible] the Russian woman [illegible]

The [illegible] Dr. Reich. After [illegible] Queen Elizabeth and Lady Hamilton [illegible]

Queen Elizabeth [illegible] Shakespeare and the Spensers of their time. The English are very proud of Nelson and of Trafalgar, and rightly so. But there would have been no Trafalgar had there been no Lady Hamilton. It was Nelson's love for this woman that [illegible] at Trafalgar. It was his love for Emma that put [illegible] the ardor which brought out that impressive patriotism."

And [illegible] Dr. Reich is growing. What he [illegible] woman [illegible] makes her [illegible] and become his companion and the mother of his children is the foundation of all greatness in the race, the leaven which [illegible] for [illegible] which drives the Shak[illegible] to achievement [illegible] and truth was [illegible] the source of all power.

No nation can produce [illegible] itself in any [illegible] unless the women are endowed [illegible] and are capable of [illegible] and devotion.

No amount of intellect [illegible] can take the place [illegible] attributes, nor can [illegible] developed spiritu[illegible] that is the physical [illegible] product such [illegible] race as one with less [illegible] who is the born mate and [illegible] All this [illegible] the Hungarian evidently means to say, is [illegible]

But he need not journey [illegible] Middle Ages, or even go [illegible] Elizabeth (misnamed the V[illegible]) or to beautiful, sweet, wan [illegible] ton, to find the women or prince [illegible] Not in a lawless Queen or an [illegible] Magdalen is the highest type [illegible] discovered, but in splendid [illegible] mothers right in our modern [illegible]

In America, and in the [illegible] Dr. Reich chooses to call the N[illegible] W[illegible] he will find the complete woman [illegible] passion, love and devotion. A woman may be athletic [illegible] complished, and in touch with progressive ideas of a century [illegible] possess all the attributes [illegible] ing of the perfect wife and mother. The "New Women" of Philadelphia [illegible] the prime movers in the great [illegible] which swept over [illegible] a year ago.

[illegible] members of the [illegible] the weapons of warfare [illegible] dway in keeping [illegible] and in enforcing some [illegible] awakened the wonder[illegible] miration of the men, and when the great movement was organized to drive corruption from the high places, the women were asked for counsel and co-operation. I know some of these women, and know them to be devoted to their families. One mother of a college youth makes her home the centre of all the out-of-college enjoyments in which her son's mates participate, and another hurries home from committee meetings that she may not be absent from the house when her husband, long married, but still her lover, returns from his office.

It is absurd in this age to imagine a woman is devoid of the domestic or maternal instincts because she is occupied with athletics, clubs, politics or philosophy.

With the labor-saving devices which this wonderful era provides for woman, and with the swift methods of locomotion, she has more time to spare, after faithfully attending to all her duties as a wife, a housekeeper and a mother, than her grandmother enjoyed. Think what it meant in the days of Lady Hamilton, for a woman of fine taste to keep clean and well groomed and to enjoy a drive, to say nothing of the labor [illegible] social duties entailed.

Without modern baths, without railroads or trolleys, or telephones or automobiles, the woman of the olden time found the effort to properly fill her niche in the home and in society one which occupied all her time.

It is not to any sexless imp of modernity that we owe the New Woman, who is ubiquitous in these days, but to the inventor, to the electrician and the plumber! In this era Madame C[illegible] finds time, vitality and inclination remaining to be the charmer of men and the entertainer of her children after she has attended to the practical affairs of her household, looked after the neighborhood charities, and dropped into her club, read a paper on political reform and ordered a [illegible] for a ball.

It is true that the American woman has nervous energy, but she has, too, affection, passion, mother love and wifely devotion.

Dr. Reich does not know what he is talking about when he maligns her. In every age it is the exceptional woman who feels and inspires great passions, or incites men to great deeds. Such women exist to-day just as they have always existed, and they will be the mothers of great men in days to come. Who dare say that no infant Shakespeare, Milton or Columbus is being cradled in his mother's arms to-day? And has not this generation given us an Edison, a Gates and a Bell? The great men of this era are the inventors, who are helping humanity to do away with drudgery, and making the path clear for all men and women to belong to 'the leisure class.'

Any hour, any moment, the wireless message may be sent over the world that a great genius has arisen, and given his fellow men the secret of air navigation, that another has perfected a method of utilizing the sun's rays for fuel, and that another has found a substitute for cooked food which gives pleasure to the palate and sustenance to the body, and forever does away with the world's slavery to the body's needs. These are the great men who will be brought forth by noble mothers before many generations pass.

And still another wonderful man may be announced to us at any moment, one who has scientifically demonstrated the communication of a disembodied with an embodied spirit.

All these things are possible, even probable, even imminent.

We may have no great warriors, no great poets, no great composers among us at this epoch, but never were there so many wonderful people in the world at any one time as at the present. Never was there such promise of the most remarkable discoveries of all time!

Listen, wait!

A Trip to Sirius

A VOYAGE ON A SHIP OF SPACE

By Prof. Garrett P. Serviss

YES, [illegible] the [illegible] of the Sirian world [illegible] I have spoken [illegible] drop down [illegible] the strange planet [illegible] land [illegible] air is crowded with living beings and things of wonderful shapes and aspects. [illegible] to describe [illegible] no counterpart upon the world of his birth [illegible] we had [illegible] spent a large part [illegible] earth men believed that they had solved the problem of navigating the terrestrial [illegible] after all what [illegible] set before us [illegible] our [illegible]

a [illegible] luxurious breeze that has slept upon flowers, and whose touch fills the senses with delight. There is not only sweetness and softness in this strange air but melody also. It is instinct with æolian strains. The rays of Sirius, a sun in the heyday of solar youth and strength, not only warm and vivify the atmosphere of this world that we have come to visit, but also set all its aerial chords into harmonious vibration, which fall upon the ear as a low, exquisite, penetrating, pervading and yet not disturbing music. Other sounds are not obscured, on the contrary they are beautified and rendered more mellifluous by the [illegible] that transmits them.

A platform [illegible] down outside the door, and at the captain's behest we step out to revel more freely in the splendor and the [illegible] that surround us. Oh, that a Milton were here to write down these things, for to what height of expression would not a poet like this attain under these [illegible] and [illegible] of the beams of Sirius!

The air, as I have said, is populous with moving creatures, but how to describe them? Presently [illegible] of the [illegible] motionless car. Their movements [illegible] undulous, gentle, rhythmic [illegible] effected by means of [illegible] that sparkle like [illegible] gold, while the general [illegible] altogether [illegible] of magnificently [illegible] or perhaps better a [illegible] ant butterflies.

[illegible] draw nearer the [illegible] aerial [illegible] which struck [illegible] were remote, become [illegible] and in some way that [illegible] express the evidences of [illegible] in their looks and [illegible] everything else. They [illegible] superior to birds or butterflies, though possessing a certain bond of resemblance to them, as the most beautiful woman or the most hu[illegible] is superior to an [illegible] It is evident that here evolution has chosen a different line from that which it has followed on the earth. This is an aerial world and the physical forms suited to such an environment have been exalted to a degree of perfection in function and beauty that no words can picture. Our artists have striven to combine the bird and the human in their representation of angels, but the union of incongruous elements however skillfully managed never gives a satisfying and convincing result. Here nature has followed a different course and simply developed the aerial creatures along the lines suggested by their own fundamental structure. But to a certain extent she has made a combination, also, for there is something of the fish as well as of the bird in these Sirian beings. The atmosphere is much more dense than ours, while at the same time the materials of their bodies possess little specific gravity, so that in spite of the vast bulk of the world beneath them its gravitation is not sufficient to bring them down to the surface. They both fly and float.

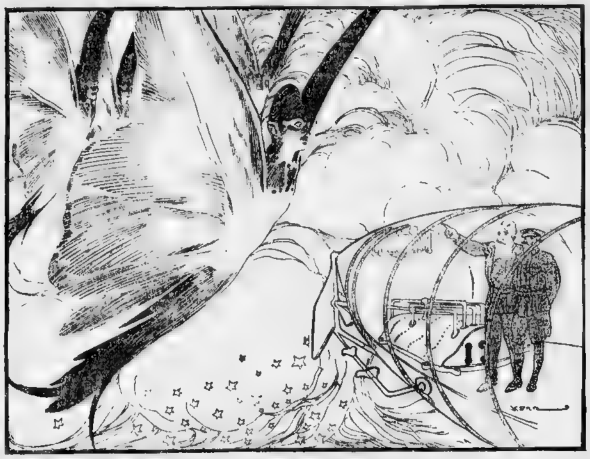
But again I must try however ineffectively to give an idea of their appearance. Their eyes are enormous, but unlike the eyes of any creature upon the earth. It is perfectly evident that these eyes do more than see. There is something in their appearance, something in the way they are managed, which convince one immediately that they convey to the brains of their possessors information of quite a different kind from any derived through our sense of sight or through any of our other senses. They are sensitive to radiations that escape us. Sirius is a sun pouring forth an abundance of ultra-violet rays, and these rays are perceived by the creatures who dwell in his light. To a greater or less extent they must possess the power of X-ray vision.

I experience a shrinking conviction of this fact as soon as one of the Sirians (for how else shall I call them) fixes his attention upon me. Instinctively I make a motion as if to cover myself like a surprised bather, for I feel that I am the object of a curious inspection which includes the internal organs of my body! I perceive a gesture of the Sirian which attracts the regard of one of his companions to me, and what I may describe as a smile—something, at least, that has the effect of a smile—appears upon their—"faces," a smile rather of intelligent and awakened curiosity than of simple amusement, while they examine me through and through, doubtless watching the beating of my heart and the coursing of the blood through the veins and arteries—a physical mechanism so different from their own.

Yet their manners are most gentle and attractive. A high intellectuality shines in them, an unexpressed sense of superiority. They are most cordial in what we cannot but interpret as their greetings to us. There is an urbanity, a perfection of civilization in their bearing, that produces upon our minds an effect as irresistibly and delightfully pleasing as that which their atmosphere and the rays of their great sun have wrought upon our physical being. And we, too, in some degree, share the exalting effects of this strange environment, for our senses have become more acute and we even feel indications of new powers of perception growing within us. That heightening of the faculties which we experienced when first the rays of Sirius streamed strongly into our approaching car has now become more manifest. We feel that these gloriously beautiful creatures are speaking to us, a language without words or sounds, which vibrates in our brains and would be clearly understood were the structure of our cerebral cells sufficiently fine and properly attuned.

"Be patient," says the captain. "Wait a little and you will begin to understand them."

And then—!



"The air is crowded with living beings and things of wonderful shapes and aspects."

CALLINE SIMPKINS [illegible] is gwine to marry B[illegible] month, [illegible] took [illegible] older day [illegible] an' ax [illegible]

down [illegible]

Sis Mirandy [illegible] de holy estate [illegible] prognos[illegible] far as I k[illegible] fightin' to rule de roost, is mo' lak a battle ground. Now I done cas' my eye around 'mongst de folks I know, an' I takes notice dat you is de [illegible] woman [illegible] has got de politest husband [illegible] of my 'quaintance, an' dat what Pete [illegible] ain't to say henpecked he w[illegible] meek [illegible] when you is around [illegible] fellow woman to anodder, I axes you how do you do hit?'

"'Shoo,' I spon's, [illegible] manage a husband ef you knows how.'

"'Maybe not,' says she, 'but from de mess dat mos' women makes of hit, I should jedge dat dere is a lot of howsomeverness 'bout hit.'

"'Callie,' says I, 'I ain't one of dese heah women what's always a-handin' out advice [illegible] for [illegible] an' [illegible] down people's [illegible] of [illegible] take hit no other [illegible] how de Good Book commands [illegible] de word in season [illegible] how any woman [illegible] gittin' her weddin' clothes ready sho'ly [illegible] in need of a little counsel, 'bout de tribulations she's gwine into, I sorter feels hit my duty to give you a few pints.

"'An' dey is dis: Get off on de right foot. Dat's de whole of de law an' de gospel, as Brer [illegible] says. Ev'ything depends on de start you make when you is fust married. Ef you takes yo' seat on de top of de ladder, dar you'll s[illegible] an' yo' husband will stand down at de bo[illegible] an' look up an' admire you.

"'But ef you takes a seat down [illegible] of de ladder a-thinkin' dat he'll boost you up [illegible] dat maybe after awhile you'll climb [illegible] de time dat you tries to [illegible] he'll grab you by de petticoats an' pull you back.

"'For a man don't think no mo' of [illegible] dan she thinks of herself. An' he believes her when she tells him herself, 'specially [illegible] dey is married, 'caze after a man's marr[illegible] woman he's ready to swallow anything [illegible] she says dat don't call for no argyment [illegible] kinder ca'm an' peaceable lak.

"'What makes Ike think dat I is de [illegible] economical woman in de world? Becaze I'se always a-showin' him de bargains I buys [illegible] de [illegible] dat I gits tucked in on I [illegible] de [illegible] an' keeps mum 'bout hit.

"'What makes Ike think dat his guardian angel must a been a wukkin' overtime when he married me? Becaze I'se always [illegible] what a good wife I is, an' how I saved him from marryin' Sally Smothers, what [illegible] or Henrietta Jenkins, what is de [illegible] cook in town, or Susanna Jones, what is so shiftless dat she don't clean up her house from year's eend to year's eend.

"'Yassum, a woman suttinly does write her own price tag for her husband, an' hit [illegible] to see dem gumps of wives [illegible] always a-beggin' an' a-prayin' deir husbands to overlook somethin' dat dey did, dat d[illegible] never would have found out ef dey hadn't been told. Dat's de good of bein' married to a man instead of bein' engaged to him—yo' husband don't look close enough at you to see what you does do.

"'Yassum, dere ain't nothin' lak gittin' off on de right foot when you is married. In ev'y fambly dere's one dat is hit, an' de odder one dat ain't. Dere's one dat's got ways, an' dere's de odder one dat's got to put up wid de ways. Dere's [illegible] dat's got to have de lean piece [illegible] de pork [illegible] de odder [illegible] got to eat de [illegible] de dish. Dere's one dat's got to have [illegible] clothes an' set in de front [illegible] whilst de odder kind sets 'way back under de gallery, what folks can't see how many times deir clothes has been cleaned an' how many patches dey's got on 'em.

"'An' dat's de one dat gits de runnin' start when dey is married dat leads de procession all de way through. What happens in dem families whar de wife 'nounces from de start dat she never has done any hard wuk, an' don't never expect to, an' dat she's got to have a silk frock, an' dat she is blessed wid nerves dat has got to be took care of? Don't de husband git up in de mawnin', an' cook de breakfast, an' den hustle out to make de money, an' den walk lak he was walkin' on eggs round home so as not to disturb her? Dat he does.

"'An' what happens when a woman marries one of dese heah uppity, consequential, big talkin' men dat has always got to be wearin' a silk hat, an' a tail coat, an' a s'ciety badge in his buttonhole, an' dat's forever a-marchin' in de procession, an' a-totin' de corpses out at de funeral, but dat is too fibble to follow de plow, or sling de hammer in de carpenter shop? Don't his wife take in washin' to support de fambly, an' shoo de chillen out o' de back do' so dey won't make any noise an' spile his nap in de daytime? Dat she does.

"'An' dat's de reason, when I turned dem things over in my mind, dat de mawnin' after I was married I poured myself out de first cup of coffee, an' took the brownest biscuit an' de breast of de chicken. An' Ike, he's been pass'n' 'em on to me ever sence. I ain't greedy, an' I'd lak to give 'em to Ike once in a while, but I dassent do hit, for de only way a woman kin git anything is for her to make her husband believe dat she's 'bleedged to have it. Ef he once finds out dat she kin do without hit, she's a goner.

"'An' hit's de same way 'bout dem little [illegible] dat will crop up in de fambly circle. [illegible] dere ain't no woman dat don't make mistakes; but, thank Gord, men do, too, an' a smart woman always lights into her husband for somethin' he's done befo' he gets a chanst to get after her. Now, when I'se been downtown an' I'se spent de money dat I oughter paid de butcher wid for a Spring bonnet, I sails into Ike 'bout de way he segashuated around Ma' Jane Jones at de chu'ch sociable, an' I gits so much madder dan he is, an' talks so much faster, dat he forgits de remarks he was gwine to make to me 'bout dat butcher bill.

"'Yassum, da's so: des give me fust word, an' I don't care who has de las'—ef dere is any las' when I gits through.

"'Yassum, hit's all in gittin' a good start, an' gittin' off on de right foot when you're married. De reason dat dere is so many po', downtrodden, [illegible] neglected wives is becaze when a girl is just married she's so tickled at havin' a husband an' so grateful to de man dat kept her from bein' a ole maid, dat she takes a back seat, an' den by de time dat she finds out dat she ain't got so much to be thankful for after all, hit's too late. Her husband is done got settled in de king cheer, an' he's so comfortable she can't git him out.

"'Nawm. Hit's all in de start, an' any woman dat don't keep her husband [illegible] apologizin' for his shortcomings dat he ain't got time to notice hers don't deserve to have one. Dat's all.'"

You know vot is it?

An onion saengerfest party is vare a bunch of peoples get togedder in do efening und spill a lot of cheap songs ofer der [illegible] until dey vork up a appetite for eferyding [illegible] in der wicinity.

I don'd know vare der onion comes in, Looey, but I think dot vas meant as a [illegible] of reproach.

Dare vas present your mudder und your married sister, Elsie, und her husband, Fred Hauptgarten, vich vas here mit us on a wisit from Milvaukee; und your Uncle Oscar Schmittberger und his second vife, und Ludvig Beerhaben und his stationary vife, und Gust Schmalz und Lena Bauer und her fader by her fairst marriage, und Mr. und Mrs. Goofberger of Staten Island, yet.

Eferyding started off all right mit der eggseception of your Uncle Oscar vich insisted upon singing der svan song from Lohengrin, but his idea of a svan vas so much like a turkey gobbler dot much misery loved our company.

"How'd you like a little poetry?" he said brightly.

"What have you got?" we inquired.

"Gaze on this."

Hail! Thou [illegible]
Enemy of [illegible]
Soon thou'll be [illegible]
Of many a bitter pen,
When from the Jersey tidelands [illegible] again

Soon we'll hear thee coming
Through the sultry night,
Murmurously humming
Forth thy shrill delight
At driving us half mad, thou predator [illegible]!

When with heart malicious
Thou send'st home thy sting
We will aim a vicious
Wallop at thee: Bing!
And curse to see thee fly unharmed [illegible] song.

We have sought to drive thee
From our homes away,
Labored to deprive thee
Of thy luckless prey,
But still thou multipliest ten [illegible]

In the hope to choke thee,
And thy purpose foil,
We have tried to soak thee
In tons of Standard Oil,
And thou hast sneered at us, and [illegible]

For supreme persistence
And inspired gall,
And tireless resistance
To law, thou insect small

Thou mak'st a trust to look like nothing [illegible]
Teach me half the cunning
Thou hast always found
Available for running
Men's schemes into the ground,
And I will make some folks sit up [illegible] look around

"Anything else?" we asked.

"Why, of course. Consider this."

The Ghost.

Down yonder by the river
At the pasture gate, alone
My brother Henry William
Saw a great, big, horrid [illegible]
He sat a-grinning awful
On a rotten maple log
And Bill he says his heir
Was only made of fog.
And I [illegible] bet a dollar
That he was [illegible] last night
And that's the explanation
Why my Bill's hair's [illegible] white

"Any others?"

"Yes. Try this."

We tried.

The Lady with the Muck Rake.

Maud Tarbell, on a Summer's day,
(Her name was Ida, by the way
But we must call her Maud, [illegible] she Could not be in this parody.)
Maud Tarbell so the tale be [illegible]
(We think [illegible] pronounced Tarbelle,
But we must [illegible] words,
Or else omit her from this song.)

Maud Tarbell (now our gait we've struck)
Raked in the oil fields, black with muck;

Raked high, and low, and fore and aft,
And heaped up windrows full of graft.

John D. leaned lankly o'er the fence,
Arrayed in jeans and innocence.

Quoth he: "This muck-strewn field forsake
And lay aside that loathsome rake."

But Maud, with sure and steady aim,
Kept right on raking, just the same

Said John: "I hope you won't rake me;
My life is led in piety,

Don't rake around my humble cot,"
But Maud serenely said: "That's what."

And calmly raked a few more lines,
Till John was tangled in the tines

John seldom swears, but after that
His friends o'erheard him mutter, "Drat!

Of all the words that bring bad luck
The saddest are these: 'Folks will rake muck.'"

"Is that the last?"

"Oh, no; here's another. Read it!"

He dident cum to this country til one time he was axidently drew up in a ole oken bucket. Johnny, that man is so trufle that wen he ses a thing is so, wy, it wudent be any more so if he rote it down in black and white and swore to it fore a bold heded notery. He is so trufle that his wurd is werth its wate in gold. He is so trufle that he faces east when he wants to tel a lie north west. Do you remember that story of bisen about the bear?

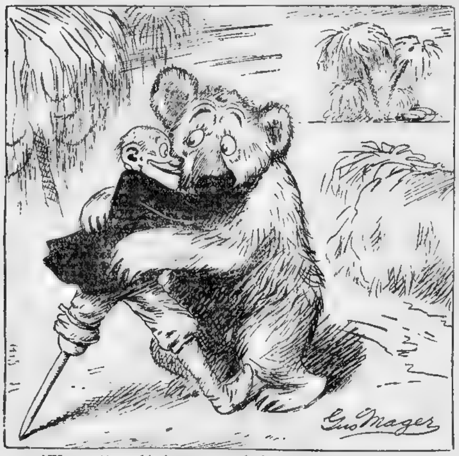
Mister Jonnice he jest [illegible] up his wood leg and [illegible] it out strait tord the lion, and at the sicolodgickle moment thrushed it down its throte, and that monerk of the desserts spirrit winged its way to a uther and bitter wurld fourth with. Mister Jonnice he says that was the ferst step in his career as a lion tamer. Tween me and you, Johnny, I dont think he has ever took the seckund.

Seeh, my boy, is Mister Jonnice, but the rhi foozle jusky is diferent. It inhabbits the crags of the Ganges, and its rore is herd to a grate distance wen all is stil and the natif niggers play poker in the gloaming. Its teeths [illegible] as plenty as the leafs of the forrest wen summer is green and the shine of its [illegible] as moon beems on the woters. Wen it sees [illegible] head above the horizzon a shade is flang [illegible] the land and the chickins go to [illegible] tumultchus. It is a six legger, each having a bras hoof, and the sound of its feetsteps is like the clang of bells wen the fier feend is abrod in a grate city. Bewair, Johnny, bewair the rhi foozle jusky, for it is cruler than the butcher bizness and pizen as the grave. Wen it points its nose yure way yure muther wants to se you nitty bad and yure legs [illegible] redy for to parform thair office. Much more mote he sed but I se ole Gaffers Peters a cumin over to have a smoke with me, and I ges He go out behine the barn and plant sum tobacko.

But Billy he says its no fair running away and the Bible commands us to stand fast in the our of trial and run fast wen truble cum[illegible]th. And thats wy I sa deers is the king of beest.



"Wy, darling, this is a unexpecked pleshure; wen did you cum to town?"

A Picture with Two Sides. ☙ ☙ ☙ ☙ By Winifred Black

A WELL-KNOWN Denver preacher has started [illegible] against what he [illegible] greatest enemies of the American race—flats and women's clubs.

"No woman who finds her club more interesting than her [illegible] good wife," says the Denver preacher; "and no woman who prefers to live in a flat when she could just as well live in a house is a good mother."

I wonder whether American women ought to be blamed for not living in their own homes?

The vast majority of American families either rent houses or [illegible] flats.

The first thing a foreigner does when he gets a little money in the bank is to buy a home with it. I wonder who is to blame for the American [illegible] home?

The woman or the man?

No matter who is to blame, there is no question as to who has to suffer for it—the children are the ones to do that. I was talking to a woman I know about this the other day, and she said: "Well, what of it? If I prefer a flat to a house I don't see why I should give up the flat just because my children could have a little more fun living in a house."

"Who are my children, anyway, that I should give up my whole life, making sacrifices for them? I give up enough for them as it is?

"I look ten years older to-day than I would if I had no children at all, and I know I feel fifty years older than my sister who has none.

"She goes to bed at night and sleeps; there's no baby with the croup to keep her awake; she takes a nap in the afternoon, why not?

"There are no youngsters in her house to be kept out of mischief.

"If she and her husband want to go out to dine, or to the theatre they never have to think twice about it. My husband and I, oh, we have to think three or four times before we can venture to leave the children alone with a heedless nurse.

"When I ought to be reading I'm mending stockings.

"When I ought to be going over some of my music I'm keeping peace between the two [illegible] get ones and trying to plan [illegible] to give the eldest daughter a little [illegible] this year [illegible] daughter [illegible]

"I [illegible] get a little [illegible] the sort of [illegible] I don't see why I shouldn't [illegible]

"I can't understand what there is about [illegible] children that makes them so much [illegible] to be considered than I am.

"When is my time going to come [illegible]

"I never did it when I was a child. My father and mother were the old-fashioned sort of people, who lived as they thought best, and let us get along somehow.

"When there was chicken for dinner they got the white meat and we got the second joint; if there wasn't enough for that we made out on bread and milk.

"When there was company downstairs we youngsters kept still upstairs, or else we heard some news about it when the company had gone.

"We didn't get the sunniest rooms in the house: father and mother took them, and the aunts and grandmothers got what was left over.

"Any old thing was good enough for the children's room, and we never thought of feeling abused, either.

"My children expect to have the best of everything going; if there aren't enough fresh strawberries to go around, why, I'm the one that must take apple pie for dessert.

"I don't see when my time to be 'it' is ever going to come in unless I take it right now, do you?

"I like a flat and I'm fond of my clubs, and I don't see why I should give up what little pleasure I can get out of life for the sake of four of the best-hearted little rascals in the world, who will run away and leave me the first minute they get big enough to fall in love, do you?"

That's one way to look at it, isn't it? The woman who looks at it this way is a good woman, too, and I don't know but what there is something to be said on her side of the question, after all, perhaps.

This talk of the children who are such a bond between man and wife is all very well—in a play. It sounds so pretty when the leading lady steps into the limelight and points to a cradle and says:

"That, sir, is the tie that binds many a woman to a worthless husband."

The plain fact of the matter is that children do not hold a man and wife together.

If a man and wife are still in love with each other at the end of ten years of marriage, it is in spite of the fact that they have children, and not because of them.

It makes you awfully fond of a man to have him walk the floor with a croupy baby, but it doesn't make you fall in love with him.

The woman with a lot of children to care for hasn't as much time to devote to her husband as she might have, and there is more than one husband in the world who is miserably jealous of his own children.

That's at first—after a while he gets used to sitting alone while mother sings to the baby or ties up Johnny's sore finger or helps Susie with her lessons and by the time the children are up and out of the way husband has learned how to amuse himself very pleasantly without his wife's society at all, and the mother, who has given up everything for her children, finds herself—alone—given up by them and by her husband, too.

A good mother is a beautiful thing; a good wife is a loving creature, but, after all, is it not sometimes essential to be a happy woman, too?

As for me and my house, I wouldn't live in a flat if you'd give me the whole of Manhatan Island to get me to do it.

I'd rather have a little two-room shack in Chinatown, with a foot or two of dirt in front for my sweet peas and an inch or two of dirt in the back for my nasturtiums and a little old tumble-down porch for the puppy to play on, than to own the most magnificent residence in New York if I had to live in that residence the year round to own it. But the woman in this case is built on different lines.

She happens to like to live in a flat. Is she a criminal for doing it?

SOCIETY TO ENTERTAIN FOR FRISCO SUFFERERS

BY A SOCIETY WOMAN

CHARITY [illegible] note to which [illegible] will be keyed for weeks to come, and for its sweet sake the world-fashionable is busy planning functions innumerable and brilliant.

To the call for aid that comes ringing across the continent from the stricken city of the west, now heroically struggling to its feet, there is promise of unfailing response in Boston. From the fair young members of the Vincent Club, who have declared themselves ready to "dance till they drop," to the stately matrons who vow they are willing to entertain, conduct bazaars and flower sales, to the point of weariness and the moment of leaving town, the socially elect have rushed into relief work and, lost in "love's labor," are finding solace supreme in [illegible]

The Call to the Country.

TO the insistent call of the country, society is responding earlier and in greater numbers than during any previous season and from out the ranks of the ultra fashionables who have touched and tired of the other extreme, the simple life is claiming countless devotees. Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lawrence of the Tuileries and their daughter, Mrs. Frank A. Higgins of Commonwealth avenue, left town Thursday for their summer home at Marblehead Neck. Mrs. John L. Gardner, who gave the last of her private entertainments at Fenway Court last Monday evening, has taken possession of her magnificent suburban estate, Green Hill, in Brookline, where she will spend the greater part of the Summer.

During the visit at Newport the coming season of the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe Mrs. Gardner will be the guest there of Mrs. Robert M. Cushing.

The Footes to "Greystone Farm."

MR and Mrs. Arthur Edward Foote, who, last week, arrived from an extended absence in Europe, are now at their country estate, "Greystone Farm," at Dover. Mrs. Davis, who was before her marriage Mary Cheney, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin P. Cheney of Marlboro street, is one of the most delightful of the Norfolk Hunt Club matrons and does much entertaining throughout the Summer at their beautiful Dover home. Mr. Davis, besides being a member of the Norfolk Hunt, is identified with the Union, Country, Eastern Yacht and numerous other clubs.

Engagement a Pleasing Surprise.

SOCIETY gasped in pleased astonishment Wednesday, when, at a luncheon at her home in Chestnut street, the engagement of fair Frances Eliot Foote to the Rev. Louis Craig Cornish, minister of the First Parish Church, Hingham, was made known to a few intimates, who immediately proceeded to whisper the good news about.

Miss Foote is the daughter of the late Rev. Henry Wilder Foote, for many years minister of King's Chapel; a sister of the Rev. Henry Wilder Foote of New Orleans, and a favorite niece of President Eliot of Harvard University.

She is of exquisite blonde coloring and fine physique, which, added to the charm of her rare personality, makes her popular to a most flattering degree.

Mr. Cornish graduated from Harvard College in 93, and later from the Harvard Divinity School. The wedding will be an event of the early Autumn.

Brides of the Week to Come.

FOREMOST among the brides of the coming weeks will be Miss Martha Cabot Storrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Storrow of High street, Brookline, who to-morrow afternoon, at 3 30, will wed Dr Francis Parkman Denny, of Upland Road, Harvard '91. Miss Storrow has elected to have her wedding a quiet home affair.

The ceremony, which is to be performed by the Rev. Dr. Lyon and Dr. DeNormandie, will be followed by a small reception to a few intimate friends and relatives.

The bride-to-be will wear a princess gown of rich white satin, embellished with much real lace. She will have no attendants.

After a wedding tour of several weeks, which, it is rumored, will include a trip to Europe, the young couple will reside in Brookline in the handsome house which is to be Mr. Storrow's wedding gift to his daughter.

FOLK OF FASHION AT SOCIETY WEDDINGS

Miss Ruth Whitney and Herbert Lyman, Mrs. Alma H. Hopkins and Melville W. Sawyer.

Amid a [illegible] floral display in the First Parish Church of Brookline one of the most fashionable of the weddings of the year took place Thursday noon, when Miss Ruth Whitney, [illegible] daughter of Mr and Mrs Henry M Whitney of Brookline became the bride of Herbert Lyman, Harvard, '86, and a member of the Country, Somerset, St. Botolph and other clubs.

The bride was gowned in a magnificent Driscoll creation of white satin and real lace. She was escorted to the chancel by her father, the bridal party passing under an arch of asparagus vine, supported by a network of white satin ribbon. The chancel was a mass of bay tree foliage and flowers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Laura Whitney, sister of the bride, and Miss Isabel Morrison, both of whom were in old pompadour, princess gowns with the skirts bordered in pink flower design and berthas of cluny. They wore white hats, trimmed with small pink roses and forget-me-nots.

The best man was Arthur Lyman, and the ushers were R. T. Lyman, J. A. L. Blake, James S. Whitney, a brother of the bride; George B. Morrison, Richard Sears, Richard Cabot and Dr R. C. Cabot.

At the Whitney mansion, "Whitney Steps" where the reception was held, the rooms were filled with Spring flowers for which the large conservatories of the estate furnished the greater part.

The father and mother of the bride assisted in receiving. Mrs. Whitney was charming in a filet lace gown made princess and a directoire coat of applique lace in chrysanthemum design. She wore a Leghorn hat banded with violet velvet and laden with rich creamy ostrich plumes.

Among those at the breakfast were Mrs. John Pennington Gardner, Miss Josephine Whitney, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock of New York, Mrs. Charles Frederick Lyman, Miss Annie Lyman, Mrs. John Lowell, Mrs. George Lee and Miss Marie Lee, Miss Alice Sohier and number of people of prominence in Boston and Brookline social circles.

Trinity Church was the scene of a picturesque noon wedding Thursday, when Mrs. Alma Helen Hopkins of 1855 Beacon street, Brookline, daughter of Mrs. M. W. Roberts, became the bride of Mr Melville Woodbury Sawyer of Hotel Westminster, son of Mrs. Melville Sawyer and former president of the Metaphysical Club of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann.

Mr. Robert F. Curtis of this city was best man. The bride wore a hand-embroidered princess gown of pale blue liberty satin. The bodice was draped with a deep flounce of duchesse and rose point lace, being finished at neck with a dog collar of pearls and diamonds. The full skirt was inset with blue velvet ribbon in Grecian design. The hat was a dainty creation of fine white valenciennes lace, with long blue and white ostrich plumes drooping low on the hair. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Katherine Squire, the little ten-year-old cousin of the bride. Her gown was of sheer white batiste with insets and edging of Valenciennes lace. She wore a lingerie hat of hand-embroidered lace and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas.

The ushers were Mr George W. Roberts, brother of the bride, Mr. John P. Squire, Dr. [illegible] Mr. [illegible] Dr. F. A. [illegible], Dr. H. H. [illegible].

The bride was given away by her son, Mr. F. [illegible] Hopkins.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party at the Hotel Westminster. In September Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer will make the Hotel Westminster their residence.

Mrs. Tully is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Robinson Kennedy. Mr. Tully is a graduate of the Yale Law School and a member of the Yale Club of New York, Graduates Club of New Haven and University Club of Boston.

ENGAGEMENTS THAT INTEREST BOSTON

Miss Eleanor Little to Wed Mr. Talbot Aldrich, a Harvard '92 Man.

AN epidemic of late Spring debutante engagements has been predicted, and as they are an especially attractive lot of young girls it is more than likely that the prediction will be fulfilled. They are at present in a flutter of excitement over the announcement from Paris of the engagement of their charming sister bud Miss Eleanor Little, to Mr. Talbot Aldrich, and speculations as to who shall be next are keen. Miss Little is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Little of Chestnut street, Salem, and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Kimball of Commonwealth avenue, with whom she is now traveling in Europe. Miss Eleanor and her sister, Miss Rosamond Little, were among the most prominent debutantes of the Winter and were introduced by Mrs. Kimball first at an "at home" and later at a ball at the Somerset. The catchy and tuneful music of the opera was composed by Miss Rosamond Lang, who conducted the orchestra herself, except for one of the dances, when Miss Elizabeth Porter took the baton.

Miss Georgetta Parks, daughter of the Rev. Leighton Parks, wrote the book and evolved a singularly interesting little love plot centering around the "Merry Marquis," a handsome young nobleman of the time of the early Georges, and his cousin, Lady S[illegible] Hart, between whom a marriage had been arranged by their respective parents, long since dead.

But "born Lady S[illegible]" [illegible] perverse [illegible] fall in love with an humble maid, pretty and demure, than with one of his own [illegible] ink masquerades [illegible] and completely captivates the Merry Mar[illegible].

Miss Phyllis Robbins made a most winsome Peggy and Miss Julia Shewell a most ardent and [illegible] Marquis.

The postilion girls, led by M[illegible] S[illegible] was a most amusing [illegible] itself.

There was a clever "take off" on the horse show and the hobby horse did some [illegible] of laughter and [illegible].

Ushers in White Caps.

Among them were Miss Dorothy Forbes, head usher, Misses Minna Lyman, Anne Lindsay, Elizabeth Shattuck, Mary Per[illegible], Margaret [illegible] W[illegible], M[illegible] S[illegible], [illegible] Ruth Law[illegible], Sarah Lawrence, Mildred Stimson, Elizabeth Devens, Margaret Jackson, Adeline Hooper, Ellen Dalton, Alice Sohier, Nannie Windsor, Dorothy Bolles, Rosamond Saltonstall, Marjorie Thayer, Caroline King, Mary Bigelow, Mabel Daniels, Eleanor Ea[illegible], [illegible] M[illegible], Mary Ayer, [illegible] Burnett, Molly Hall, Dorthy Coburn, Ethel Sparks, Margaret Perkins, Constance Bacon.

The committee in charge consisted of the president of the club, Miss Hannah Stevenson, assisted by Misses Rosamond Lang, Adeline Hooper, Elizabeth Porter, Abigail Adams, Ethel Forbes. Miss Rosamond Dixey was property manager, assisted by Miss Emily Lockwood, and the costumes were designed by Miss Ethel Forbes.

R. A. Barnet was stage manager, and Miss Isabel Florence taught the dancers, excepting Miss Dorothy Jordan and Miss Ma[illegible] Winthrop, who were taught by Mrs. Lila Viles Wyman.

Incidental to the telling of the story [illegible] ning dances and witty [illegible] Phyllis Robbins as "Peggy" had two [illegible] and the merry marquis. Miss Julia [illegible] "My Heart," [illegible] came with Peggy's piquant and know[illegible] difference there is between the way of a man with a maid and of a maid with a man. In all that he did [illegible] constant [illegible].

Then there was another lover, "Sir Thomas," played by Miss Priscilla Stackpole, and, though his heart was true to the [illegible] Lindsay, [illegible] by easy [illegible] whom he [illegible] of these [illegible] Thayer, [illegible] a flower swing made a picture good to see.

The principals in the cast were: The Merry Marquis, Miss Julia Shewell; Peggy, his sweetheart, who masquerades as a poor relation, Miss Phyllis Robbins; [illegible], Miss Susan Thayer; Sir Thomas, Miss Priscilla Stackpole; Lady S[illegible], Miss [illegible] Lindsey.

Among the catchy songs were "My Heart, My Own Sweet Heart," "Mr. Man and Mistress Maid" and "Peggy is a Simple Maid." The dancing was a special feature.

Miss Olivia Thorndike, as the Spirit of the Fountain, gave a fine serpentine number. The ballet of the roses, by Misses Dorothy Fay, Barbara Higginson, Margaret Stearns, Louise Brown, Edith Rotch, Mollie Eliot, Caroline Merriam and Gertrude Bement, ended in a beautiful tableau in the form of a rose and electrically lighted arch, from beneath which Miss Dorothy Jordan danced out on to the stage like a [illegible]. Another fetching number was the French pantomime dance by Misses Dorothy Dexter and Hattie Jacques, dressed as Pierrot and Pierrette. Among the other dancers whose work was notable are Misses Mollie Adams, Elsie Brennan, Mollie Eliot, Hilda M[illegible], Constance Cunningham, Harriet Cunningham, Seveta Lincoln, Marion Browne and Caroline Gay.

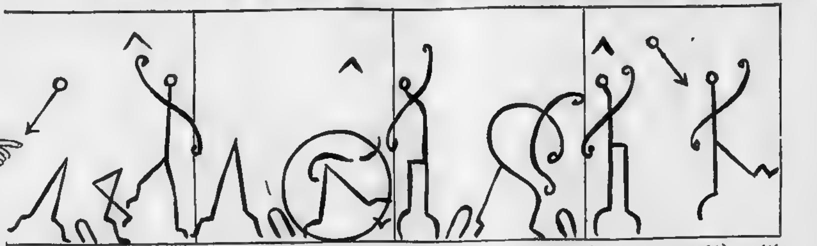
ALAN DALE DISCUSSES DANCING WITH A BALLET MASTER



"Oddly enough the science of choreography---that is to say the stenographic writing of dancing---is still progressing. It is an old science, but it has been developed to-day by Zorn. Shall I write you down a Spanish dance?"

Copyright 1902 by [illegible]

Her feet beneath her petticoat
Like little mice stole in and out,
As if they feared the light,
But, oh, she dances such a way!
No sun upon an Easter day
Is half so fine a sight!

I DON'T know who "she" was, but she probably wouldn't get an engagement on a roof garden to-day. She would be obliged to "fix up" her dance with trappings so that it looked spectacular, with incense, so that it appealed to the nostrils, and with scenery so that it could pretend to be something that it wasn't. For dancing, as dancing, is ashamed of itself to-day. It hides its diminished heads [illegible] what was once an art is now a fad, relying upon that most unreliable of all broken reeds, the myth known as "society."

I've been investigating. I've launched myself upon a career of Terpsichorean research in an endeavor to discover what has happened to the dance. Little Deyo, at the Casino, kicking up [illegible] in "The Social Whirl," and proving that she could really dance if she dared, appealed to me pathetically. [illegible] was the owl-like young woman at the Hudson Theatre matinees, giving us a series of much-rhapsodized high-smelling jim-jams, and labelling them East Indian dances. In these times, when all that glitters is, in nine cases out of ten, filled gold, all that shimmers is in the same proportion mere near-silk, and all that sparkles just rhinestone, I have been forced to the conclusion that the good old dance is but a fine old fake.

Those names at which the world grew pale—Elssler, Cerito, Grisi, Camargo and Taglioni—would probably, if their owners were in New York to-day, be relegated to the back row of the [illegible] ballet at the Metropolitan Opera House. The classic dance, with its years of laborious training, its out-of-date symmetry, and its inherent poetry, is dead as the deadest sort of door nail. Mere symmetry has passed into mere cemetery. The [illegible] girl to-day is a plump, languid "young lady" in straight-front corsets, shoes a size too small, and with a sneaking regard for the painless chiropodist. As a labor-saving device she wears beautiful clothes, and, perchance, jewelled garters, and her object is to divert attention from what she can't do, rather than to attract notice to what she can do.

She has perhaps learned to play the [illegible] piano with her feet—and that is exercise enough [illegible] who have reduced music to treadmill exercise [illegible] the autocrat pianists would loathe it, if they were concerned [illegible] it will probably reduce dancing to the [illegible] level. You'll drop a nickel into a slot [illegible] and rely upon that to see the chica [illegible] the bolero, the sarabande, the cachucha, the [illegible] the chaconne, the courante, the gaillarde, the [illegible] the sauteuse, and the jig.

So I went to a dance doctor, a man who caters to dancing as it is to-day, to Professor Claude M. Alviene, ballet master, giving up nineteen hours out of every twenty-four to enterprising young women who want a sensational dance fixed up while they wait.

Professor Alviene dances all day long, with [illegible] ating and is used to the most hopeless sort of pupil. I'm going to confess a dreadful thing—which can be used against me when occasion warrants. I've always longed to be able to clog; it has been the dream of my life and I haven't quite given it up yet. That is one reason why I'm so terribly interested in dancing, and why I looked upon Alviene with self-interested eyes. There were young women in short skirts waiting for him; there were theatrical pictures in all styles on his walls; there was a drawing of a young woman dancing on champagne bottles (oh, empty bottles!), and there was Alviene himself posing in the clouds—the clouds being suggested by lumps of cotton wool.

"Dancing," said Alviene, in a medical tone of voice as he asked a young woman to pause in her 'petits battements,' "is like Easter bonnets. It is a mere matter of style. You know how women hunt around to find a hat that suits them. Well, it is the same thing with dancing. They want a dance that fits them—something that they can wear. They don't want to waste eight years acquiring the art of classic dancing, working assiduously day after day, living abstemiously on a diet, and sacrificing themselves to an art. Not at all. That isn't the dancing of to-day. It must be easy. I can't hold a girl for more than five months."

To hold a girl for five months! What a droll expression, and how gross it sounded! "You see, classic dancing," he went on, "is something that only experts admire. The famous dancers in days gone by really danced. They did steps that they had learned by the very hardest kind of toil. The general public nowadays regards classic dancing as ungraceful and stupid. You see, it is not sensational and [illegible] hilarious. To illustrate what I mean I will give an example. I once taught the young woman called Bartho the classic dance. She was very clever (she has now retired), and she did some marvellous things. She appeared at Hammerstein's roof garden, and I watched her opening performance. A few experts, who realized the art she displayed, applauded. The general public didn't. A short time after that the Domino Rouge, with an instep dance that, compared to the steps of Bartho, meant nothing at all, appeared, and the applause was tremendous."

Alviene, like a wise man, had no cynical remarks to make. It was quite evident that he accepted the world as it is, and had no intention of trying to reform it.

"Most dancing to-day is fake," he said, sententiously, "for how could it be otherwise, when it is a matter of a few lessons and very little hard work? Those 'East Indian dances' you have mentioned" (I had) "were just movements, combined with pantomime, though at the close of the entertainment Miss St. Denis danced. As for little Deyo, she is really clever, but she has to dance like the rest of them do, or she would have no vogue. Bessie Clayton had the finest sort of training from an Italian master. She is an originator and can fashion her own dances. But when she tried the classic dance, she came to grief—the public doesn't want it."

I was going to say that evidently the public wants in dancing what it gets in song, "Everybody Works but Father." However, I decided not to be so clever, and refrained from saying it. I thought it. I still think it.

"Novelty! Novelty!" exclaimed Alviene. "That is what everybody is looking for to-day. The mania for eccentric dancing is the mania that prevails everywhere. Girls want something on the marionette style of limber exercise. Even skirt dancing—that is to say, skirt dancing has gone out of fashion. If I might be allowed to diagnose the case, I should like to say that perhaps dancing is reviving in a different style, combining ballet work with mere step-dancing. But, as I said before, it must appeal to 'the [illegible].' It is quite impossible to become a high-class dancer with less than five years' incessant labor. So we do the best we can under the circumstances. No sooner does a woman get a big name to-day than she drops off. If she has done anything worth while she ceases to do it. With popularity she declines to exert herself, and does what she pleases for the fad of the hour."

Very sad, I thought. However, it's much the same with acting. Make a man popular and he grows slovenly and thinks he owns the whole dramatic earth.

"The stage manager and dancing master have troubles of their own," quoth Alviene, with a sigh. "They have to be picturesque. They have to understand the art of shading. It is not a mere question of letting an artistic young woman display her artistic efforts. Who cares for artistic efforts? It is a question of seeming to offer something new, and of making an appeal to people by sensational means. It is very difficult. It is new ideas that count and not old methods. Yet there are still dance-enthusiasts—men who have not allowed an art to sink to a fake. Oddly enough, the science of choreography—that is to say the stenographic writing of dancing—is still progressing. It is an old science, but it has been developed to-day by Zorn. Shall I write you down a Spanish dance?"

At first I was incredulous. Then Alviene wrote me out the steps of a castanet dance that looked like Pitman's shorthand in a fit of hallucination. Yet for the contortions of to-day that masquerade as dancing it would be rather useless. I imagine having to "take down" Miss St. Denis, with rings on her fingers, bare feet, a display of flesh, and a craving for incense. This choreography, this so-called science, seemed more than anything else to testify to the doldrums into which poor Terpsichore has fallen.

"Dancing, I mean real dancing," said Alviene, "aids in dramatic expression, and many legitimate actors and actresses indulge in lessons. The dancer must abstain from all alcoholic stimulants, and the habits must be—decent."

"When Juliet dances the minuet does she have to take lessons?"

"Not necessarily," replied Alviene. "The minuet is a stately old dance that requires little training, and men are sometimes better without such training. With it they become too graceful, and that is a defect for men. Dancing is the natural agent for the circulation, and the real dancers live to be very old. Read their histories and you will discover that."

I thought of dear old Mrs. Gilbert, who could dance delightfully when she was seventy, and I believed Alviene. However, to believe it, it is only necessary to look at the operatic ballets of pirouetting grandmothers, whose good old bones are still apparently flexible. Are they not fine advertisements for classic dancing?

Perhaps one of these days fashion will take us back to the fine old art, which will be redeemed from its slough of twentieth-century fakery. We shall not have to sit in perfumed air to watch a lazy young woman in jewels imitating Oriental lassitude. We shall not be obliged to wade through a "synopsis" on the programme to discover what a parcel of meaningless Terpsichorean hieroglyphics signifies, and read into it anything that we like, imagining that it is lovely in proportion as we don't understand it.

"Symbolic" dancing, like symbolic plays, will be relegated to the approval of the long haired.

DO NEW ENGLAND RAILRGAD COMMISSIONS REPRESENT THE PEOPLE?

By Professor Frank Parsons.

Author of "The Heart of the Railroad Problem," "The Railways, the Trusts and the People," "The Story of New Zealand," "The City for the People," "The [illegible]," [illegible] writing this series of articles [illegible] Crimes of [illegible] for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

System, Far More Than the Men, Is Wrong

WE do not question the virtue of the commission, or its value in many ways. It is the system that is wrong, far more than the men. You can't put public highways into the hands of private corporations aiming at private profit, and expect to have those highways operated in the public interest.—PROFESSOR PARSONS.

WE have [illegible] New England railroad commissions [illegible] not objected to the [illegible] New England by the railroad [illegible] or opposed the growth of [illegible] the contrary [illegible]

[illegible] agents [illegible] corporate [illegible] Were they appointed on the recommendation of railway owners and managers and entrusted with power because the railways knew they could be relied on to [illegible] their interests, or at least to avoid [illegible] up vital questions?

In respect to some of [illegible] the affirmative on all the [illegible] by many in our New [illegible] are in a position to k[illegible] there seems [illegible] that in three of [illegible] relations would [illegible] if the commiss[illegible] agencies of [illegible] were appointed [illegible] railroads.

But that is [illegible] We do not [illegible] ernors have [illegible] recommended [illegible] factory to the [illegible] roads are [illegible] they have [illegible] Governors do [illegible] or to awaken [illegible] A Wolcott [illegible] be very [illegible] of unquestion[illegible] a Folk or a [illegible] men who would [illegible] let the lig[illegible] railroad [illegible] ernor is [illegible] present [illegible] think of ap[illegible] er not [illegible] roads? [illegible] not even [illegible] or any of [illegible] roads want [illegible] interests used [illegible] and elect him [illegible] know he was a [illegible] haps he will [illegible] see when he [illegible] to allow the [illegible] ley lines, and the [illegible] the Boston [illegible] on terms intensely against [illegible] terest. The probability is that the railroads knew what they were doing.

The ordinary public official may think it a shame that the railroads should [illegible] tariffs [illegible] Trust [illegible] between [illegible] ought to be stopped. He may consider it a [illegible] had this [illegible] rates should [illegible] some other [illegible] is pretty apt [illegible] tacking the [illegible] someone [illegible] care to get a [illegible] dize his political [illegible] ing commissioners who will [illegible]

Maintaining Friendly Relations With Roads.

There is another [illegible] we do not get comm[illegible] put the N[illegible] ten, even in Massachusetts, where the railways have often [illegible] it necessary to be content with [illegible] type. The commiss[illegible] things on the surface [illegible] things in respect to [illegible] may accomplish a great deal of good by maintaining friendly relations with the roads and making their recommendations mild. If they attempt to deal with fundamentals they will make enemies of the railroads [illegible] lose the chance of accomplishing the [illegible] that are easily within th[illegible] reach. They are in close association with the railway people; they know the sph[illegible] [illegible] So it happens that [illegible] railroads go on [illegible] high rates and build[illegible] inside and outside of [illegible] practically without [illegible] would not have [illegible] of the most [illegible] not for the work of the [illegible] commission [illegible] to understand more [illegible] of our State [illegible] a universally [illegible] to be the most public-spirited [illegible] New England boards, let us direct our attention especially to that.

What Have We to Hope for from Commissions?

In the legislative investigation of the Boston & Albany road in 1900, when it was charged that various shippers were receiving [illegible] from [illegible] commission was [illegible] by the Legislature for information on the subject. They handed in a [illegible] the railroad took the report prepared by one of its [illegible] presented it to the Legislature in reply to its question. The commission did [illegible] ing but [illegible] discriminat[illegible] pledge of [illegible] They did not wish to [illegible] and incur [illegible] The commission [illegible] full duty [illegible] commission did not know [illegible] so vital a matter [illegible] lawful [illegible] admitted [illegible] even when asked by the Legislature for information took no adequate steps to ascertain for themselves the real facts in the case, but relied entirely on whatever statements the railroads might see fit to make, and if the Massachusetts Commission is the best example of this method of control that we possess, as leading authorities declare, [illegible] ask you to consider carefully the [illegible] What have we to hope for from [illegible] Commission as a means of controlling our giant railroad systems, securing [illegible] justice and safeguarding the interests of the people in their relations with the railways?

Jamaica Plain Case Cited as Example

[illegible] the railroads alone [illegible] matters of large importance to them is to be found in the recent refusal of the commission to give a hearing to the citizens of Jamaica Plain, Boston, on the question of requiring the elevated railroad to put a station at Green street in case the road is extended on Washington street according to the plans that have been filed and approved [illegible] provide for only one station, [illegible] Square between Dudley street [illegible] Hills Square, a distance of two [illegible] In the same distance on [illegible] of the New Haven [illegible] different [illegible] there are [illegible] place of one [illegible] extension is more than twice as great as on the railroad or any other part of the [illegible] road. The following table states the facts, the line between Sullivan Square and City Square being the [illegible] extension on the north corresponding to the Washington street extension on the south.

The Jamaica Plain Citizens' Association, the Eliot Club, the Odd Fellows, the Grand Army and about everything else in Jamaica Plain have asked for a station at Green street, midway between Egleston Square and Forest Hills Square. One of the large high schools in the metropolitan district is located at Green street. There are [illegible] a dozen factories near by to which workers come in large numbers from a distance. Many Boston business and professional men live in this part of the city.

From Sense of Fair Play and Justice

Dr. Hartwell, the city statistician of Boston, estimates that 14,000 people would be served by the Green street station. A petition signed by 1,600 citizens was presented to the commission. Eugene N. Foss, Samuel B. Capen, Charles P. Bowditch, John A. McKim, George W. Wheelwright, Hon. Andrew J. Peters, S. C. Brackett, Dr. Charles F. Dole, president of the Twentieth Century Club, and many other prominent [illegible] earnest [illegible] practically the whole body of [illegible] station and the people at [illegible] and other points further out, who would suffer the minute or so of delay [illegible] stoppage at Green street, also signed petitions for the station at Green street [illegible] a sense of fair play and reason [illegible] There was absolutely no opposition except from the railroad, and yet the commission refused to give a hearing on the Green street petition. It wrote to the [illegible] of the Citizens' Association that [illegible] thorough inspection of the route [illegible] of the extension and [illegible] question [illegible] station at Green street [illegible] place than at Egleston Square ought to be decided after the structure had been opened to use. It is our belief that with the introduction of the [illegible] of the other [illegible] and [illegible] the conditions [illegible] form [illegible] and the public [illegible] better to decide [illegible] than now what [illegible] public interests [illegible] (Board of Railroad Commissioners, Boston, September 12, 1905.)

[illegible] obtained [illegible] a very strong [illegible] the right to be heard [illegible] be heard and before [illegible] on a plan they believe to [illegible] that it will be much harder to secure a station after the road is built [illegible] there is no justification for refusing to grant [illegible] ing in the face of the universal [illegible] public [illegible] company to go [illegible] without affording the people an opportunity [illegible] that the station should be [illegible] the commission [illegible] bulwark to protect the [illegible] people [illegible] plans regardless of [illegible] public interest and the public will.

I do not think the commission intends to act as such a bulwark. But men, however able and honest, who are constantly in contact with the railway managers are apt to absorb more or less of the railroad view. Moreover the commission says with much force that the accomplishment of the good they are able to do depends on maintaining a reasonably conciliatory attitude toward the railways. It would not be possible to [illegible] the railroads all along the [illegible] and expect the roads to conform to the "recommendations" of the board.

No Personal Censure of the Commission

Some of us think that there ought to be a more vigorous means of control in the public interest than any system of "recommendations." And the people of Jamaica Plain think that denying a good sized city full of people an opportunity for a hearing on their case when they so earnestly want it [illegible] and give such strong reasons for wanting it heard comes pretty near [illegible]

We do not question the virtue of the commission or its value in [illegible] any way [illegible] we [illegible] do we wish to [illegible] personal [illegible] They are, we [illegible] honest men who think they can [illegible] by attempting to do a little in a conciliatory way than if they tried to tear things up by the roots, which would be pretty [illegible] the order of the day if one were going to establish a just, impartial, reasonable and effective system of transportation in these States.

It is the system that is wrong far more than the men. You can't put public highways into the hands of private corporations aiming at private profit and expect to have those highways operated in the public interest.

[illegible] difficulties of public regulation of [illegible] which must of course be either [illegible] or owned by the [illegible] have never been better [illegible] than in one of the earliest reports of the Massachusetts Commission, January, 1872, page 174, discussing the possibility of securing fair rates by regulative measures: "The final difficulty with all legislation of this class is its excessively dangerous and politically corrupting tendency. It forces the corporations, whether they will or not, into the lobby of the Legislature and the rooms of the committees and commissions; they are forced there for the protection of their interests, for the essence of the system is that certain persons, whether the Legislature itself or officials designated by the Legislature, have [illegible] upon them the responsibility of [illegible] the revenues of property belonging to others. The commissioners have grave doubts as to the success of any effort which practically effects a separation between the ownership and its management."

"SINCE YOUR EYES LOOKED INTO MINE"

A Sincerely Simple Little Love Story Printed To-day as a Separate Part of This Newspaper.

PRETTY [illegible] melodies in common time [illegible] into even prettier melodies with a waltz movement, constitute a form for popular love songs which seems hard to [illegible] That is the musical arrangement [illegible] song, "Since Your Eyes Look [illegible] Mine," which is printed to-day as a separate section of this newspaper.

Perhaps [illegible] it is a little prettier than that [illegible] other songs of this character [illegible] are to find it very engaging and [illegible] adapted to the sentiment of the [illegible]

As usual [illegible] central idea of the poem that [illegible] song its characteristic flavor. It is [illegible] people call a "good line." "Since [illegible] eyes looked into mine." All true lovers [illegible] that when once her eyes look into his softly and steadily, with a certain expression, that is the moment of his [illegible] triumph, his happiest moment, for he then no longer doubts the state of her heart. Read here the first stanza with the refrain:

"Since your eyes looked into mine, dear,
Since I saw the love light there,
I have learned to love no other,
And I wonder, do you care?
In the silence of the gloaming,
When the stars above appear,
Then I'm asking, 'Do you love me?'
And I want to tell you, dear,
Since your eyes looked into mine I have learned to love,
I have found a Paradise kin to heaven above,
This world seems a land of dreams, and I wait the day divine
To link our hearts forever, dearie, since your eyes looked into mine."

No "ragtime" effects here, no artificial devices in a reaching for originality. Just a pretty love song, direct and simple, as true love itself.

The Little Doctor in your Vest Pocket

Neither is it like Castor Oil, Glycerine, or other Oily Laxatives that simply lubricate the Intestines for transit of the food stopped up in them at that particular time.

These emergency drugs relieve the immediate trouble, but do not relieve its Cause.

The same trouble will therefore recur again till that Cause is removed permanently.

They stimulate the Bowel Muscles to contract, expand, and squeeze the Digestive Juices out of food eaten.

Cascarets do this naturally, without purging or discomfort.

They don't help the Bowels and Liver in such a way as to make them lean upon similar assistance for the future.

This is why, with Cascarets, the dose may be lessened each succeeding time instead of increased, as it must be with all succeeding doses of other Cathartics and Laxatives.

Cascarets act like exercise.

If carried in your Vest Pocket, (or carried in My Lady's Purse), and eaten just when you suspect you need one you will never know a sick day from the ordinary ills of life.

Because, nearly all these ills begin in the Bowels, and partial Constipation paves the way for all other Diseases.

"Vest Pocket" box 10 cents.

Be sure you get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company, and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

Many Big Dramatic Attractions at the Theatres This Week

A WEEK of big dramatic offerings begins on Monday. Chief among the attractions is "The Yankee Circus on Mars," the big New York Hippodrome feature, which opens at the Boston Theatre; Olga Nethersole begins a series of repertoire at the Colonial; Henry E. Dixey brings "The Man on the Box" to the Majestic, and Madame Kalich, the great Roumanian actress, presents for the first time here "Therese Raquin," Zola's greatest play. Kellar, the great magician, remains for another week at the Globe Theatre, and the three local stock companies will be seen as follows: Bowdoin Square in "On the Bridge at Midnight," Castle Square in "The Adventures of Lady Ursula," Empire in "The Charity Ball."

"McFadden's Flats," full of humor, comes to the Grand Opera House, and "The Ham Tree" is the only musical comedy that holds over, playing to capacity nightly at the Hollis Street Theatre. All the vaudeville and burlesque houses present new bills.

Boston Theatre

Boston will see a reproduction of the New York Hippodrome show at the Boston Theatre to-morrow night, when "A Yankee Circus on Mars" begins a limited engagement, which will include daily matinees. The production comes in all its greatness, and Thompson & Dundy feel sure that it will make an epoch in the amusement history of the city. There are 500 participants, numbering famous stars and artists from all countries, a ballet of 144, chorus almost without number, wild and domestic animals trained to perform all sorts of feats, and acres and mountains of costumes and stage and scenic accessories. "A Yankee Circus" is a great combination of musical extravaganza, spectacle, circus, ballet, pantomime and specialty. More than an hour of it is devoted to an arenic performance.

Probably the most noted performer is Mlle. Claire Heliot, "the woman without fear," who exhibits in a steel enclosure with twelve lions. Hardly less renowned are the Cottrell Powells, equestrian marvels. The woman of the "team" stands upon the broad backs of two thoroughbreds while her male partner executes somersaults and other zigzag maneuvres from her head and shoulders. Another of worldwide reputation is Colonel Gaston Bordeverry, undisputed champion marksman. He concludes his performance by disrobing a woman by rifle ball. "Pete" Barlow brings a herd of marvelously trained elephants, and Mlle. Marquis a troop of trained Indian ponies.

There are acrobats, aerialists and other masters and mistresses of trained athletic endeavor, whose acts are wholly new and entirely novel. Adelaide and Smith Edwards are the two [illegible] fun makers.

But "A Yankee Circus on Mars" is not a circus transferred to the stage. There are march, movement, song, dialogue, costuming and settings. Bessie McCoy is the feminine star in the role of Aurora, a chariot driver. Joseph C. Myron, Ben F. Grinnell, H. J. Siegfried, Arthur Wooley and Fred Bennett are other favorites. "The Dance of the Hours," from the opera "La Gioconda," concludes the show. It is executed by 144 girls.

Colonial Theatre

After an absence of six years from the American stage, Olga Nethersole returns to Boston at the Colonial for a fortnight's engagement on Monday, with regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees. The bill Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights and at the Wednesday matinee will be "The Labyrinth," an adaptation made by W. L. Courtney of Paul Hervieu's notable Comedie Francaise success, "Le Dedale." The theme is a striking argument against divorce, it being the author's idea that a legal severing of the bonds of matrimony binding a man and a woman should never be effected when the union has been blessed by the joint possession of children. In the role of Marianne de Pogis, Miss Nethersole is said to have found a part most congenial to her histrionic powers.

"Sapho," Clyde Fitch's stage version of Daudet's novel, will be the offering on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, and at the Saturday matinee.

Miss Nethersole's repertoire during her second week will include "Magda," "Carmen," "Camille," and "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," in addition to "The Labyrinth" and "Sapho." Her company includes Hamilton Revelle, Hubert Carter, Charles Quartermaine, Harry Todd, Miss Louise Moodie, Miss Sicily Richards, Miss Rosalind Ivan and others.

Keith's Theatre

An announcement of great interest is that from Keith's Boston theatre in regard to the engagement of Creatore and his Italian band this week. Creatore is one of the foremost bandmasters of the world. His every movement is perfect interpretation-music made visible as motion. Creatore and his band will give concerts twice daily at Keith's. The surrounding show includes the Pekin Zouaves, seventeen in number, in a great exhibition of lightning military evolutions; Seymour and Hill, comedy acrobats; [illegible] and the Sharp Boys, in "Dixieland"; Tom Hearn, English comedy juggler; Henry Atkinson, musical comedian, and Innes and Ryan in a comedy and singing specialty. A new list of moving pictures will be in the kinetograph.

Majestic Theatre

Henry E. Dixey will make his appearance at the Majestic Theatre to-morrow night in "The Man on the Box," from Harold MacGrath's novel of that name, produced originally at the Madison Square Theatre, where it had a run of [illegible] nights. Its success in the [illegible] has been phenomenal. The scenes are laid in Washington, and it tells a [illegible] love story in which the hero takes the place of the coachman, and instead of driving his [illegible] about the streets of Washington, ultimately leading to his arrest, is the leading episode upon which the story is founded. The situations in which the hero is forced later in the [illegible] are funny to keep the audience in continuous laughter.

"The Man on the Box" is absolutely clean in plot and lines. [illegible] Mr. Dixey, as Lieutenant Warburton, remains the handsome, manly, fascinating Dixey that he was as Adonis. He is supported by an excellent company, and the scenic environment is the same as was seen in New York.

Tremont Theatre

Zola's "Therese Raquin," which Bertha Kalich offers for her second and last week at the Tremont, beginning to-morrow, is in sharp contrast to her last week's play, "Monna Vanna." In place of the romantic mediaevalism of Maeterlinck's poetic drama there will be the graphic, tense realism of the great Frenchman, expressed in a play of deep psychology and intense dramatic force. In modern stage literature there are few plays that compare in power to "Therese Raquin." Its construction is admirable. Every character in the play is typical of the French bourgeoise. Zola probably took them from real life. The translation of the play was specially prepared for Mme. Kalich by her manager, Harrison Grey Fiske, who also directed the rehearsals.

Mme. Kalich as Therese has a part full of variety, starting with a deep and eloquent repression and bursting forth in the last two acts in veritable torrents of emotions, in which hatred, scorn, despair and love are unmingled. Included in the cast are Henry Kolker, Leonard Shepherd, Francis Dawson, Joseph O'Meara, Jeanne Eustace and Emily Stevens.

Globe Theatre

Kellar will begin the last week of his engagement at the Globe Theatre to-morrow afternoon, with a special matinee, presenting a multitude of mystifying spectacles and illusions, many of which have never before been seen in this city. His mystical creation, "The Witch, the Sailor and the Enchanted Monkey" is a remarkable deception that has been creating a great sensation throughout the country. The first part introduces the great magician in many new small tricks of the prestidigitator's art, concluding with "Levitation," a bewildering illusion that is one of the masterpieces of Mr. Kellar's career. The second part includes experiments in pure sleight-of-hand, "The Simla Seance" and "Fly-To," two startling conceits, but the great feature is introduced in the [illegible] "The Witch, the Sailor and the Enchanted Monkey" [illegible] a mystic story of a century and a half ago that is weird and fascinating. Paul Valadon is associated with the wizard.

Hollis Street Theatre

Those who have [illegible] George V. Hobart's musical vaudeville, "The Ham Tree," in which those two funny negro comedians, McIntyre and Heath, are the stars, should bear in mind the fact that this week will close their successful engagement in this city. The Hollis Street Theatre has been crowded at every performance, and the piece has [illegible] next week.

Castle Square Theatre

[illegible] "The Adventures of Lady Ursula" [illegible] Anthony Hope's [illegible] will be revived at the Castle Square Theatre [illegible] week [illegible] is certain to attract the many [illegible] Zenda [illegible] dialogue. Mr. Hansel will play Sir George Sylvester, the hero, and the heroine will be acted by Miss Kemble. Other leading parts will be acted by Stanley Dewitt, William McVey, Willard Howe, John Waldron, Mary Young and Marion Calvert.

Empire Theatre

At the Empire Theatre this week [illegible] modern comedy drama by Belasco and De Mille, "The Charity Ball," dealing with the social and business life of New York city will be played. [illegible] John Van Buren, [illegible] Judge Knox [illegible] Mr. Betts, Jefferson Hall; Mrs. Van Buren, Miss Eleanor Bramwell; Bess Van [illegible] Miss Isabel O'Madigan; Phyllis Lee, Miss Lillian Royce; Sophie, Miss Bertha [illegible] and Ann Kruger, Miss Mann Sedgwick.

Park Theatre

Because of the [illegible] "Cousin Louisa" to New York, the Park Theatre will be dark for the coming week. Negotiations are under way to put in a strong attraction on the following week.

Grand Opera House

Merriment, song and beauty are the predominant features of "McFadden's Flats," which comes to the Grand Opera House this week. [illegible] "McFadden's Flats." [illegible] and Glen Mac[illegible] Gramlich and a chorus of thirty. Matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Columbia Theatre

At the Columbia this week the famous [illegible] will disport themselves in two lively burlettas. William Allen, the Hebrew joker and jollier will be on hand [illegible] Ruby W. Craig, Will J. Cooke, Carrie Ezer, Josette Webb, Jeanette Sher[illegible] and Cunningham and Lord are with the troupe. For Friday night an amateur programme has been arranged that eclipses all predecessors.

Austin & Stone's Museum

Animal sagacity of a rare order will be seen in the exhibition at Austin & Stone's this week by Mlle. Carlotta's trick bears, their first appearance [illegible] in years [illegible] St. Johann [illegible] and Miss [illegible] the largest bull in the world, weighing 4000 pounds, and the Carnatis, necromancers, the German Rose, the musical marvel, and Till's marionettes.

Heart Trouble

The heart itself has no power—no self-control. It is made to beat by a tender nerve so tiny that it is scarcely visible to the naked eye. Yet ten thousand times a day this delicate nerve must assist the heart to expand and contract.

This nerve is only one of the branches of the great sympathetic, or INSIDE, nerve system. Each branch of this system is so closely allied with the others that weakness or irregularity at any point is apt to spread. Heart trouble frequently arises from Stomach trouble through sympathy, and Kidney trouble may also follow. For each of these organs is operated by a branch of these same sympathetic nerves—the INSIDE NERVES.

In Heart, Kidney or Stomach troubles, it is of but little use to attempt to doctor the organ itself—the most permanent relief lies in restoring the INSIDE NERVES. Dr. Shoop regards these nerves to be the real cause of such troubles. The remedy—known by physicians and druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is the result of years of endeavor along this very line. It does not dose the organ to deaden the pain—but it aims to go at once to the nerve—the inside nerve—the power nerve—and builds it up, and strengthens it, and makes it well.

Every heart sufferer may have Dr. Shoop's Book on the Heart. It will be sent free, and with it you will receive the "Health Token," an intended passport to good health.

For the free book and the "Health Token" you must address Dr. Shoop, Box 8,898, Racine, Wis. State which book you want.

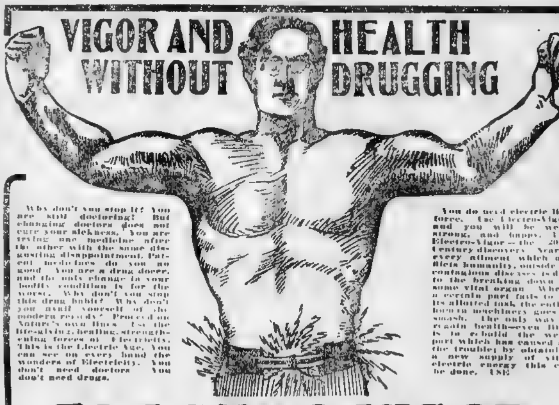
Dr. Shoop's Restorative



VIGOR AND HEALTH WITHOUT DRUGGING

Why don't you stop it? You are still doctoring! But changing doctors does not cure your sickness. You are trying one medicine after the other with the same disgusting disappointment. Patent medicines do you no good. You are a drug doper, and the only change in your bodily condition is for the worse. Why don't you stop this drug habit? Why don't you avail yourself of the modern remedy? Proceed on Nature's own lines. Use the life-giving, healing, strengthening forces of Electricity. This is the Electric Age. You can see on every hand the wonders of Electricity. You don't need doctors. You don't need drugs.

You do need electric life force. Use Electro-Vigor and you will be well, strong, and happy. Use Electro-Vigor—the 20th Century discovery. Nearly every ailment which afflicts humanity, outside of contagious diseases, is due to the breaking down of some vital organ. Where a certain part fails to do its allotted task the entire human machinery goes to smash. The only way to regain health—even life—is to rebuild the weak part which has caused all the trouble; by obtaining a new supply of vital, electric energy this can be done. USE

ELECTRO-VIGOR

DRY CELL BODY BATTERY

There's no disputing the virtue of Electricity as a cure for weakness and pains. The brainest doctors living now admit it.

There has been a doubt that any one has mastered the best way to apply it.

The doctor's battery is too crude, shocks too much, and, at best, can be applied only half an hour at a time. That is not enough to do any good.

Those other machines in a doctor's office never reach the trouble. Electric belts charged in vinegar and acid came nearer being a success, for they cured lots of people, but the vinegar, the nasty smell, the bother! You have to charge them every night, and you smell vinegar all the time. They burned holes in your backs, too.

To get the benefit without these defects I have worked for twenty years on a dry cell electric belt, and I've got it.

Electro-Vigor gives five times as much power as any vinegar belt made and you never have to charge it. You have the current under perfect control, and it cannot burn or blister.

My patents, issued by the United States Government, are the strongest that have ever been granted a maker of electro medical body appliances.

Think of the relief from vinegar charging. You just put on Electro-Vigor and turn on the current. No trouble, no nasty, ill-smelling vinegar, and five times more power than any vinegar belt gives.

That's all about what it is. This is what it does:

It invigorates the weak; it arouses the fire of life in those who have begun to despair of never knowing the vigor of youth again.

It pours oil into the joints of the Rheumatics, relieves them of their pain and makes them feel like young athletes.

It cures Dyspepsia and develops a stomach that will digest anything that is fit to eat.

It restores vital energy in every organ of the body, making men and women stronger, happier and younger than they are.

Electro-Vigor is Life to Weak People.

Are you sick and weak? Electro-Vigor will make you strong.

Don't drug, because drugs have never cured you, though you have tried them; and they never will. You have lost your nerve force. That is electricity, and Electro-Vigor will give it back.

which explains all about "Electro-Vigor," and tells where it is better than old-style vinegar belts. It gives the proof of the power of "Electro-Vigor" to cure after drugs and all other treatments fail. I mail it, sealed, free.

"An Actress' Robes Should Fit Her Stage Roles" says MARY VAN BUREN

By Eleanor Ames.

WHEN, seven years ago, the Emerson School of Oratory turned loose upon the world the graduating class of 1899, a brilliant future was predicted for one of its members, a certain young woman from Texas, Mary Van Buren by name.

Miss Van Buren was tall, broad-shouldered, beautifully proportioned, graceful, clever, vibrant with health and ambition, and determined to succeed. She had a remarkable speaking voice, clear, musical, well modulated and with unusual carrying power. Her enunciation was distinct and pleasing. Her stage presence attractive. She had been an earnest student and what is more a student of rare intelligence and discrimination.

She had gained more from the course at school than most of her classmates. She was admired and respected by her teachers.

Success Was Forcasted

"Mary Van Buren will be a success," they agreed.

And now, after a career which has taken her all over the world, through the Orient, along the Nile, in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, China, Japan, the Philippines and from coast to coast in her own country, Mary Van Buren has come back to Boston and in "Cousin Louisa" at the Park Theatre she is fulfilling all the great expectations the teachers at the Emerson School of Oratory had for her.

Nor has she reached the end [illegible], much sooner than she believed possible she is to be landed on Broadway in Daly's historic theatre.

That is about the height of any ambitious actress's career—to play at Daly's on Broadway.

Fate has been rather kind to Mary Van Buren from the time she stood forth, armed with her diploma and surcharged with ambition.

Her first engagement was with that sterling English actor and true artist, E. S. Willard, and such roles as the leading feminine character in "Tom Pinch" and Lady Gilding, and the part in "The Middleman," played so admirably by Maxine Elliott and Kent Wakeman in England were given her.

There's no telling how long Miss Van Buren might have remained in Mr. Willard's company, nor how great triumphs she might have won here and abroad if the tour had not been cut short by the sudden illness of the star, who fell victim to typhoid fever in Chicago.

There was no long wait, however, for Mary Van Buren. Back she came to New York and Dan Frohman engaged her for the leading woman of the Empire Stock Company. Almost simultaneously she had a flattering offer from Mr. Frawley of the Frawley Stock Company of San Francisco, and Mr. Frohman released her, and advised her to go West, saying that Mr. Frawley's company would give her an opportunity to learn technique which was not possible in New York.

Beginning of Happiness and Success.

"It was the beginning of happiness and success and adventure," Miss Van Buren told me, "for," she says, "no matter what the future may hold for me, those five years with the Frawley Stock Company will ever remain dear in memory."

The triumph of her return to her home-town has been greatly marred by the sorrow which she has felt because of the destruction of San Francisco, which has been home to her.

"Not to know—that is the dreadful part of it," she said, "not to know whether your friends are alive or dead, or in want, or what? that is what causes the keenest suffering. And yet California is such a glorious State and the whole spirit out there is so grand. Californians are great to care for their own, and every little town will work to help Frisco."

In Los Angeles, where Miss Van Buren had first chance at big roles, they call her "Our Mary."

The trip to the Orient gave her an experience which few actresses have enjoyed. In this she was co-star with Mr. Frawley. She played twenty leading parts, two new ones each week, but the company only gave four performances a week. The rest of the time they were in demand for teas and parties and fetes of all kinds. Sultans, Rajahs, the Prince of [illegible], Eastern potentates, without number showered entertainments and attentions upon her.

"And gifts?" I asked, "strings of pearls and diamond crowns?"

Men Are Men the World Over.

"You cannot accept strings of pearls and diamond crowns from Oriental princes with any more propriety than you can from American millionaires."

Mary Van Buren's beauty does not need a jeweled setting to make it remarkable. She is quite unlike in type any actress of whom I can think. She is tall, athletic, generous in proportion. Her features are regular, her eyes unusual in size, fulness, brilliancy and expression. Her hair is dark brown and luxuriant, her coloring fresh with the glow of perfect health. Wholesome is the one word which would instantly suggest itself as describing her.

Emotions in Gowns.

Mary Van Buren believes in the adornment of her beauty. She has a Creed of Clothes, which she follows faithfully. Her gowns must fit the demands of place, time and character, or her inspiration forsakes her, and she reads the lines without meaning. "Between my emotions and my gowns," she continued, earnestly, "there is a subtle, but strong, relation. They must be in harmony or I am lost. I could never feel chiffon emotions in a tailor suit. It would be impossible to think pale blue thoughts in a brown frock. I'm not ashamed to confess the gowns have had a large part in my success. I must be suitably dressed and I'll be all right, as [illegible] was."

Self-Consciousness in Misfits.

"Let me have the proper [illegible] and I'm unconscious of them. [illegible] they are lacking, I suffer from [illegible]ness which is almost stage fright."

Miss Van Buren was [illegible] walk. Her gown was [illegible] simple broadcloth, with some Oriental [illegible] on the Eton coat. Her [illegible] was turned abruptly at [illegible] by plumes. Just [illegible] Miss Van Buren [illegible] for an [illegible] purple or black.

"Then the emotional gown [illegible]?" I asked.

"Indeed, it is not," she said. "Every gown one wears should be an emotional gown. Women don't study themselves enough when they choose their gowns. They buy what looks well in a [illegible] window or on one of their friends."

Mental Vibrations in Clothes.

"Clothes give certain vibrations and act as a mental stimulus. It is [illegible] to be properly dressed [illegible] look as though there was an [illegible] between you and your clothes.

"Three times a year I go to Minneapolis."

"You mean Paris, I presume," I corrected.

"I mean Minneapolis, Minnesota," she retorted. "Minneapolis. There is a certain modiste who is an artist designer of clothes. She is known all over Europe. She is responsible for the well-dressed society women whose gowns are noted in New York, Chicago, San Francisco. Even the gowns that Paquin and Callot make for me in Paris are designed by Madame in Minneapolis.

"When I was in the Orient I wrote her what gowns I needed, describing the occasion upon which they would be worn and what I wanted to feel and say in them. She sent them to me. I slipped them on, and was happy. They were perfect, no alteration needed anywhere. I feel sure Madame is inspired. She is the originator of what I call emotional gowns."

Fay Templeton an Inspiration.

Fay Templeton's consummate art is responsible for Mary Van Buren being on the stage to-day. "She was the first actress I ever saw," she says. "That was when I was a schoolgirl in Texas. I made up my mind then to be an actress, and you don't know how pleased I was the other day to find my picture next to hers on a bill board.

"And when I go to Daly's another dream of my youth will be realized, for Ada Rehan was my ideal, and it seems to me that playing on the very stage where she has so often played, I must gain some inspiration. It is a great thing to one sensitive to surroundings to stand where a great artist has stood. It makes me half afraid and wholly glad."

News and Notes of the Theatrical Folk

Hollis Men to Benefit

If popularity is any indication, there will not be a vacant seat inside the Hollis Street Theatre to-morrow evening. The occasion will be the complimentary benefit to Vincent T. Fetherston, the treasurer, and Frederick Howard, the ticket agent, and these two popular officials in the box office have a strong attraction in McIntyre and Heath, who will open the third and last week of their stay here in "The Ham Tree."

Bowdoin Square Theatre

"On the Bridge at Midnight" is the melodrama to be offered patrons of the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. The play is one replete with sensationalism, love and comedy. The scenes depict Christmas eve in the metropolis, one of the little curio shops that fill all big cities, an underground den under Canal street. Pearl de Sels [illegible] fill the leading female role as Reddy, the Newsboy, in boyish costume, and [illegible] Marshall as Kate Hastings, the girl whom the villains seek to destroy.

Howard Athenaeum

One of the best bills of the season is to be put on the boards of the old Howard this week. The extra [illegible] European equilibrists, the [illegible], will excite enthusiasm [illegible] William Cahill, "The Man from Ireland"; Zinell and B[illegible], in an operatic travesty; Altaire and Lind[illegible], jugglers; Spedden and Herson, [illegible]; Murphy and Willard, in "The Phrenologist"; Fields and Wol[illegible] in "The Airship." In a military musical [illegible] the Three Musketeers will provide [illegible] amusement. Massey and Crame[illegible] in a sketch entitled "Blue Notes," and [illegible], in protean character impersonations, and the Howardscope complete [illegible] Alexander will shine in a new [illegible] called "Over the Plate," in the [illegible].

Nance O'Neil Coming

Nance O'Neil will receive a royal welcome at the Hollis Street Theatre in Ibsen's "Rosmersholm" a week from to-morrow. Boston has always been her greatest stronghold, for this city first acknowledged her greatness. She will come to Boston with the strongest supporting company and the most elaborate production that she has ever had.

Sousa Concert To-night

To-night at the Boston Theatre John Philip Sousa and his band will repeat the programme of last Sunday night. The new Sousa march, "The Free Lance," shows that Sousa is still the great March King, stronger and more popular than ever with the public. The beautiful lyric, by Sousa, "Will You Love When the Lilies Are Dead?" which Miss Elizabeth Schiller rendered so captivatingly the other night, will again be heard.

Lyceum Theatre

Bright and snappy, full of laughter and catchy music, gorgeously costumed and with all the modern electrical, mechanical and scenic effects, "The Golden Crook" begins a week's engagement at the Lyceum with the Monday matinee. The company is composed of forty people. The ballet of "The Four Seasons" is composed of twenty pretty women, costumed to represent each season. Among the company are Alvora, toe dancer; Yalto Duo, European novelty dancers; Arlington and Delmore, travesty artists; Edward Morton, vocalist; the Bush Brothers, double somersault artists, and Inman, Wakefield and company, comedy sketch artists.

Lillian Russell Here

Lillian Russell, America's most beautiful prima donna, will make her only appearance in Boston to-night at the Tremont Theatre for the benefit of the San Francisco sufferers. She is surrounded by a company of all-star vaudeville artists, including Rice and Prevost, in "Bumpty Bumps"; Jack Norworth, "The College Boy"; Greene and Werner, "The Babes of the Jungle"; Chevalier De Loris, "the world's greatest marksman"; Edna Luby, inimitable impersonator; Canfield and Carleton, in a musical comedy skit; J. J. Rendell and company, comedy unequalled; Mazarto, the musical wonder, and N. [illegible] Burkhart, silver voiced tenor. Regular prices prevail. Box office open at noon.

Palace Theatre

For this week at the Palace Theatre "Charlie" Waldron will present another splendid bill with the stock company of favorites in two funny burlesques, "Matrimonial Bureau" and "Hote, Hurly Burly." The comedy will be in the hands of Leo Stevens, Al Patterson, Milton Schuster, James Dickson and Charles Phillips, while the musical numbers will be by Hattie Mills, Mae Bryant, Edith Randall, Cora Evelyn, Lillian Keeley and the Usher Sisters. The vaudeville part includes the Las[illegible] Brothers, wonderful acrobats; William [illegible], one of the greatest jugglers in the business; the Norrises, two clever colored [illegible]; Dennison and Rothe, musical artists, and the Jackson family, trick and comedy bicycle riders. That sensational moving picture, "The Dream of the Rarebit Fiend," will be given for the third week.

Coming Attractions

For a brief engagement, beginning Monday, May 14, the Colonial Theatre will have as its attraction Grace George with the entire New York company and production in "The Marriage of William Ashe," one of the most pronounced successes of the season.

[illegible] Raney in "The Boy Behind the Gun," a new war play dealing with some of the stirring incidents of the late [illegible] war, comes to the [illegible] Opera House week of May 7 as the closing attraction of the season there.

Sunday Concerts

To-night's big bill at the Columbia will be one of the most varied and interesting programmes yet arranged. The comedy acts, which seem to be the ones most enjoyed by Columbia patrons, have not been overlooked, and one of the strongest laughing acts ever seen on a Sunday night bill will be on hand.

[illegible] Musical Company will head the bill at the Globe concert to-night. Phil and Nettie Peters, the great Wartenburg brothers, the four Emperors of Music, Montgomery and Canter, Welsh and Estes, Le Maire and Le Maire and Van and Burdett [illegible] the bill.

A grand bill has been arranged for the concert at the Bowdoin Square to-night, the proceeds to go to the Suffolk Dispensary. Those who will apepar are Howard [illegible] North, "Honey" Johnson, Williams and [illegible], Larkin and Daly, Wills and [illegible], the Lawrence trio and the Ader [illegible].

The Majestic Theatre concert bill this evening will be the Four Emperors of Music, Phil and Nettie Peters, Wartenburg brothers, Welsh and Estes, Le Maire and Le Maire, Van and Burdett, the Karno London Comedy Company and the Majestiscope.

"The Fays" Coming

On Monday, May 7, the Fays will be the attraction at the Globe Theatre in their weird exhibitions of psychological phenomena called "Thurmaturgy." They maintain that there is nothing supernatural in any of the demonstrations they give. The engagement will begin on Monday [illegible], with matinees on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Thursday and Friday matinees for ladies only.

"The Stolen Story"

"The Stolen Story," by Jesse Lynch Williams, which begins its Boston engagement at the Tremont Theatre May 7, will be played for the first time in Providence to-morrow. The last act shows a newspaper office just before the hour of [illegible]. In this scene Billy Woods [illegible] his story, which not only represents a great reportorial achievement but clears [illegible] and saves a statesman from political disgrace. The cast includes Jameson Lee Finney, Edwin Holt, R. Peyton Carter, James L. Seeley, Ralph Delmore, Wright Kramer, Joseph M. Sparks, Patrick C. Foy, Dorothy Tennant, Marion Abbott and Fanny Marlnoff. Mr. Finney and Miss Marlnoff have the leading roles.

An Ibsen Novelty

An Ibsen novelty of unusual attractiveness comes to the Hollis Street Theatre for the last week of the engagement of Nance O'Neil, beginning May [illegible]. Ibsen's "Rosmersholm," which has never been acted in Boston, gives Miss O'Neil special opportunities in the character of Rebecca West. It has been pronounced as striking a work as Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," which has always been considered one of Miss O'Neil's greatest successes.

Samaroff Concert

Mme. Olga Samaroff, the young Russo-American pianist who was soloist at last week's Symphony concerts, will be the soloist at the benefit concert which members of the Symphony Orchestra will give in Symphony Hall Sunday evening for the San Francisco sufferers. Mme. Samaroff is a native American, born in San Antonio, Texas. As soon as she heard that the orchestra intended to give this concert she offered to stay over in Boston and play.

Luncheon at Wonderland

A Japanese lunch given by F. [illegible] and Kengo Moriya, general managers of the Japanese Exhibition Company, who are now building the Japanese village at Wonderland, the new million-dollar park at Revere Beach, to representative Boston newspaper men, proved to be one of the most delightful events of last week at that resort. Incidentally the visitors were taken in charge by Manager F. C. Thompson and made a tour of all the Wonderland attractions.

Stage Notes

"The Earl and the Girl" went direct to Holyoke when it left the Majestic Theatre last night. This latest Casino musical success will play two performances in the "Paper City," and the sale in advance is larger than for any attraction ever booked in that place.

Harry Le Marr, the actor who claims Boston as his home, did the Andrew Mack stunt of selling papers in Utica last week for the San Francisco fund. He realized $4,700 for the sufferers and in addition gave $[illegible] from his own salary.

Some idea of the extraordinary speed with which building operations are progressing at Wonderland with a view to [illegible] the construction work and the installation of the various attractions in time for the opening on Memorial Day, was furnished last week in the addition of 100 men to the force already at work on the Thompson Scenic Railway, and of 200 men to the general force of laborers and mechanics employed at the new million dollar park at Revere Beach.

Since her triumph in the Henry Miller-Hartley Manners play, "Zira," Miss Margaret Anglin has been called "the American Bernhardt." This is one of the most powerful dramas which has been produced on the American stage in many seasons. She comes to the Majestic soon.

Henry E. Dixey, who comes to the Majestic Theatre in "The Man on the Box," has [illegible] scheme to organize a school of expression for children. No child older than fifteen years will be accepted as a student.

Tragedy, Music and Farce Melodrama

BY J. FRANK DAVIS.

A newly famous tragedienne in a Maeterlinck play, a clever company in a not clever farce-melodrama, an "Irish musical-melodrama" (I never heard that phrase, but it seems to fit) and a collection of musical shows, ranging from very good to not so excellent, have held the centre of theatrical interest the past week.

• • • • •

Bertha Kalich was a favorite in that portion of New York city which has been jocularly called "the Theodore Kremer belt," long before most of us even heard of her. She was at the head of a company which played in Yiddish, and as the months passed people from uptown joined the East Siders, who made up her regular audiences, and although many of them did not understand her tongue they went away convinced of her power. So the day came when she was "discovered," taken out of her not profitable surroundings, placed at the head of a first-class company and became the vogue in the uptown houses and later in other great cities beside New York. Now Boston has an opportunity to see her in Maeterlinck's "Monna Vanna."

Boston sees a tall, straight dark woman with big, sombre eyes, thick black hair, long, shapely, expressive arms and a full, thrilling voice. It sees an actress who enters into the part she portrays with much feeling, albeit her unfamiliarity with the language in which she is speaking is shown in an occasional rasping monotone that is not pleasant. Yet she has mastered her English so well that not a word is indistinct. It sees a play magnificently staged, with scenery that it would be hard to equal, an excellent supporting cast, and a great group of auxiliaries whose participation in the play will compare favorably with even that most remarkable mob of recent theatrical times, the Tribunal in Irving's "Robespierre."

As to whether Mme. Kalich is a truly great tragedienne, reviewers disagree. If she isn't, it is perhaps not exaggeration to say she is on the road to greatness. And the performance, as a production, is well worth seeing even with this question unsettled.

• • • • •

"Cousin Louisa" is a new play, called "a satirical comedy," but actually a combination of farce and melodrama. Frederick Paulding, who wrote it, apparently tried to model after the method of Augustus Thomas. Unfortunately, his modeling was not entirely successful. The piece is not likely to have a long life, although if anything could preserve it, it would be the very excellent company which appear in it.

After such a creation as Charles Cherry gave us a few months ago when he was here with Maxine Elliott, it is a sorry disappointment to see him struggling to make the milk-and-water part he now has successful. There is but one-half-way satisfying part in the play—that of Cousin, and Mary Van Buren makes all of it that any actress could.

The programme says that the heroine is "Louisa Farbell, nee Westover, nee Shotland." We who always thought "nee" meant "born" had quite a little puzzling to do over that. The only answer seems to be that in her two marriages she had in some manner been born again—like most of the comedy situations in the piece.

• • • • •

"The Ham Tree" is well classified. They call it neither a musical comedy, nor a musical play, nor a comic opera, nor anything else except what it is, "musical vaudeville."

Primarily it is a vehicle for McIntyre and Heath to demonstrate that there is a place for the old-time minstrel off either the minstrel or the continuous vaudeville stage. Secondarily, it is a setting for a chorus of about fifty young women and men in gorgeous costumes to dance with a snap and "go" that gives the impression every minute that they are there not because they are getting paid for it, but because they want to be. Thirdly, it possesses musical features which set the feet to tapping, and pucker the lips in an effort to catch the tunes.

There never was a musical show before in which so many people could dance a clog. The whole chorus is at it at times. It is unusual, and everybody likes it.

• • • • •

There are four villains, count 'em, four, in "The Way to Kenmare." There is but one hero. And such a hero as he is! He can sing, he can dance, he can blarney, he can make love, he can fight, he can unravel mysteries, he can discover criminals, he can bring villains to bay, even if they number four.

In every act we have Mack's voice, unchanging as the years go by. He sings bright, lilting melodies, that winhim many encores. Once he accompanies himself on the piano, but as he is pretty good all the rest of the time we won't mention that.

Miss Mae Stevenson is Mack's leading lady this year. There is just one thing that all his leading ladies have to do—sit with their backs to the audience and look at Mack while he sings. She does this as well as any of her predecessors.

THIRD RELIEF TRAIN HAS LEFT THIS CITY

Western Metropolis to Rise from Ruins Bigger and Better Than Ever.

San Francisco is recovering from the shock of earthquake and fire and beginning to rebuild a bigger and better city on the site of blackened ruins.

The imperative need of the hour there is ready money. It is needed for general relief work and to pay the workmen who will clean the streets, establish new homes and start business going by spending wages.

Two hundred and fifty thousand people are being fed there, General Greely reports. The refugee camps are remarkably free from sickness, but the water supply is limited and adds greatly to the hardships of the homeless victims of a twin scourge.

Governor Pardee asks President Roosevelt that United States soldiers be kept to guard the city and he defends the militia. Looting in Chinatown will be stopped by bullets, says Colonel Maus, U. S. A.

The national relief fund will be the largest ever known. San Francisco citizens say that the Hearst fund, which last night amounted to $201,915.22, and the Hearst relief trains have been an incalculable blessing. The Boston Hearst fund, raised under the auspices of the BOSTON AMERICAN, in this city, amounted last night to $5,827.73.

New City Planned To Rise from the Charred Ruins

San Francisco, April 28.—Defying the ravages of earthquake and fire, San Francisco already is rising from its ruins. Plans have been made for many new structures and as soon as the wreckage can be removed the work of actual rebuilding will begin. Leading citizens predict that the greatest disaster in the history of American cities will be followed by the quickest recovery on record.

Stories of looting in Chinatown and other districts are reported and the United States troops are to be stationed where the work of recovering valuables is conducted.

GAVE LIFE TO AID IN SUIT FOR DEAR ONES.

John Lehane, Taken to Court on Stretcher, Testifies and Dies Soon After.

Carried to court on a stretcher, testifying there in his suit for $10,000 damages against H. H. Parcher, although he knew that it might cost him his life, John Lehane, of No. 112 Tyler street, collapsed on his return home and died within a few hours.

The defense will present its case tomorrow morning before Judge Hitchcock, of the Superior Court, but the prosecutor is beyond earthly courts. The case will be concluded without the man who braved death that his wife and child might be provided for.

On March 23, 1905, Lehane, who was at that time a sturdy and hale man, fell into a trench at the rear of his residence in Parcher's property. The trench, it was claimed, was not guarded by lights and Lehane contended that the strains and injuries he then received so weakened his system that he fell an easy prey to tuberculosis. The defence is that the injuries which Lehane received when he fell into the trench were not permanent nor serious.

Lehane had not worked a day, it is claimed, since he had the fall.

With her voice choking from emotion, Mrs. Lehane said to an AMERICAN reporter: "I did not want John to go to court Friday. I knew he was too sick to be moved, but finally they took him in an ambulance. When he got to court he fainted, [illegible] they brought him to and he made a good witness.

"When he got home he complained of being tired. When he went to bed he looked as well as he has since his fall, and I thought that the trip had not hurt him much. He did not sleep very well that night, but I was not afraid, as he has not had a good night's rest since the accident.

"About half past nine I started to leave him for some milk. When I got to the foot of the stairs I stopped and a feeling seemed to come over me telling me that I ought to go back, as all was not well. When I got back to the bed he had fainted, as I thought. He used to faint very often. I held him up in bed and sent for the doctor. When he came and saw my poor brave husband he said that John was dead. It was awful. I had never thought that he would go so soon."

Lehane's attorneys, Thomas J. and Edward P. Barry, say that they took Lehane's deposition five days ago, but that he insisted on being taken to court. He was told it would cause his death.

ORPHANS HOME IN BARRE RIDDEN BY SCOURGE

Barre, April 28.—Thirty-eight cases of diphtheria were discovered at "Stetson Hall," a home for orphan boys, to-day. Thirty-five boys, two assistants, and the matron, Mrs. J. N. Barse, are ill. Mrs. Barse's condition is critical.

The home has been quarantined. Drs. E. P. Bixby and George F. Spencer have taken charge of the cases, and all of the fifty occupants of the hall have been given anti-toxin treatment.

No cause can be ascertained for the sudden spread of the disease. No one outside of the hall has yet been taken ill, but every house is being carefully watched to avoid any possible epidemic in the town.

The first case was discovered on Thursday. The presence of diphtheria cultures was discovered at noon to-day. By special messenger the cultures were sent to Dr. Emerson, a prominent Springfield physician. Within four hours he reported and the home was immediately placed in quarantine.

Mrs. J. N. Barse, who is the wife of the superintendent of the home, has been given special attention. Her case is serious, although it was not feared that she would die.

The "Stetson Hall" Home for Boys is located in the centre of the town, and was endowed by Henry A. Pevear of Lynn. Some persons attribute the disease to the water, but the doctors have as yet been unable to agree upon the cause.

Paris, April 28.—All the railways and bridges in the department of the Seine are now under a strong guard of soldiers as the result of information having been lodged with the government of the existence of a wide-spread plot to destroy them with high explosives between now and Monday morning.

The most rigorous precautions are in progress everywhere and hundreds of arrests of labor leaders have been made within the past twelve hours.

Many terrified inhabitants are fleeing from the city and not in many months has there been such a spirit of absolute terror among the inhabitants of this and other cities of the Republic. The bank withdrawals Saturday were enormous and every train that left the city during the day and night was filled with residents, laden with money and valuable plate. COLLEGE ROMANCE HAS SEQUEL IN MARRIAGE.

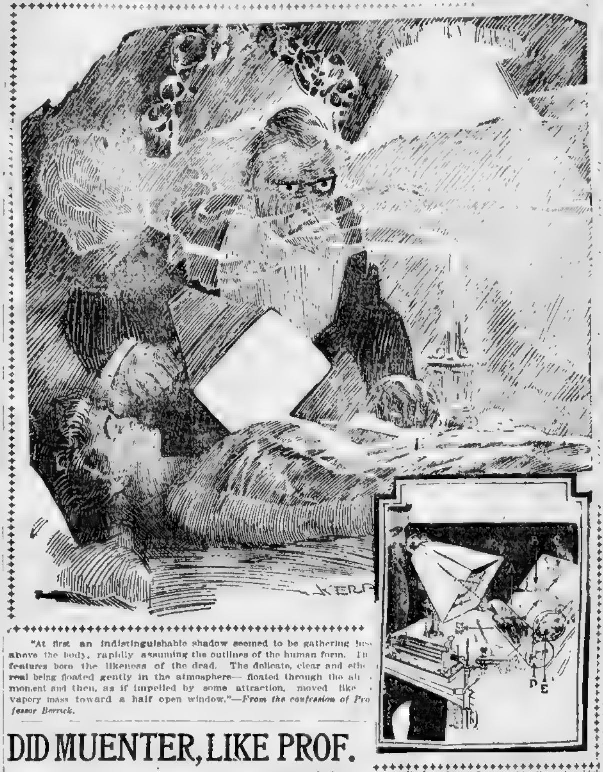
A courtship begun nearly ten years ago at college culminated last night in the wedding of Miss Margaret Helen Currier to Hendrick Ware Barnum, both of Cambridge. The ceremony took place at Appleton chapel, the Rev. Rufus H. Dix of South Boston officiating. The young couple will make their home at once at No. 87 Gainsboro street.

Mr. Barnum is a member of the law firm of Elder and Whitman of Boston. He is a graduate of the Harvard law school, class of 1903. Both he and his

1 MAN; 25 PACKS OF CARDS FOUND IN RAID

Captain O'Lalor, with Sergeants Goff, Driscoll, and Manning, of the Dedham street station, raided the house at No. 221 Shawmut avenue last night, but all they got was one man, John A. Nye, over 70 years old, twenty-five packs of cards and a quantity of poker chips. It appears that the visit of the police was ill timed, as seven or eight men appeared on the scene while the policemen were searching the house. The men were allowed to go, as the police had no evidence against them. Nye was arrested, charged with being present where gaming implements were found.

How Spirit Leaves Human Body, According to "Mystic" Theory



"At first an indistinguishable shadow seemed to be gathering just above the body, rapidly assuming the outlines of the human form. Its features bore the likeness of the dead. The delicate, clear and ethereal being floated gently in the atmosphere— floated through the air a moment and then, as if impelled by some attraction, moved like a vapory mass toward a half open window."—From the confession of Professor Berrich.

DID MUENTER, LIKE PROF. BERRICH, KILL WIFE TO SEE SPIRIT LEAVE BODY?

By his own confession, Professor Adolph Berrich, of Boston, murdered his wife that he might test his theory that he could see her soul leave her body. When arrested in Colorado he declared that he had seen it; that it rose like a shadow as she drew her last breath.

The police now believe that Erich Muenter, the Harvard instructor who is alleged to have killed his wife by poison, did so from the same motive. Muenter is known to have been a Mystic, and to have held strange beliefs in regard to the relations of soul and body.

Here are the confession of Berrich, and the theory in regard to the death of Mrs. Muenter.

THE THEORY.

Erich Muenter, according to his relatives and those of his wife in Chicago, is a Mystic. He believes that the body is but the temporary resting place for the soul, and that the soul can be liberated from the body at will by one who has attained the proper state spiritually.

He believes further that the soul leaves the body after death as vapor, and can be seen by one who has attained this exalted spiritual state.

Another of Muenter's theories is that those who have attained the higher life kill their young that they may enter the spiritual state without undergoing the hardships of an earthly existence.

Mrs. Muenter's brothers in Chicago declared that Muenter, four years ago, made an unsuccessful attempt to kill his wife and infant child by asphyxiation. They declare that they believe his wife's death is the result of a second attempt.

Muenter believed, they say, that only by cremation could the soul be liberated from the body after death. This accounts for the fact that he insisted that her body be cremated. They account for the fact that he did not attend the incineration by saying that he wished to test his theory of the possibility of the soul being released from the living body at will. It is thought that he remained away from the crematory, believing that he could free his soul from its temporary habitation and, through its spiritual eyes, see his wife's soul leave her body much more clearly than if he were present in the flesh.

THE CONFESSION.

BY ADOLPH BERRICH.

I killed my wife that I might watch her soul pass from her dead body. I took her life to aid the cause of science.

I knew for months that I was going to do the deed. I had perfected my apparatus of light bulbs by which I believed I could detect the passing of a human soul and all that remained for properly testing it was to operate on a dead person just at the moment of the final breath.

My wife came home one night from a fashionable ball, worn out from her exertions of the evening, and asked me to give her a headache powder. I gave her a pellet of morphine sufficent to plunge her into a deep sleep. When she became unconscious I carried her body into my laboratory and injected drops of cyanic acid sufficent to cause death.

As she gasped out her last breath the rays of my light bulbs showed a shadowy form above her body. It gradually took shape and I recognized my wife's body rising into the air. On her face was an expression of serenity and contentment beyond description. Her eyes, for a moment, rested on mine. They showed simply mild astonishment. The next second, her body drifted through the air and vanished through the closed window.

I must have lost my senses then. When I came to myself I realized for the first time what I had done. I have been paying the penalty for long months.

12 O'CLOCK BILL PUTS GUILD IN DILEMMA.

Temperance Element of the Republican Party Warns Him of Loss of Votes if He Signs the Liquor Measure.

Whether Governor Guild will sign the 12 o'clock bill or not is the question that is worrying the radical element of the temperance party and the ultra practical wing of the Republican party.

The temperance people say the signing of the bill will mean the loss of thousands of votes to the Governor in the rural districts and small cities next Fall. They threaten to conduct a stiff campaign against him if he signs the bill, and have sounded the warning to the Republican State Committee that they will send speakers into every country district to speak against Governor Guild if the 12 o'clock bill becomes law through his signature.

Yesterday Miss Eva M. Brown, secretary of the Faxon Temperance Bureau, and Melvin M. Johnson of Waltham, counsel for the bureau, and ex-Mayor Keith of Brockton, called on the Governor and told him of the sentiment which they declare exists against the bill. It was intimated to the Governor that he would make a sad political mistake if he should sign the bill.

Certain members of the Republican State committee have become scared at the fighting mood of the temperance element, and they have been trying to induce the big fellows in the party organization to see the Governor and talk the situation over with him. The threats of the [illegible] do not appeal to these eminently practical politicians, it is the effect on the party vote. The broad members of the committee and other influential Republicans are assuring the Governor that for every vote of the temperance Republicans he loses by signing the bill he will gain two from the Democrats and independents in Boston and the metropolitan district.

PREVIOUS ATTEMPT TO SLAY WOMAN ALLEGED

All Outgoing Steamers Watched to Prevent Possible Escape to Europe.

Erich Muenter, Harvard instructor and "mystic," is still at large, and the police of the entire country are searching for him. The Cambridge police accuse him of the murder of his wife. Considerable quantities of arsenic were found in her stomach, although she had been treated by Christian Science during her last illness, and had taken no medicine. Muenter showed great opposition to the autopsy the medical examiner made, and hastened to Chicago with his wife's body when it was over. Until yesterday the police lacked a valid motive for murder, the only one they had advanced being the $1,000 insurance that had recently been placed on Mrs. Muenter's life. A motive was found when it was learned, in Chicago, that the Harvard instructor was a disciple of mysticism, and that his beliefs took a weird form that might explain his killing of his wife.

Muenter believed in the doctrines of theosophy, say leased wire dispatches to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN from Chicago, where his relatives live and where his wife's remains were cremated last week. He believed that even in life the body was but the temporary garment of the soul, and that the astral body could leave the physical body at will if the subject had but advanced far enough in knowledge. He had expressed the opinion, it is said, that the soul would be released from the body, at death, only by cremation.

Say He Tried to Kill His Wife Once Before

He had a theory, as well, according to his relatives, that in the highest form of life creatures destroy their young so that they may enter the spiritual state without undergoing the penalties of earthl existence. He was also convince that during cremation, the souls the dead may be seen passing f their bodies provided he who is an "adept."

INVESTIGATION UNVEILS STRANGE TALE OF DEATH

[illegible] Mrs. Muenter [illegible] spoiled and that what was wanted [illegible] in connection with her [illegible] did not come to [illegible] Friday afternoon, when the BOSTON AMERICAN published an exclusive [illegible] the sending broadcast of notices by the police department of Cambridge. In the meantime Dr. Muenter [illegible] Chicago, disappeared from [illegible] to return to B[illegible] effaced himself [illegible] friends and acq[illegible]

That Mrs. Muenter [illegible] Scientist, and consequently was not attended by a physician [illegible] of death, has surrounded the case with more mystery than would have been the case otherwise. During [illegible] illness she was attended [illegible] Scientists, who have had little to say since her death regarding the case. Some light upon the circumstances is cast by two regular medical practioners, who were called in by Muenter when his wife seemed at the point of death.

Left Baby Girl

Mrs. Muenter gave birth to a daughter on April 6. Previous to that time, during her illness, she had been attended by Mrs. Nickerson of Winchester, and Mrs. Edith Chase of No. 127 Mount Auburn street, Cambridge, the latter being present as nurse. The child was healthy and strong and Mrs. Muenter seemed on the road to recovery for several days.

Then Professor Muenter called on Dr. H. B. McIntire of Cambridge [illegible] Mrs. Muenter [illegible] from [illegible] weakness, and [illegible] serious, but not necessarily dangerous condition. At that time she could have been saved, he believes, had she been properly treated. He learned that his directions as to medicine and attention were not carried out [illegible] the rules [illegible] Science [illegible] to continue [illegible]

Then Dr. [illegible] W. Taylor of Cambridge was [illegible] By this time Mrs. Muenter's [illegible] had become [illegible] ous. He had no hesitation in informing Professor Muenter that his wife was dangerously ill. It was evident to his eyes [illegible] suffered from the [illegible] following the birth of her child, but was suffering from some illness that might be a complication from that condition. [illegible] he was [illegible] and frankly told Professor Muenter unless proper treatment was given [illegible] would [illegible] die. [illegible] women in attendance [illegible] method of [illegible]

[illegible] there was something the matter with Mrs. Muenter's liver and gave her "tablets" [illegible] on evening and four [illegible] the following [illegible] her greatly.

Early Monday morning, April 16, Mrs. Muenter died. No one was present with [illegible] "I thought she was [illegible] well," said [illegible] BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN [illegible] when suddenly [illegible] a twitching [illegible] in an adjoining room with the baby when the end came [illegible] sleeping more [illegible] When we went into the room she was dead."

Professor Muenter seemed distracted almost to the point of insanity by the death of his wife. He sent for Dr. Taylor and asked for a death certificate. While Dr. Taylor was undecided about whether he could properly comply with the request Muenter sent for Undertaker Wood, whom he asked to prepare the body for cremation. Noting the distorted condition of the face, Mr. Wood asked to see the death certificate, and Muenter told him Dr. Taylor would furnish it. Still not satisfied the undertaker [illegible] Medical Examiner Swan.

Find Traces of Arsenic.

At about the same time Dr. Swan received a message from Dr. Taylor, who had decided not to take the responsibility of signing a death certificate, and an autopsy was held, at which the physicians in attendance learned that Mrs. Muenter had died from a peculiarly aggravated irritation of the stomach. They removed parts of the stomach and intestines and sent them to Professor Whitney of Harvard for [illegible] were found [illegible] analysis dis[illegible] of the poison [illegible] quantities, it is said, not consistent with its use as medicine, even if Mrs. Muenter had taken any medicine, which is denied.

It is said that Professor Muenter, when Professor Wood told him there would be an [illegible] exclaimed excitedly: "I will [illegible] that when it [illegible] allow it he [illegible] was against [illegible] his wife to allow [illegible] examination of a body."

Muenter [illegible] planned to have his wife's body cremated at Cambridge. As soon as the autopsy was over he notified Mr. Wood that, in response to telegrams from relatives in Chicago, he had decided to take the [illegible] and must leave on the following day at 2 o'clock. In the meantime the medical examiner, as soon as the examination was over, gave a burial certificate that recorded the cause of death as "gastro-duodenitis following childbirth," and as it was entirely regular for the undertaker to proceed with the disposition of the body he prepared it for transmission to the West.

It is explained by Medical Examiner Swan that later developments show the "gastro-duodenitis" to have been caused by arsenic, a fact that was not apparent until after an analysis.

New Symptoms Develop.

[illegible] at this time that new symptoms [illegible] develop, of which Dr. Taylor [illegible] informed. Mrs. Muenter suffered [illegible] and was seized with frequent Cremated at Chicago.

Muenter, with his two children, the youngest but ten days old, left on the following day for Chicago. Until the very moment of leaving he was greatly perturbed for fear of missing the train. Mrs. Bertha Derrick, of Cambridge, a bare acquaintance, who is well known for her charitable work, volunteered to go with him to care for the baby, and her offer was gratefully accepted.

At Chicago Mrs. Muenter's body was cremated and the ashes buried in Rosalndale Cemetery. Muenter was not at the burial and left his mother-in-law's home soon afterward, saying that he was going to return to Cambridge. His belongings at No. 107 Oxford street had not been touched, and are still as he left them. Since he disappeared from the home of his wife's people, leaving his children, letters have been received by friends at Harvard, worded incoherently. In one of which he is said to have enclosed his resignation as instructor at the university.

The Cambridge police have established the fact that Mrs. Muenter's life had been recently insured for $1,000 in her husband's name, but no effort has yet been made to collect the money. Whether or not this might supply a motive for murder is a debatable subject. It is said that Mrs. Muenter's family is prosperous, and that neither he nor his wife was ever in serious need of immediate funds.

Muenter was a hard-working teacher, and was at the same time endeavoring to secure his doctor of philosophy degree at Harvard. No one can be found at Harvard to say a word against him more than that he was a severe instructor, and had a tendency to be hard in his markings. His friends—and he had many—believe either that he can explain all or that he is insane through overwork.

A discrepancy appears in the day of death as shown by the police notice asking for the arrest of Muenter, and the death certificate. The certificate gives the date as April 15, while the police declare Mrs. Muenter died on the 16th. The explanation is simple.

When Dr. Swan viewed the body on Monday he deemed from the advance of rigor mortis that Mrs. Muenter had been dead since before the preceding midnight, and consequently so stated in his death return. Upon the discovery of arsenic in the stomach the rigor of the body was explained by the presence of the poison, and it became evident to the physicians that death had taken place several hours later

MUENTER'S WIFE, WHOM HE IS ACCUSED OF MURDERING, AND DAUGHTER HELEN

ERICH MUENTER, WHO IS ACCUSED OF MURDER.

TRIED TO KILL WOMAN ONCE BEFORE, SAYS HER BROTHER

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Chicago, April 28.—"There is no question in my mind that Muenter murdered my sister, for this was the second attempt," said Walter Krembs, brother of Mrs. Muenter to-day, to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN correspondent.

"The first attempt happened more than three years ago, when little Helen had just been born. He and my sister lived at No. 5,620 Ingleside avenue in a flat with Professor and Mrs. John M. Crowe of the University High School.

"Mrs. Muenter [illegible] very well and had gone to sleep. [illegible] in attendance went down town for a couple of hours. Muenter was left alone in the house with his wife.

"Not long after the smell of gas filled the house and the woman in the flat below burst into the house and found the gas turned on from all the burners in the room and my sister and the baby nearly suffocated. Muenter [illegible]

Said It Was an Accident.

"He explained that it was [illegible] and we could not prove it wasn't. [illegible] thought it was very strange that gas was needed in a well-lighted room in the middle of the afternoon, or why it should have happened that three jets should have been turned on all at once."

"His behavior, when he came home with his wife's body, was very strange," said Eugene Krembs, another brother.

"We asked him about how she died, and who was present and what doctor attended her, but he would cover his face with his hands and cry.

"'Oh, don't ask me, don't ask me.'

"'Why?' we asked him.

"'Oh, don't ask me, don't ask me,' was all he would reply.

"So we said to him:

"'We will give you a week to collect yourself and then you must tell us something [illegible] manner of our poor sister's death.'

Wouldn't Go to Funeral.

"He reached here the morning of April 18 and the body was cremated that very afternoon. He spent the night in the home of one of his sisters. The next day he [illegible] she died she had given him a written statement to that effect."

POLICE WORK ALONG MANY LINES TO SOLVE MYSTERY

After a long and hard day's work the Cambridge police at a late hour last night had made little progress, either in finding evidence that would conclusively prove that Professor Erich Muenter murdered his wife Leone K. Muenter, or in learning the present whereabouts of Muenter.

Chief Inspector Hurley summed up the day's progress when he said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"We know that Mrs. Muenter died from arsenical poisoning. We know that Professor Muenter acted in a suspicious manner after her death. We know that he promised to return to his home in Cambridge, where all his belongings are, and that he has not. That is all. We have not learned where the arsenic was secured. We have no additional proof that Muenter administered it.

"This, however, is true. Somebody poisoned her. Who had the opportunity and who might have had a motive? The household was reduced to a husband, a nurse, a three-year-old child and a lodger. The nurse had no motive. Mr. Bryant, the lodger, had neither motive nor opportunity. The child was with neighbors most of the time. Eliminating these, there is but one left—the husband."

F. E. Bryant, the Harvard student who lived with Muenter and was more a friend than a lodger, in the usual sense of the term, returned to the home at No. 107 Oxford street, yesterday. Everything in the house is in the same condition as when Muenter left it, but Bryant does not remain there much since the place has been under surveillance.

He found several letters in the box at the door and carried them into the house. When he returned he would not say whether or not they had [illegible] A friend was with him and [illegible] North Cambridge [illegible] brisk girl.

In talking about it, Mr. Bryant said to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter: "[illegible] is not guilty of any crime. Except that he has not returned as he promised I see nothing in his conduct to justify any suspicions against Mr. Muenter. That, I should think, would cover anything I could [illegible] I have known him a long [illegible] I knew him in the West. [illegible]"

Police watched the house all day. [illegible] Inspector Neagan sat in the office [illegible] opposite the Muenter residence, waiting, they said, for the return of Mr. Bryant. At 6 o'clock they went to the Muenter house, opened the private mail box of the missing instructor and carefully examined the writing and postmarks on letters that had been delivered since Bryant had been gone.

Investigation as to the past history of the Muenters develops no information that tends to explain the death in any way.

Miss Margaret Hutchinson of No. 63 Oxford street, a well-to-do resident, who let a room to Professor Muenter up to the time he began housekeeping, said he was an exemplary man to all appearances.

"We gave over one of our best rooms to Professor Muenter early last year," she said. "His wife had not arrived from Chicago. I met him only casually from day to day. He seemed to be an intense thinker and a highly cultivated man. When his wife came from Chicago he took up housekeeping on Oxford street and I have not met him since."

MAN ACTING QUEERLY IN FORT WAYNE, IND., RESEMBLES MUENTER

Chicago, April 28.—That Professor Erich Muenter, of Harvard University, wanted by the Cambridge police, is wandering about in an insane condition, due to his hard studies and his investigations into mysticism, is the belief of the Chicago police.

This seems to have a basis from word they have received of a man who appeared in Fort Wayne last Tuesday, and attracted much attention in a cafe by his wild actions and [illegible] language.

This man [illegible] responded to the description of Muenter. He declared that he was a Harvard professor, and, in a wild but seemingly learned manner, he discoursed on two subjects—suicide and immortality. The police of Fort Wayne have been hunting for trace of this man since word came of Muenter's alleged crime.

DRUGGIST NEAR MUENTER'S HOME SOLD HIM MERCURY

That Professor Erich Muenter had purchased a deadly poison at a drug store barely two blocks from his home, but a few days before the death of his wife, and signed for it upon the "poison book" which all druggists are required by law to keep, was a discovery of last evening. Investigation proved that the poison was a preparation of mercury, instead of arsenic [illegible] have [illegible] Mrs. Muenter [illegible] to the [illegible] Mrs. Muenter [illegible]

He had a nurse's order for them, and Druggist Garratt, knowing that this preparation, although a deadly poison if taken internally, is used by all physicians and nurses for antiseptic purposes, had no hesitation in filling the order.

DECLARES HUSBAND WAS "KIND AND SYMPATHETIC"

Mrs. Henry C. Nickerson of No. 18 [illegible] street, Winchester, who was engaged last February to treat Mrs. Muenter during her illness, makes the following statement:

"I was asked by Mrs. Muenter to take charge of her case last February. I was in Washington at the time the child was born, [illegible] was two weeks before it was expected. When I returned I was called to [illegible] April 9. Everything then [illegible] harmonious, but I learned that liver trouble had developed, which was indicated by incessant vomiting. On the next day, Tuesday, the nausea continued, and examination revealed a lump as large as one's fist in the region of the liver. Wednesday morning she was decidedly better, but still experienced a [illegible] sensation in the region of her stomach which gradually grew less painful, the nausea subsiding. At the same time it seemed to me there was a violent pressure which might indicate enlargement of the liver, which afterward proved to be the case.

"Saturday Professor Muenter was of the opinion that his wife was growing worse, and insisted on calling a physician, and I retired from the case. I understand that the physician at once detected a serious liver trouble."

Mrs. Nickerson, being asked regarding the attitude of Professor Muenter toward his wife during her sickness, said:

"All during his wife's sickness he was kind, sympathetic and attentive. He appeared to me to be a most loving husband, willing to do all that any man could under the circumstances."

TWO HARVARD TEACHERS ARRAIGNED FOR MURDER

Harvard have already faced murder charges, and should Professor Muenter be tried on a similar charge it will make three cases to have a connection with that institution of learning.

The two cases now passed involved men who were only assistants in their departments [illegible] regular members of the teaching corps of a portion of the drudgery.

In the famous case of Professor John White Webster, who was tried for the murder of Dr. George Parkman, found guilty and hanged more than fifty years ago, a full member of the faculty, the professor of chemistry, met a shameful death. The cause of the murder was a dispute over a debt which Professor Webster owed to Dr. Parkman.

Charles R. Eastman, an instructor in [illegible] ology at Harvard, was the second Harvard teacher to face a murder charge. He was arrested and tried for the murder of his brother-in-law, Richard H. Grogan, Jr., and after a long trial was found not guilty.

PE-RU-NA Cures a Case of Dyspepsia Which Doctors Had Given Up.

Mr. Lockhart's Recovery Proves a Great Sensation in His Home City

Dr. Hartman, the Inventor of Pe-ru-na, Receives Similar Congratulations Every Day.

ROCHESTER, Apr. 1.—Immense interest has been aroused by Mr. A. C. Lockhart's remarkable recovery, and his own personal statement will cause tremendous interest in the remedy that saved his life. He states:

"I am nearing forty-four years of age, was born and raised in Rochester, N. Y., and have been unlucky enough to be among the poor and obliged to work for a living.

"About fifteen years ago I commenced to be ailing, and called a physician.

"He pronounced my trouble a species of dyspepsia, and asked me, after he had treated me about six months, to get a leave of absence from the establishment by which I was employed (all told about twenty-five years), and go into the country, where I would get a change of life and fresh air.

"I did so, and got temporary relief. I went back to work and was again taken with very distressing pains in my stomach. I seldom had a passage of the bowels without force.

"I consulted another physician, with no better results. My disease kept growing on me, until I had exhausted the ability of sixteen of Rochester's best physicians. Can tell their names if necessary.

"The last physician recommended me to give up my work and go South after he had practiced on me for one year.

"They gave me a thorough examination with the X-Ray, with no results. They could not even determine what my ailments were.

"I do not and never have taken any stock in patent medicines, but your testimonials in the Rochester papers were worthy of consideration.

"I told my wife I was going to try a bottle of the Peruna. The next time I went to the city I purchased a bottle, and before the bottle was half gone I noticed a change for the better.

"I am now taking the fifth bottle, and have not an ache or a pain anywhere.

"My bowels move regularly every day, and I have taken on eighteen pounds of flesh, my usual weight being 145 pounds.

"I was down, at one time, as low as one hundred and twenty-six pounds.

"I have recommended Peruna to a great many, and they have recommended it very highly.

"I have told several people who complained of that species of catarrh that if they would purchase a bottle of Peruna and take it according to directions, and if when the bottle was gone they could come to me and tell me candidly that they had no benefit, I would pay for the bottle of medicine.

"I have so far had no complaints, but all first-class recommendations."—A. C. Lockhart, 27 Atkinson street, Rochester, N. Y.

Will the Doctors Give Pe-ru-na the Credit?

A number of members of the medical profession who have been treating Mr. Lockhart will be puzzled and surprised.

Mr. Lockhart had become so well known and his ailment had been the subject of so much speculation and experimentation that his restoration to health should create deep interest among the doctors who have had the opportunity of studying and prescribing in his case.

People prejudiced against proprietary medicines will no doubt belittle this cure as much as possible, but Mr. Lockhart and his family and his neighbors believe that the statements recited herein have perfect foundation.

Peruna has been doing much good in relieving untold cases of catarrh and catarrhal diseases in the United States, as well as in other sections of the world.

A great many prominent men and women know by experience that Peruna has special virtues in relieving catarrhal affections of the stomach and digestive organs, but, of course, it does not happen every day that so desperate a case as Mr. Lockhart's comes to public notice.

Proof of Pe-ru-na's Merit.

The fact that he had tried so many physicians—the fact that he had spared no pains or expense—had been examined by experts—had been treated by specialists—had passed through all kinds of experimentation and manipulation and yet received no benefit—and then, after all this had happened, he quietly begins to take Peruna and finds prompt relief and permanent cure—these facts are much too important and startling to escape the notice of the ever-vigilant public press.

Magazine Writers and the People.

Magazine writers who make a specialty of assaulting patent medicines are liable to shut their eyes against this kind of literature coming from the people. But the people are always inclined to listen to practical proofs uttered by practical people versus theoretical writers who know but little of the great masses and their needs.

Revised Formula.

"For a number of years requests have come to me from a multitude of grateful friends, urging that Peruna be given a slight laxative quality. I have been experimenting with a laxative addition for quite a length of time, and now feel gratified to announce to the friends of Pe-ru-na that I have incorporated such a quality in the medicine which, in my opinion, can only enhance its well-known beneficial character.

SAN FRANCISCO THANKS MR. HEARST FOR TIMELY AID TO SUFFERERS

TRAIN FROM NEW YORK NEAR COAST

LIKE EQUIPPING AN ARMY

By Boston American Leased Wire

San Francisco, April 28.—All San Francisco has thanked William Randolph Hearst for his efforts to raise the largest individual relief fund for the fire-swept city which once claimed him as a citizen. Of all the relief movements none were so timely as the train which came from Los Angeles before the fire had burned out

Not only has the Hearst movement provided food and clothing for homeless sufferers, but it is going a long way towards supplying San Francisco's latest and most pressing need—the demand for cash. The fund will help thousands who will appreciate generosity as never before.

In addition to the trains and steamers that have already reached the Golden Gate city, with food, clothing, and medical supplies, the big Hearst San Francisco relief train that left New York is now almost at the coast, with sixteen cars jammed full of supplies

Like Fitting Out Army.

The making up of this train, the gathering of the funds that purchased the large quantity of the merchandise in the train, and the soliciting of merchandise that was a direct gift, was like the fitting up of an army. To a large extent the value of the relief that came to San Francisco was dependent upon the intelligent handling of the money and the [illegible] of the most needed articles [illegible] merchants were willing to give.

[illegible] had time to realize the extent of the disaster, and while [illegible] first news of the [illegible] Hearst newspapers were rushing [illegible] the stricken people. [illegible] the morning the [illegible] in motion. The resources and [illegible] strategic position of seven great western cities were quickly [illegible] Salt Lake, Stockton, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Seattle, Chicago and Oakland, had an abundance food, clothing and medical supplies if they could be reached

On Thursday morning after the first dawn [illegible] to see San Francisco enwrapped in flames train No. 1 of the series of relief trains reached the scene of flame and ruin. There were five cars filled with canned meats, fruit and clothing for the immediate needs of the sufferers. It was [illegible] by famished women and children.

The Los Angeles train supplied the second [illegible]. It carried [illegible] doctors [illegible] nurses and fifty [illegible] Los Angeles who volunteered to go [illegible] city to do whatever [illegible] required. The [illegible] car was loaded [illegible] surgical instruments, medicines and hospital supplies. By the time the train [illegible] San Francisco nurses and doctors had been organized into corps and were ready to be assigned by the authorities to the tasks before them. This corps saved many lives.

Twenty-five physicians and seventy-five nurses were [illegible]. It carried also 1000 tents [illegible] fourteen feet. The Roanoke was loaded with several thousand [illegible] provisions.

And after that came load after load for the countless thousands encamped in Oakland, Golden Gate Park and the Presidio.

Orphans' Pitiful Cry.

The most pitiful cry which now arises from the ashes of the stricken city is that of the orphans and destitute children. They are utterly helpless, and some are too young to realize that they have lost father and mother. Their cry for help and care reaches all hearts. The women of America who already aided so nobly in the relief work of furnishing immediate help for San Francisco are taking upon themselves the task of specially looking after these bereaved little ones.

A number of prominent women in a letter to Mr. W. R. Hearst have asked the aid of the Hearst newspapers in organizing a national committee of women to care for San Francisco earthquake orphans as wards of the women of the nation.

Thirteen Hearst trains in all have arrived or are coming. Three are from Boston. The twelfth and thirteenth trains were made up especially for the benefit of the women and children of San Francisco. One was fifteen carloads of clothing and another had a car filled with sewing machines. Several other trains are still to be started.

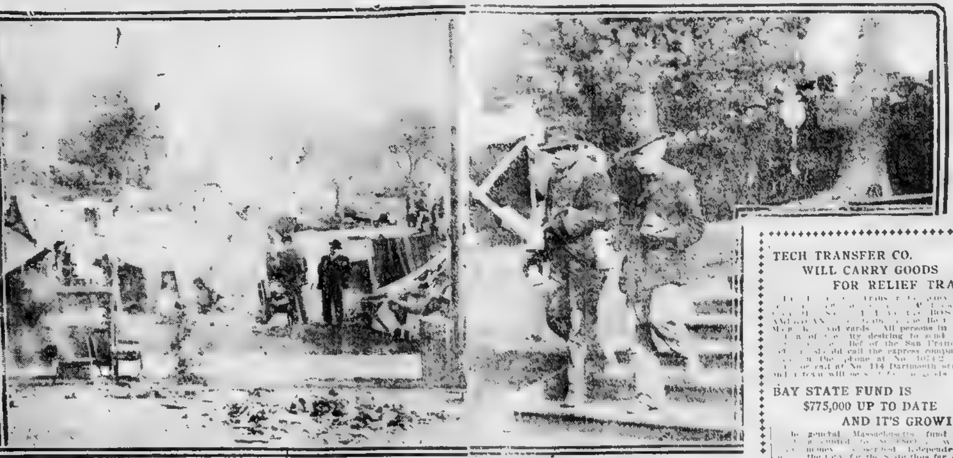
FRANKLIN SQUARE HOUSE INMATES HELP SWELL 'FRISCO FUND

From young women living in Franklin Square House a contribution of $26.80 has been raised for the San Francisco sufferers.

This sum has been subscribed for the Hearst Relief Fund. The girls of the Franklin Square House have displayed a spirit of generosity and sympathy. They have contributed to several other funds besides that forwarded by the BOSTON AMERICAN. The total contribution handed in last night was raised within three days.

WELLESLEY PLANTS 30 MAPLES, IN OBSERVANCE OF YEAR'S ARBOR DAY

The good citizens of Wellesley actively celebrated Arbor Day yesterday by planting thirty young maple trees along the various streets of the town. Special care was taken to get regular and thrifty trees for this occasion, and thus it is expected that not many years will pass before their contribution to the beauty of Wellesley will be conspicuously noticeable.



HOW SAN FRANCISCO SUFFERERS HAVE BEEN LIVING SINCE THE EARTHQUAKE.

LEADING WOMEN OF NATION TO AID FRISCO ORPHANS

New York, April 28.—Appeals to William Randolph Hearst by prominent women for the aid of his newspapers in organizing a movement to assist the earthquake and fire orphans of San Francisco have resulted in the formation of the National Mothers and Daughters' San Francisco Childrens' Relief Fund Committee.

It is believed that it will be able to raise a large fund for the care of little ones bereft of parents by the awful disaster at the Golden Gate. The plight of motherless and fatherless children is the saddest feature of as woeful a situation as any city ever knew

Other committees, under the direction of the National Committee, will be organized in all the principal cities. In a measure, the San Francisco orphans are now the wards of the women of the nation. All contributions to this special fund should be sent direct to the Astor National Bank, No. 18 West Thirty-fourth street, New York City

Those interested in the movement are among the most prominent in the country.

Mrs. Donald McLean, the National President of the Daughters of American Revolution, is chairman of the National Committee; Mrs. (Judge) Roger A. Pryor is chairman of the New York City Committee, and Mrs. Frank Sittig and Mrs. Timothy L. Woodruff head of the Brooklyn Committee.

Noted society leaders, wives of members of the cabinet, wives of United States senators and congressmen, wives of army and navy officers, and noted and generous-hearted women from nearly every State in the Union, have joined to aid in the good work.

Morton, wife of former Vice President of the United States; Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Victor Metcalf, wife of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. George J. CLASH IN RELIEF WORK BY LOCAL COMMITTEE.

The action of Edward J. McSweeney, secretary of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Association for the Relief of California, who, supported by Mayor Fitzgerald, shipped a carload of blankets to San Francisco last Wednesday night in spite of the objection of Lieutenant Governor Draper, chairman of the committee, caused a heated discussion at a meeting of the executive committee yesterday and a lively tilt between the Mayor and Colonel W. D. Sohier

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter last night Colonel Sohier said

"If there is to be any money spent by this committee I want to have a vote on the expenditure. If they do spend the money and I do not have a vote, I am going to find out whether or not the expenditure was a judicious one. I am going to find out whether or not the price paid and the article delivered were what they should be.

"I believe that in this case the members of the committee did not act for the best. It has been proven that they acted hastily. I believe that it is the duty of the committee to find out where they can purchase the blankets to the best advantage before they order them. We should find out whether or not we could get blankets nearer to San Francisco, in Salt Lake City, Portland, Ogden, St. Louis or Chicago. In this way we would not be wasting ten days in shipment."

Governor Guild would never have sanctioned the purchase of the blankets had he been informed that Lieutenant Governor Draper had disapproved of the purchase.

This statement is made on the authority of the Governor's private secretary.

The fact that Mayor Fitzgerald has been at some pains to assert that Governor Guild sanctioned the purchase of [illegible] [illegible] executive committee.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—The government has decided to refuse to grant indemnity to foreigners who sustained damage to their property or other losses during the revolution.

Consumption and Hemorrhages Cured

MISS MINNIE GILROY

Doctors pronounced as incurable Miss Minnie Gilroy, of Morrison, Colo., who suffered agonies from consumption, hemorrhages, and severe coughing spells. She wasted away to a shadow and had given up all hope when she decided to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Miss Gilroy began to improve at once and gained 15 pounds during the first two months. She is today happy, well and strong, and writes the following letter of thankfulness:

"I suffered for a long time with consumption, and had terrible attacks of coughing and hemorrhages. I lost flesh and was all run down. My breathing became difficult and painful, and the doctors pronounced me incurable.

"I decided at last to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and procured a bottle. I began to improve at once, and gained fifteen pounds the first two [illegible]. My cough was relieved, the hemorrhages ceased, and I now feel splendid in every way. I can sleep soundly and have no more restless nights.

"I cannot say too much in praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, as it has permanently cured me after doctors' medicines failed to do any good."—MINNIE GILROY, Morrison, Colo., November 21, 1905.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

cures coughs, colds, consumption, [illegible] and pneumonia. It stimulates and enriches the blood, aids digestion, builds up the nerve tissues, tones up the heart and fortifies the system against disease germs. It prolongs life, keeps the old young and the young strong. It contains no fusel oil and is the only whiskey recognized as a medicine. This is a guarantee.

CAUTION.—When you ask for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. Unscrupulous dealers, mindful of the excellence of this preparation, will try to sell you cheap imitations and malt whiskey substitutes, which are positively harmful. Demand "Duffy's" and be sure you get it. It is the only absolutely pure Malt Whiskey. Sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and be certain the seal over the cork is unbroken. All druggists and grocers, or direct, $1.00 a bottle. Medical booklet and doctors' advice free to any one. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, New York.

Mark Twain's Touching Tribute to Ellen Terry

To Ellen Terry: "Age has not withered nor custom staled the admiration and affection we have felt for you so many years. I lay them at your honored feet with the strength and freshness of their youth upon them undiminished."

Ellen Terry's Message to American Public

America is a land which I adore. I have reason for the sentiment. No country—not even my own—has been kinder to me. Wherever I have been there, in every State, in every town, big and little, I have been received with open arms. The American people are as big in heart as their country is broad. They are a people of sympathy and understanding. To say that all is materialistic there is so ridiculously untrue. I have found artistic spirit and culture everywhere.

[illegible] chances are that this session's Legislature will not pass an anti-monopoly bill. The bill presented by J. T. COUNTESS ANNA IS POLITICAL HELP TO HUSBAND.

She Will Not Injure Boni's Chances of Re-election by Airing Domestic Troubles During Present Campaign

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Paris, April 28.—This was the day fixed for Count Boni de Castellane and his wife, the Countess Anna, to appear before Judge Ditte to [illegible] the court to make the formal attempt to effect a reconciliation in the suit for divorce brought by the Countess Anna before the court proceedings can begin. Judge Ditte was notified however, that the meeting had been postponed until after the pending French elections.

Countess Anna does not wish to injure Boni's political prospects by having her domestic troubles brought prominently before the public at this time and agreed to the postponement for this reason.

The attorneys representing both parties maintain that there has been no change in the relations of Boni and his wife, and the status of the case is unaltered. Nevertheless the compliance of Countess Anna in postponing the meeting before Judge Ditte in order to assist Boni to be re-elected to the Chamber of Deputies has started reports that there is a better chance of reconciliation between the estranged husband and wife.

WETHERFIELD GIVES BUSINESS TONE TO OFFICE.

OFFICERS ACQUITTED OF MUTINY CHARGE

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Kieff, Russia, April 28.—After a trial lasting twenty-three days the three officers charged with complicity in the mutiny of troops on December 1 last, have been acquitted. Of the ninety-one soldiers tried on a similar charge ten were acquitted, sixty-three were drafted into the disciplinary battalion for various periods, nine were condemned to serve prison terms of different periods and three were condemned to death. The commander of the regiment will commute the last sentences to penal servitude.

All France fears that scenes of the Revolution and the Commune will be re-enacted in Paris on May 1, when the greatest labor demonstration the French capital has ever known takes place. Sixty thousand soldiers garrison the city, and are to be stationed where they can sweep with bullets all the main thoroughfares and squares.

Paris, Fearful of National Crisis by Strikes and May Day Demonstration for Eight-Hour Day, Prepares to Save Republic from Second Commune.

Paris, April 28.—A Reign of Terror is feared in Paris on or after May 1, when the greatest labor demonstration ever known in the capital of France has been [illegible].

Newspapers are publishing in big headlines "[illegible] Revolution." It will not be a political, but a social revolt, it is predicted.

While the government and conservative citizens say that there is no danger of the present regime being overthrown, there is apprehension in all quarters, high and low, of May Day events, which will light inflammable Paris with the torch of rebellion.

Back of the unrest in the capital is unrest in many parts of France. That the [illegible] is [illegible] all well posted [illegible] are agreed.

Government fear is shown by the massing of troops in Paris.

It is said that there will be 60,000 soldiers mobilized here on Tuesday next.

They will be stationed at Montmartre, the Tuileries, Place de la Republique, where the Government will try to have the labor demonstration concentrated, the Louvre, Hotel de Ville, Place Voltaire, Place de Concord, Rue de Honore, Notre Dame Place, Vendome, Arc de Triomphe, Place de la Bastile, Palais Royal and Pantheon, and, in brief, at every strategic point in Paris.

Every square will be guarded and the main thoroughfares patrolled by big bodies of soldiers.

House Work Need Not Wear Her Out

The drudgery of house work seems never ending to tired-out, dispirited women who suffer from female complaints or irregularities. Inflammation and ulceration of the womb and ovaries cause fearful bearing down pains which are aggravated by much standing on the feet, and lifting necessary in house work.

But let no woman despair of relief from this torture. That famous tonic reconstructor of diseased or disordered female organism, has cured more than one million American Women, and it will cure you. When monthly periods are painful or irregular, when backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will bring back health, strength, and happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

It Gave Me New Life and Vigor

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Last spring, while we were moving I did considerable more work than my strength permitted, and, having mental trouble at the same time, my health broke down completely and I found myself unable to rest or eat. My nervous system became shattered and I was pale and emaciated and had to take to my bed.

My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, although I had no faith in patent medicines, I was so miserable that I would take anything for relief. I found that it made a complete change for the better, inducing appetite and restful sleep and imparting new life and vigor to my entire system.

I gained nearly fourteen pounds, my complexion looked fresh and clear, and my best friends were surprised and pleased at the change and could hardly credit the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had accomplished it.

THESE INVENTIONS HAVE RETURNED MILLIONS TO INVESTORS

Holcomb Engine Stock Has Jumped From 25c to 40c per Share in the past 30 Days Within the Next Two Weeks It Will Be Selling at 50c a Share. (Par Value $1.00)

Millions upon millions of dollars are paid each year in dividends by the companies controlling the great inventions of the mechanical world. All civilization pays tribute to the genius of Morse, Westinghouse, Bell and Edison in the form of royalties for the use of their wonderful inventions. The man who was far-sighted enough to recognize the value of an investment in those inventions [illegible] while those men who saw in the telephone [illegible] only interesting electrical toys are to-day rich [illegible] nothing more. Those were your opportunities for profitable investment twenty and thirty years ago. Profit by the experience so dearly bought and investigate the possibilities of the HOLCOMB AUTOMATIC ENGINE, an invention of equal, if not greater value to the world than was the telegraph, automatic air-brake, telephone, phonograph or incandescent light. An investment in the stock of the Holcomb Automatic Engine Company is bound to be immensely profitable because this engine will revolutionize all methods of power production from steam. Every [illegible] common; we have no preferred or promotion stock. [illegible] goes to treasury.

WHEN YOU BUY HOLCOMB AUTOMATIC ENGINE COMPANY STOCK YOU ARE GOING INTO BUSINESS FOR YOURSELF.

Others combine with you to make possible what you alone could not accomplish, but [illegible] Therefore you are neither risking [illegible] but are putting it to work where it can work continually and [illegible] beyond all question safely."

THIS COMPANY IS MADE UP OF HARD-HEADED, PRACTICAL BUSINESS MEN of the strictest integrity and with reason for their unbounded faith in the future of the Holcomb Engine. These men are for the most part manufacturers and mechanical men who recognize [illegible] of this wonderful engine [illegible] The officers are: Chas. H. Joy, President and Treasurer, one of Chicago's leading manufacturers and himself an inventor of no mean ability. Mr. Joy's individual responsibility and integrity is unquestioned. He is given high rating by both Dun and Bradstreet and recommended by all leading Chicago banks. F. H. Hughes, the Vice President, was formerly Ass't Gen'l Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Railroad and is a man well known in railroad circles and universally spoken of as being the highest type of honor and integrity. C. A. Holcomb is the Secretary and General Manager of the Mechanical Department. Mr. Holcomb is a mechanical engineer of twenty years' experience and is the inventor of the Holcomb Automatic Engine. Much of his life was spent in Beloit, Wis., where [illegible] subscribed for this stock and who vouch for the clean, [illegible] of Mr. Holcomb. [illegible] responsibility as well as private character of all the officials [illegible] upon request.

Be My Partner and I Will Make You Rich

I have invented the most wonderful engine in the world. An engine that can be built cheaper and will do more work at a higher speed with less steam than any other type of engine there is known. These engines are now in operation and are demonstrating daily that their superiority is beyond question.

This engine is not a mechanical toy or a freak novelty, but an actual working steam engine capable of doing the hardest kind of work under any condition. It has been examined and is indorsed by experts, who say that it is the greatest invention of the century, the mechanical marvel of the age. I offer you an opportunity to be a partner with me in the ownership and manufacture of this wonderful engine.

These engines have given such complete satisfaction that the demand for them is greater than our present factory facilities can supply. We need additional capital for the building of a larger manufacturing plant and for the equipment [illegible] company to manufacture the engines in large quantities to supply the market demands.

I am an honest man and am offering a meritorious proposition, which will stand the closest and most searching investigation. I have associated with me men of the highest personal honor and integrity, under whose management the rights of every stockholder [illegible] trust, etc. [illegible] stock [illegible] this company. Frenzied finance shall never control stock of this company, because the interests of even the smallest stockholder will be at all times protected against imposition or fraud. Every dollar of my own money is in this enterprise, as well as the money of my personal friends, some of whom have known me for 40 years.

I only [illegible] meet every person who reads this advertisement and submit to them [illegible] of my honesty and sincerity, as well as demonstrate the success of my engine.

If there is any further information that you want, either about myself or the engine, write to me at the office of the company, and I will in person reply to every question you may have to ask. If it is possible for you to come to Chicago, do not fail to visit our office and see for yourself what the engine will do.

Lowest Point in Months Reached in Market Values at End of Week

INSIDERS HOPEFUL, DESPITE MARKET SLUMP

BY THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

New York, April 28.—Although the stock market has suffered severely since the earthquake in San Francisco, the insiders still express confidence in their ability to hold prices at a level higher than the present one throughout the Summer. They say that after the first excitement has worn off and hysterical investors realize that San Francisco will be rebuilt and that the reports of damage have been exaggerated, most of them will want their stocks back again.

Indications already point to low money rates this Summer. The millions that have been shipped to San Francisco will be released into circulation as soon as the banks in that city are open for business. There is a possibility of heavy deposits in the California banks by the government. Those persons who have been trying so hard to cause a panic in the stock market have circulated [illegible] reports of insurance companies being on the verge of [illegible]. But practically all the insurance money due [illegible] will be paid. Experts estimate that more than $70,000,000 of this money must come from Europe. The balance of trade is already heavily against Europe, so that every dollar of this must be sent in gold.

The output of new gold from the mines promises to be very heavy this Summer. There is every reason to believe that the supply of gold in the United States will be so great by midsummer as to enable the insiders to have their bull market with no more delay in the programme than is reasonable in view of the earthquake.

The best authorities in Wall street refuse to go on record as to when the decline will be checked.

ORDERS TO SELL COMING IN FLOODS.

Boston Coppers Drop in Sympathy with New York Market Leaders.

POOR BANK STATEMENT CONTRIBUTES TO SLUMP

Amid wild excitement on the floor of the stock exchanges, stocks went plunging downward again yesterday in the most active stock market for a Saturday in months.

The decline was all the more severe in that it followed the breaks of Thursday and Friday, which were of about the same extent. Stocks are now about where they were before the bull movement of January and February took them up to record breaking levels.

Both in New York and Boston stocks were hammered unmercifully, Amalgamated, Anaconda, American Smelting, Reading and Steel common being the objects of the fiercest of the attacks. Losses were suffered almost without exception throughout the lists. The total sales in New York during the two hours of trading amounted to 1,005,925, which is a greater total than for many full days during the past few weeks.

Sequel to Earthquake.

Wall Street has given itself a greater shock than the San Francisco earthquake did. It has shaken optimism into pessimism, gains into losses, and strength into weakness. The break in prices of the three last days of the week, on Friday especially, was really due to the earthquake, but it was entirely unexpected. No one foresaw the extent of the break, even while realizing that securities must be sold in order that the cash needed in San Francisco from various causes, might be had.

The result is that no one now knows what to expect. Prices are about as low as when liquidation set in after the completion of the Winter's bull movement. The long, arduous process of raising them up has been rendered fruitless. Amalgamated is nearly at par again, Anaconda, Reading, Union Pacific, Steel and the other most active stocks are way down from their prices of less than two weeks ago.

Stocks are now at bargain prices, as is always said when they are low. They have been so for over a week, but the bargain hunters are not much in evidence at present, in spite of printed assertions that they have been freely buying in the market.

The recent course of the market was in sharp contrast to its action two days after the earthquake. There was then a tremendous rally which followed the break caused by the cataclysm, and it was confidently believed that the effect of the disaster was ended as far as Wall Street was concerned.

Had to Have Cold Cash.

But what has happened is that the multitude of interests who have need to send money to Frisco have had to sell securities in order to get the actual cash. Naturally they did not have specie in readiness for such an emergency. The insurance companies, which will be obliged to pay out $150,000,000 or more to San Francisco property owners did not, for instance, keep such enormous sums on deposit in the banks. To get the cash for transfer to California at some future date, they will have to sell standard stocks in which their capital and surplus are invested.

They have, indeed, already commenced such selling. Capitalists of New York as well as San Francisco have interests in the latter city. They cannot protect these without money, and they, too, are converting securities into cash. Hence it is that even the soundest stocks have been badly broken in price by the general selling. Fortunate indeed is the investor who has not [illegible] in step [illegible] stocks at the present [illegible].

There is no reason to [illegible] the selling [illegible] pletion. The great [illegible] [illegible] What is [illegible] that [illegible] stocks [illegible] buying [illegible] supporting [illegible] cannot be sold [illegible] and as traders will [illegible] as well as to invest, there is no reason to predict a further drastic decline.

Shorts Not Fully Covered.

As [illegible] market seems to [illegible] have already been [illegible] known that a number [illegible] out in the extent of [illegible] shares have now [illegible] of the market. Instead [illegible] believed that the short interest [illegible] and there is [illegible] of short stock outstanding. The weak long interest, moreover, is almost eliminated, and therefore the technical position of the market is [illegible].

The [illegible] Friday which was [illegible] nearly as [illegible] as did the [illegible] upon the heels of [illegible] which had been made earlier in the week. In fact, a substantial rally had been expected even by bears.

The severe drop in gilt-edged stocks was [illegible] but the [illegible] has been cleared [illegible] during the week [illegible] an indication [illegible] Some brokers even went as far as to say that the drop in such stocks as had been selling between 210 and 350 was a good thing because they had long been menacing the market.

The money market is not such an adverse factor as it was, although the New York banks have sent from $1[illegible] to $20,000,000 to the Pacific coast, and although they had to supply the banks in Chicago, Sacramento, Denver and other Western cities with the cash which these banks had sent to the affected district. The drastic liquidation in the security market must result in a decided reduction of bank loans.

Gold Coming From Europe.

Then, too, gold is coming in freely from abroad. With the $3,400,000 gold engaged Friday by the First National Bank of New York the total inflow since the movement began on March 12 last [illegible] of which [illegible] from London. [illegible] New York was at 4 [illegible] from [illegible] ranges from [illegible] money market is fairly easy, but the trend of rates, nevertheless, is upward.

The bank statement was unfavorable, the banks losing $5,909,000 of their surplus, which now stands at $10,367,000. Loans and deposits were greatly increased during the week, but the decline in specie was [illegible]. The bank statement [illegible] not affect the trading as [illegible] which the statement [illegible] was [illegible].

Except in two or three minor instances all stocks in New York declined yesterday from 1 to 7 points and that, too, for the third successive day. At the opening there was a little confidence, and it was felt that although there might be some further liquidation the worst was over. It was announced that few commission houses have more than a moderate line of stocks left on their hands. The confidence quickly disappeared, however, and the rush [illegible] began.

In the matter of [illegible] day's trading [illegible] points [illegible] during the most pronounced bull movement in the history of Wall Street. As before announced, yesterday's sales were the largest for any Saturday for months and exceeded many of the totals on full days since the bull movement was completed.

A coincidence is that just about a year ago the market underwent heavy liquidation and prices broke sharply. The level of average prices of railroad stocks is now close to that of a year ago. The continued decline, therefore, has practically wiped out all the large gains that were scored in the prolonged advance of the Winter and the record bull movement has been of only temporary effect.

Steel common was the market leader yesterday, with transactions of 137,510 shares, a very unusual amount for a Saturday. The stock touched 40¾ but broke and remained heavy, closing at 39¾, a loss of 1⅞. Union Pacific was second in point of activity, with 136,000 shares. It reached 146¼, but under heavy selling pressure it broke to 144¼, closing at 144¾, a loss of 1 5-8. Reading common was another active feature, 100,000 shares changing hands. This issue scored 125¼ as the highest for the day, but closed at 1.01¼, a loss of 3 5-8. Amalgamated was again one of the most active features and was subjected to especially heavy hammering. The price closed at 101½, a loss of 1 point. Only a week ago the closing was at 110⅛, and a few days before that the stock was selling around 114. American Smelting yesterday lost 5¼ points to 144¾. Anaconda lost 6½ to 245¾, or 26½ points, the closing of a week before. Brooklyn Rapid Transit lost 2¼ yesterday to 78¼. Delaware & Hudson lost 3½ to 194½. Great Northern preferred lost 7 points to 284½. Manhattan 2⅝ to 150 5-8. Northern Pacific 3 5-8 to 194⅛. Pacific Coast 5 to 124½. Tennessee Coal & Iron 1 ¼ to 139½. Texas Pacific 1 to 29 and Wisconsin 1½ to 23¼.

The course of prices in the Boston market was downward, in sympathy with the weakness in New York. In fact, the week in the coppers has been one of discouragement for shareholders, although the market for the metal has been consistently strong. The metal market has been entirely unaffected by the general adverse factors which have worked such havoc in the stock market. It has been unparalleled in its strength, but in the face of it the copper shares market, which had begun to stagnate, went steadily downward during the week. In the continued decline of yesterday Allouez lost 1 point to 35¾. Brigham [illegible] Consolidated lost [illegible] 1½ to 7[illegible]. Michigan [illegible] to 101½. Parrot [illegible] to 102. United Copper [illegible] to 58, and Wolverine [illegible] States Smelting and Refining [illegible] ception among the coppers [illegible] In the [illegible] Worcester was weak [illegible] points to 35. Another Advance in Indiana Oil

Friday, April 13, it advanced again from 89c to 91c a barrel—

Wednesday, April 25, it advanced again from 91c to 93c a barrel—

An increase of 4c a barrel in two weeks.

Verily, these are goodly and prosperous times for the holders of the stock of the Norton Oil Company.

Verily, the Muncie (Ind.) "Star," which newspaper I quoted from in my announcement of last Sunday, was touched with the spirit of prophecy when it foreshadowed—

"A gradual market advance until Ohio and Indiana oil fields reach a point around $1.40 or $1.50 a barrel. The market usually jumps forward 2, 3, 5 cents a barrel, and a series of such advances can now be expected."

Verily, I was right myself when in my announcement of last Sunday I said:

"The advance on Good Friday of the price of Indiana oil from 89c to 91c a barrel is believed by all well-informed oil men in the Hoosier and Buckeye States to be but the forerunner and precursor of a quick and long succession of sharp advances that must inevitably follow."

The upgrade has been struck, the ascent is well under way and I believe that prices of Indiana oil will continue to go higher until the figures of $1.40 or $1.50 a barrel indicated by the Muncie Newspaper are attained.

All this is significant because it throws additional safeguards around the strong and impregnable position of the preferred stock of the Norton Oil Company as a straight 10% investment and at the same time brings nearer the day when the common stook will begin the payment of substantial dividends.

I am offering the 10% Cumulative Preferred Stock of the Norton Oil Company at par, $100 a share, to yield 10% to the investor.

I am offering the Common Stock, par value $100 a share, of the Norton Oil Company at $34 a share, or about one-third its par value.

Quarterly dividends of 2½% on the preferred stock are payable January, April, July and October. Two dividends have been paid so far this year.

The preferred stock standing alone yields 10%. Prior to the beginning of dividend payments on the common stock this year it makes a net investment yield of 7.45% on both classes of stock—nearly double the rate paid their depositors by the savings and co-operative banks of Massachusetts, which only pay 3.73%, according to State official reports.

The common stock, in my opinion, will ere the close of another year be paying not less than 20% dividends, based on the present low selling price of $34 per share. All such successive advances in the price of its product as as that posted by the Standard Oil Company in the past two weeks add by just so much to the value of the common stock as an investment.

A policy of habitual conservatism in investment matters admonishes me to recommend that Norton Oil preferred and common be subscribed for jointly, representing as they do a sure, settled and satisfactory income upon the investment.

The Norton Oil Company has just put two drilling rigs to work and will bring in two new wells monthly from now on to swell the production from its 38 operating wells. This will be done until approximately 75 more wells have been drilled and brought in.

With $134 buy a share each of Norton Oil preferred and common, par value $200. With $402 buy three shares each of Norton Oil preferred and common, par value $600. With $1072 buy eight shares each of Norton Oil preferred and common, par value $1600.

This is an investment.

The Third Cipher.

(Copyright [illegible])

EDWARD WEST nodded quickly a[illegible] wanted t[illegible] gentleman's [illegible] really [illegible] Fiske's countenance betrayed nothing [illegible] not anything else more than the interest he had shown in everything the girl had said.

Joe Morgan received the startling information with mouth agape and his great hands folded across his broad chest.

"Upon my soul!" he ejaculated at last.

"Are you sure of this, Jane," asked West.

"I am certain of it, Mr. West," she replied, "although of course, I could be mistaken, as I did not see the young lady. I had a very strong suspicion [illegible] night, and when I came down this morning I found this bag on the table here."

She [illegible] the [illegible] as she spoke [illegible] Fiske examined it.

"Does it belong to Miss Taylor?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. I know it does. Look at the silver initials on it."

"It could belong to someone else," the detective [illegible].

"It could, sir, but it doesn't," Jane replied positively. "I have seen Miss Taylor carry that bag too many times not to know it. She had it in her hand the day she went away from here."

"Is that all you can tell us?" the detective asked after a pause.

"Yes, sir. I think that is all."

"Oh, by the way," and the detective turned to her again, "do you know what time it was when Miss Taylor left?"

"It must have been at least half past 11, sir." Jane taxed her memory a little and her face brightened. "Yes, I remember, sir, that when I heard the front door shut I glanced at my clock, and it was just that."

"Thank you," said the detective. "Now [illegible] you please, for a glass of water."

"No trouble at all, sir," Jane replied, and [illegible]

[illegible] more muddled than ever [illegible] Morgan.

With the dying away of the maid's footsteps the detective [illegible] upon the little [illegible] "M. T." on [illegible] to be empty, but he [illegible] from its depths a little [illegible] of colored board.

"What is it?" inquired West anxiously.

"The return half of a railway ticket," replied the detective. "It is to Boston from a small [illegible] side of [illegible]. The date [illegible] yesterday."

"What [illegible] that mean?" [illegible] Morgan.

[illegible] answer [illegible] But [illegible] Miss Taylor is [illegible] as we thought [illegible] questions. Why [illegible] wish to [illegible] her whereabouts [illegible] secret? Why should she pay a mysterious visit [illegible] Mrs. Pierce late at night? We must [illegible] answers to these two questions."

"I will not doubt her," West declared stoutly.

"No," said the detective, "but we must find out."

Joe Morgan had been thoughtfully listening.

"I'd give something," he burst out now, "to get a look at the telegram that came to Kate."

"And I intend to see [illegible]," said West quietly. "Now Mr. West, you may drive us to the telegraph office."

Jane appeared just then with the pitcher of water and three glasses. Her three [illegible] it down, thanked Jane for her courtesy and [illegible] in the automobile sped away toward the [illegible] telegraph office.

"I have friends in here," Fiske explained as he [illegible] the [illegible] and I think [illegible] two of you will [illegible]."

West and Morgan nodded their acquiescence and Fiske entered the telegraph office, where he was familiarly greeted by the man in charge.

"Well, Fiske," he said heartily as the two shook hands. "What is this, business or pleasure?"

"Both," Fiske replied with a slight [illegible] Now [illegible] get a look at [illegible] this afternoon for [illegible] Miss Katherine Pierce."

"In a minute," was the hearty response. "I remember the wire. It was so denced [illegible] here and I'll find it for you."

[illegible] before a copy of the dispatch was laid before the searching eyes of J. Chester Fiske, detective. He might have been astonished if he hadn't been expecting just something of this sort.

"It will take you some time to make any sense of that," remarked the manager with a laugh.

"Yes. It looks tricky," Fiske confessed [illegible] But the most complicated cipher is usually [illegible] I will take a copy of this [illegible]."

He made an exact copy of the telegram and thrust it into his pocket. After a little further friendly conversation he joined West and Morgan in the automobile and they were driven straight to Fiske's apartments in the Regent.

"Well, gentlemen," said Fiske as they sat down. "I have succeeded in getting a copy of the telegram received by Miss Pierce, but it may require a great deal of ingenuity to make anything of it. Our friends, the enemy, seem to be fertile in ciphers, and it is evident that Miss Pierce is one to [illegible]. Therefore, we may safely believe that she is a party to their proceedings."

"If she is a party she's an innocent one [illegible] on that," Morgan declared [illegible]

"Yet we don't know that that telegram [illegible] from the men who stole 'The Green Blaze,'" West put in.

"Now we don't know anything, Mr. West," agreed the detective, "but we are on the track of finding out something."

At a motion from him his visitors drew their chairs up to the table at which he was sitting. He spread out the copy of the telegram on the table as he talked.

"Now," he went on, "I am in great [illegible] when we have unravelled this [illegible] indicate to us a clear line of [illegible]. Yes, two gentlemen have faith [illegible] Miss Pierce and Miss Taylor. I [illegible] only say that the con[illegible] of them is to say the least [illegible] I hope, gentlemen, I may be [illegible]."

"I know Miss Taylor," West insisted.

"I know Kate Sargent," said Morgan. "If she [illegible] up in this business it is only because she is being made the tool of that scoundrel, Leonard Simms."

Fiske bent over the cipher and followed it with his forefinger. Finally he read it aloud while the two other men stared curiously over his shoulder. This is what the sheet contained:

WOMAN WON HIGHEST HONOR IN "AUTO CHASE" PUZZLE

STOPS GREEN AUTO, MRS. SMITH GETS $50 PRIZE.

Cipher Puzzle Was Easy for Her, So She Was at Place Appointed—Three Men Send Correct Answers by Mail

The women beat the men in the contest over the mysterious cipher in last Sunday's instalment of "The Great Auto Chase" in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. The list of winners is published in to-day's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, and it will be seen that the bulk of the $100 offered in cash prizes goes to women for pin money.

The big special prize of $50, as announced last Tuesday, was won by Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of No. 738 Washington street, Dorchester Centre. She read the story, studied the cipher and correctly decided that it indicated that the mysterious green auto would be in "Brookline, Cypress and Boylston streets. There at 5.15 Monday, April 23rd."

Forthwith Mrs. Smith was at the spot signified, with her copy of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN in her hand, ready to hold it when the green medium appeared and to claim the $50 prize for her energy and cleverness.

There was a crowd there waiting for the auto. Mrs. Smith was buffeted about in the throng, but she stuck to the right spot and, as the auto reached the corner, signalled it to stop. The prize was hers.

Other winners were those who were unable to be at the appointed place but who sent in the earliest correct solutions of the cipher. These are published for the first time to-day, as follows:

First, $25—A. K. Smith, corner Oakland and Hillside avenues, Everett.

Second, $10—Carrie B. Collis, Elwyn avenue, Portsmouth, N. H.

WINNERS OF "THE GREAT AUTO CHASE" CIPHER

Special Prize, $50—Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, No. 738 Washington street, Dorchester Centre.

Second Prize, $10—Carrie B. Collis, Elwyn avenue, Portsmouth, N. H.

Third, $5—Walter Williams, Station A, Cambridge.

Fifth, $5—Edward Hedges, No. 24 Milk street, city.

This second cipher in the weekly series of the mystery story was not very difficult, and hundreds of solutions were mailed to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, many of which were correct. But the above named were the earliest correct ones. One came by telegraph from Nova Scotia.

There are more chances, though, for the losers. Another mystery cipher is published in to-day's instalment of "The Great Auto Chase." It may puzzle the bright ones a little more than the previous ones have.

Here is your chance. Read the story. Puzzle out the cipher, decide where the green auto is to be, and be there yourself with a copy of to-day's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN in your hand, ready to stop the machine and get the $50 which a man will have ready to deliver to you.

If you can't be at the appointed place then mail your solution to the BOSTON AMERICAN and try for one of the five other cash prizes.

SNOW AT MALONE, N. Y.

Malone, N. Y., April 28.—Quite heavy snow fell here during the night. At five o'clock the thermometer registered 30 degrees above zero.

NEW MANAGER AND COMPANY FOR EMPIRE.

Another change is about to be made at the Empire Theatre, both in the management and in the stock company. It will be as radical a change as that which occurred a month ago. John T. Mitchell, who leased the theatre and was manager of the present company, retired a week ago, and R. H. Allen, owner of the property, took control. Mr. Mitchell gave the present company their two weeks' notice, and since then Mr. Allen has been engaging a new stock company which he intends shall be the best in the country.

This new company will begin its season on May 7 in Belasco and De Mille's comedy drama, "Men and Women," and its organization will be very strong. Katherine Grey, prominent among the Frohman companies, and recently playing in "Wolfville," and "The Red Kiss," is to be the leading lady. Harry Berkhardt, also a Frohman player, will be leading man. William Humphreys, one of the best heavy men on the stage and well known in Boston at the Castle Square, will play the heavy roles. Mary Sanders, Lillian Bayer and Cordelia McDonald will be in the company.

The other members of the company will be Wilson [illegible] recently with Mrs. [illegible] [illegible] at the Madison Square, New York; W[illegible] Evans of last winter's [illegible]; Thomas Neff of the Hackett [illegible] company; Edwin Yost, who [illegible] Vokes Stock Company of New York; F. W. Morrison, recently with the Blue Grass [illegible] company, and [illegible] H. Peters, manager of the "Darling of the Gods" company last season. A number of other [illegible] are pending and Mortimer Weldon [illegible] the company in a few weeks.

DRIVER RUNS DOWN BABY IN STREET, RUSHES OFF.

While playing in the street, in view of his mother, four-year-old Louis Solasca was run down by a two-horse truck in front of his home, No. 17 Billerica street, yesterday. The wheels passed over his side, and he received internal injuries.

The driver of the team drove off rapidly before his name was learned. The mother ran from the house, almost hysterical, tenderly picked her baby from the street, and carried him to the Relief Hospital. The boy is in a critical condition.

Here Is a Life Income for You Without Speculation

This Stock Has More Than Doubled in Value Since Sept. 1st, 1905. It Will Soon Double Again

Hetty Green, the Richest Woman in the World, Says: "The Way to Get Rich Is to Invest in Necessities."

The Bidwell Cold Motor is one of the greatest necessities of the 20th Century. This stock has already taken five jumps up. Now is the time to buy. It will go higher in about 30 days. The profit is yours. Don't speculate—invest. Here you have a necessity. Look at this list below. Every one of these people made his fortune by supplying some great necessity.

American Radiator, common	33c	100

THE BIDWELL COLD MOTOR AND GENERATOR.

And this is only a few. Safer and surer than life insurance or trust stocks. All this advance has been made in ten years and less.

I will supply the greatest necessity now known in the business world. The demand is so large that it will make all of us rich. If you want to get in with me on this you will have to be quick about it. The stock is selling like hot cakes.

I never made an unsuccessful invention. My first invention was the electric fan just as it is run all over this country in hot weather. I didn't get a patent on it but see what a tremendous success it is!

I next invented the Trolley Car System just as it is run to-day. I made it perfect and successful right from the start. It has never been improved since I invented it. Look at the millions of money it has made for the stockholders. The stock in the trolley manufacturing companies sold below 15 cents a share in 1893 and 1894. Poor men could buy that stock then. Thousands of them did buy it and every one who held on to it is a rich man to-day.

No Man on Earth Ever Lost a Penny He Invested With Me.

If so, I will make it good. Next I invented the Railway Car Telephone System. It is a system by which passengers or train crews can telephone from still or moving cars anywhere the same as if seated in an office. It is a more perfect system in operation than any other telephone you ever saw. This is on the road toward millions for the stockholders.

This Is My Greatest Invention.

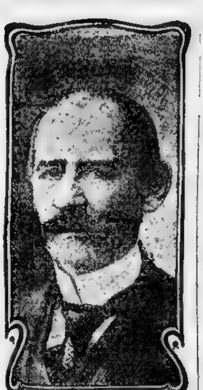
Now I have invented something bigger and greater than either of the above. It is called the Bidwell Cold Motor. It is guaranteed not to burn out and is exactly the kind of a motor the steam railroad people have been looking for. It will change all the steam railroad systems over to electric roads, because it will be cheaper to run than steam and can be run faster and more safely than any present method.

The one drawback the railroads have had in changing over to electricity has been that no motor as at present made can be run 150 miles at 60 miles an hour without burning out. It would melt the very wires.

By using the Bidwell Cold Motor a train of cars could be run from New York to San Francisco without a stop at the rate of 60 or 80 miles an hour and not even warm up and without a hitch.

Besides running faster they would be more safe and sure than steam, cost less to operate and would last longer than any other motor now known.

The Bidwell Cold Motor is the greatest invention out since I invented the trolley car.



PROF. BENSON BIDWELL

The Opportunity of a Lifetime.

I want to give every man and woman a chance to come in with me on this, for I expect to make millions for the stockholders out of this new patent.

The stock will be sold on the square. There will be no hocus pocus about preferred or common stock, nor any other scheme, trick or wrinkle by which anybody can be frozen out.

Every dollar invested will represent one hundred cents of the best stock. Every share will be exactly like every other share. The profit on every share will be the same as the profit on every other share. In short, there will be nothing but a square deal all around. This stock is fully paid and non-assessable.

I have a life long reputation for square dealing. I will personally see to it that every stockholder gets a square deal on this.

In order to make it possible for every man and woman to get in with me on this big deal I have decided to sell the stock for a short time only at the following prices:

100 shares, $55; 250 shares, $137.50; 500 shares, $275; 1,000 shares, $500; 5,000 shares, $2,750; not over five thousand shares at this price to any one person.

OUR MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN.

100 shares, $6 cash, ten monthly payments of $5 each; 250 shares, $15 cash, ten monthly payments of $12.50 each; 500 shares, $30 cash, ten monthly payments of $25 each; 1,000 shares, $65 cash, eleven monthly payments of $45 each; 5,000 shares, $270 cash, eleven monthly payments of $230 each.

Send all money by bank draft, express money order, P. O. order or registered letter.

Special to Electric Light Men and Manufacturers.

We are now prepared to fill your orders in our own new factory, where we have room to employ 100 people. We are now manufacturing the Bidwell Cold Motors. We are taking orders for cold motors and cold generators for arc and incandescent lights on a guarantee not to burn out for 10 years. Also self-cooling motors and generators guaranteed not to burn out for three years.

Be a Safe and Sane Investor and Get as Much of This Stock as Your Means Will Allow. It Will Pay You a Life Income in Handsome Dividends.

More money is made every day by good judgment in investing money than by all the labor and wages in the country. Safe and shrewd investments in this stock will make fortunes.

You will never get rich on wages. No one ever did. Every man in this world who ever got big money got it either by speculation or investment. Speculation is unsafe. You stand more chance to lose than you do to make. Investments are right the other way. Make a safe investment and it is sure to bring you returns.

Here Is a Vital Point to Remember!

There never has been a failure of consequence in electrical manufacturing. Stop and think of that. All are immensely successful. All pay big dividends and have made their investors wealthy.

This company will soon be one of the biggest in electrical manufacturing in the world. This is bound to be so, because there is not a place now where a motor or generator is used but it will have to sooner or later change for the Bidwell Cold Motor or Generator. Why? Because we make something better than any other kind now known.

These Are Cold Facts—You Must Act Quickly.

If you want some of this stock at the present low price you must come in now. There is only a small amount to be sold at this price.

I firmly believe that within five years the stock will be selling at $3 a share. This is your opportunity. It is a case of come quick or not at all. I am at the office, 860 and 861 Monadnock Building, from 9 to 5 o'clock.

RAYMOND SAYS HIS WIFE IS INNOCENT OF CRIME.

GRAND JURY READY TO REPORT ITS FINDING

Many Witnesses Heard in Hearings That Will Be Concluded on Tuesday.

FAMOUS MYSTERY MAY SOON BE CLEARED UP

Augusta, Me., April 28.—Whether or not there will ever be an arrest made for the murder of Mattie Hackett, who was strangled near her home in Readfield last August, will be decided when the Kennebec county grand jury, which is now investigating the case, has completed its work.

The grand jury investigation is to be thorough and [illegible]. It began at noon Friday and to-night only half the witnesses called had been examined. An adjournment was taken until Monday, when the investigation will be resumed.

Seven witnesses were examined to-day. They were Levi Hackett and his wife, the parents of the murdered girl; little Gertie Raymond, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Raymond, Dr. Milliken, Fred L. Brown, Walter Nickerson and William Cole, all of Readfield. Those to be examined Monday are Bert Raymond, husband of Mrs. Elsie Raymond; Detective R. L. Martin, of the Pinkerton agency of Boston, who conducted the investigation at the time of the murder; Lillian Cowan, Charles Beane, Mrs. Milliken and High Sheriff Ham.

Alford Johnson, the tramp who was in the barn with Mr. Hackett when the girl was slain and who was held as a witness for two months, has been summoned, but it is not yet decided whether he will be heard.

Incriminating Evidence.

All these witnesses made statements to County Attorney Leigh before the Grand Jury met, and on some of them great importance is placed. This is particularly true of Gertie Raymond. Miss Cowan is another important witness. It is said that she told Mr. Leigh that she saw Elsie Raymond near the Hackett home on the night of the murder.

Mrs. Elsie Raymond, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the murder, is in seclusion at the home of her brother-in-law, Warren Raymond, near Readfield Depot.

She denies herself to all visitors and by advice of her counsel, McGillicuddy & Morey of Lewiston, refuses to talk. Her husband, who was at the Court House to-day, waiting to be summoned before the Grand Jury, was interviewed by a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter this evening.

DEFENDS ELSIE RAYMOND.

He said that he was confident of the complete vindication of his wife.

"The fact that Elsie, my wife, has been talked about in connection with Miss Hackett's death has been very disagreeable to her, to myself and to all of our friends. I don't know what evidence there can possibly be to connect Elsie with the terrible tragedy.

"I don't know anything about the case myself, and my wife knows no more than I do. No one would be more pleased to see the murderer of Mattie Hackett brought to justice than Elsie and myself.

"To have my wife under this cloud of suspicion is unbearable. A thorough investigation will bring out the true facts in the case, and Elsie's vindication will follow. My wife's health has been greatly injured by the notoriety which she has attained. My Elsie is innocent and no harm can come to the guiltless."

INDICTMENT TUESDAY.

Sheriff Ham said this evening that in all probability the investigation of the Hackett case would be concluded by the Grand Jury late Monday afternoon, and the indictments would be reported on Tuesday. The witnesses in the case, with one or two exceptions, returned to their homes this evening to come back Monday.

Levi L. Hackett, the father of the victim of the tragedy, said:

"I only ask that justice be done. Whoever is guilty of killing my daughter should be made to suffer the full penalty of the law. I know no more about the terrible affair now than I did the night Mattie was killed, and I cannot hazard a guess about things of which I have no knowledge. I don't know who did that cruel deed, but whoever is responsible, let him or her suffer."

The firemen had little difficulty in controlling the fire and the damage was about $50.

A. G. VANDERBILT CALLS HORSE SHOW JUDGES UNFAIR

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, April 28.—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's sensational withdrawal of his string of horses from the Brooklyn Horse Show last night was the all-absorbing topic of horse circles to-day, and especially at the Excelsior Handicap at Jamaica. Mr. Vanderbilt's criticism of the judging has not formed itself into the official protest, but echoes are looked for in the future. The Riding and Driving Club, under whose auspices the show was conducted, are perfectly satisfied with the work of the judges.

Mr. Vanderbilt had entered his horses in every class, and his strongest competitor was Judge William H. Moore, who had his string of twenty-five horses present. The highest honors were carried off by Mr. Moore. The youthful millionaire of Newport needed but one more win of one class to make the cup his personal property, and he had Rustling Silk and The Youngster there as possibilities. His stable manager, Charles W. Wilson, advised him to withdraw, and at the eleventh hour he did. Both Mr. Vanderbilt and his manager declared that the judging was unfair, but neither of them would go into details.

Mr. Vanderbilt was [illegible] criticized Joseph W. Ogden, one of the judges of the harness class, and [illegible] Stevens, the judge of the [illegible].

It was authoritatively stated [illegible] that to-day he sent [illegible] horses to the Philadelphia Horse Show [illegible] entries [illegible] harness judge [illegible] Ogden was [illegible] as a judge he would withdraw from every class.

"I do not care to get mixed up in a controversy over this matter," said Mr. Ogden.

"If we had done differently than we did we would have been hissed from New York to California. Forrest [illegible] prizes of all Europe.

"I have a pretty [illegible] reputation in New York covering a period of over fifty years, and I had been one of the judges last week at the Boston Horse Show. The Brooklyn people coaxed me to judge for them and I know that they are perfectly satisfied with our work."

TILLMAN TURNS DOWN PRESIDENT'S PEACE OVERTURE

Senator Ignores White House Invitation to Reception to Distinguished Frenchman

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Washington, April 28.—The President has held out the olive branch to Senator Tillman of South Carolina and the pugnacious statesman from the Palmetto State turned his back upon the offer. He made his rejection of the peace proposal as pronounced as the President made his affront to the Senator. It will be recalled that when the President gave a dinner in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia he invited Senator Tillman. Before [illegible] was held Senator Tillman and Senator McLaurin came to blows in the Senate. The President recalled the invitation [illegible] has never forgiven the President [illegible] though he is in charge of the rate bill in the Senate, his relations with the President remain [illegible].

Senator Tillman was invited by the President to attend a reception at the White House Monday night. He pointedly stayed away, and this has aroused a great deal of comment and [illegible] that a reconciliation is highly [illegible].

The reception was tendered to the French naval officers of prominence who came to this country to represent France at the interment of John Paul Jones at Annapolis Tuesday. Senator Tillman is a prominent member of the Senate Naval Affairs committee, and all the members of that committee were invited to the reception to the distinguished Frenchmen Monday night at 10 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the same evening the President gave a dinner to the visitors, at which a limited number of guests were present. The invitations to the reception, however, were extended to about 500 or 600 prominent citizens, largely members of Congress.

Senator Tillman, accompanied by Mrs. Tillman, went to Annapolis and was present at the ceremonies. He and the President did not meet then.

WIFE AND 4 SEEK MISSING HUSBAND

James Lineban, of No. 45 Chadwick street, Roxbury, has been missing from his home since April 11, and the police of this city have been asked to find him. Lineban was not in good health and on this account has not worked for some time. At times his mind appeared to be affected as a result of his illness. He has a wife and four children. The mother, who has had to support the family for several months, is prostrated by anxiety and overwork.

IS CRAPSEY GUILTY OF HERESY?

RITUALISTS CALL FOR CONVICTION OF RECTOR WHO CHALLENGED THE MIRACULOUS BIRTH OF CHRIST

CONDEMNED FOR FAILURE TO FACE ACCUSERS

Trial at Batavia Concluded To-day with Arguments by Counsel

Batavia, N. Y., April 28.—To-day marked the end of the trial in this city of the celebrated heresy case against the Rev. Dr. Algernon Sidney Crapsey, for more than a quarter of a century the rector of St. Andrews [illegible].

Most of the [illegible] session was occupied by [illegible] Mr. Shepard, who assisted in summing up on behalf of Dr. Crapsey.

Mr. Shepard [illegible] it was for Dr. Crapsey's teaching [illegible] at time [illegible] that he was dis[illegible] framework of the church.

Mr. [illegible] Mr. Shepard said, "affirmed two things, that Dr. Crapsey is [illegible] and that he [illegible] and therefore [illegible] Dr. Crapsey [illegible] word that he [illegible] if Dr. Crapsey be the [illegible] is not the [illegible]."

[illegible] Judge Stiness said, "[illegible] a violation of his ordination vows. [illegible] for the defense has argued around the case. You are judges [illegible] case. You are not here to remake [illegible] Protestant Episcopal Church. You are here [illegible] to perform a judicial duty.

"No refutation of the stand quoted in the [illegible] is made. There has been one thing which has led me to doubt the good faith of the defendant. Instead of going on the witness stand, where he could be cross-examined, he writes his statement. It is not testimony in any sense of the word."

At the session this afternoon John Lord O'Brien, of Buffalo, chief counsel of the prosecution, made the closing address to the court.

Episcopy's Peace In Danger by Jury's Verdict at Batavia

Rev. Albert E. George was in St. Stephen's College, Annandale, Dutchess Co., New York, with the Rev. Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey, in 1872. While there Dr. Crapsey was popular with all the students, and spent most of his time in study. He was always considered a thoughtful student and one who would make his mark in the world. The president of the College, the Rev. Robert B. Fairbairn, D. D., who died ten years ago, regarded him highly.

It was at Annandale that Dr. Crapsey made up his mind to become a clergyman of the Episcopal Church and was ordained in 1873 by the Rt. Rev. Horatio Potter, D. D., Bishop of New York, the uncle of the present Bishop.

BY REV. A. E. GEORGE.

Nothing for years has so completely upset the peace of the Episcopal Church as the heresy trial of the Rev. Dr. Crapsey. When the Rev. Howard MacQueary of Canton, Ohio, was tried in 1890 for denying the virgin birth of Jesus, and for statements in his book, "The Evolution of Man and Christianity," the Episcopal Church was not torn asunder by the verdict of a divided court, three for conviction and two against. Mr. MacQueary was deposed and entered the Universalist denomination.

Times have changed since this ecclesiastical trial. Now Dr. Crapsey comes forward in a more readable book with the title "Politics and Religion," and finds many reputable clergymen willing to champion his views, which are not materially different from those of Mr. MacQueary.

He finds the church changed through the growing influence of the broad church movement. This school of thought is yearly growing stronger, especially among the laity.

Many representative laymen already have signified their agreement with the conclusions of Dr. Crapsey, so that the present trial, if it reveals anything, reveals the influence which the lay element is wielding in the theological atmosphere of the church. Doubtless this has been a great and helpful stimulation to Dr. Crapsey.

Target for Ritualists.

While he has many friends and supporters among the clergy, it is the laity who are showing their hand in the church trial.

This is very evident and it means much towards changing some of the old and time worn traditions in the future legislation of the church.

Dr. Crapsey has been a good target for the ritualists. They have pelted him to their heart's content with canons and the breaking of ordination vows in their recognized organ "The Living Church," of Milwaukee.

So that the fight is between the Broad Churchmen and the ritualists together with the conservative element, the outgrowth of the old Low Church party.

Massachusetts is three-fourths broad church. The Episcopal theological school at Cambridge has literally transformed the diocese of Massachusetts into a stronghold of liberality. No such trial as Dr. Crapsey's could take place in this State. When a member of the Standing Committee of Massachusetts a few years ago would not recommend for ordination a young man who was not clear about the virgin birth he became a marked character, and that clergyman has been sidetracked from the Standing Committee ever since.

This indicates that the theological atmosphere of Massachusetts is different from that of Western New York. Nobody is a heretic in Massachusetts, or rather, one could not be found guilty of heresy in this theological latitude.

DR. CRAPSEY AND HIS DAUGHTER, ESTELLE

SNAPSHOT OF DEFENDANT IN HERESY CHARGE WITH HIS DAUGHTER AND HIS FAVORITE PHOTOGRAPH.

TEACHINGS OF DR. CRAPSEY THAT STARTED CONTROVERSY

What is the objectionable side to the teaching of Dr. Crapsey which has called forth this trial?

He declares:

1. Jesus was born to parents belonging to the middle class.

2. He was born of a simple father and mother.

3. He was the son of a carpenter.

4. The fact that the early Christians predicated a miraculous birth of Jesus was to be regarded as one of the greatest misfortunes that had ever befallen mankind.

The [illegible] on this point is:

1. [illegible] that our Lord Jesus Christ [illegible] Saviour of the world, as contained and enunciated in the Apostles' Creed [illegible] Nicene Creed and as set forth [illegible] and declared in the Book of Common Prayer of the Protestant Episcopal [illegible] of the United States of America.

2. The doctrine that our Lord Jesus Christ was conceived by the Holy Ghost [illegible] and enunciated in the Apostles' [illegible] forth, indicated and declared [illegible] Book of Common Prayer [illegible] Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States [illegible] America.

3. The doctrine of the Virgin birth of our Lord Jesus Christ, as contained and enunciated in the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed and as set forth, indicated, and declared in the Book of Common Prayer of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States of America.

4. The doctrine of the Blessed Trinity, as contained and enunciated in the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed and as set forth, indicated, and declared in the Book of Common Prayer of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States of America.

In his recent book, "Religion and Politics," he has been accused of breaking these vows which he took when ordained:

1. "I do believe the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be the word of God, and to contain all things necessary to salvation; and I do solemnly engage to conform to the doctrine, discipline, and worship of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States of America."

2. "Will you then give your faithful diligence always so to minister the doctrine and sacraments, and the discipline of Christ, as the Lord hath commanded, and as this church hath received the same, according to the commandments of God, so that you may teach the people committed to your cure and charge with all diligence to keep and observe the same?"

Answer: "I will so do, by the help of the Lord."

3. "Will you be ready with all faithful diligence to banish and drive away from the church all erroneous and strange doctrines contrary to God's word; and to use both public and private monitions and exhortations, as well to the sick as to the whole, within your cures, as need shall require and occasion shall be given?"

Answer: "I will so do, the Lord being my helper."

4. "Will you be diligent to frame and fashion your own selves and your families according to the doctrine of Christ, and to make both yourselves and them, as much as in you lieth, wholesome examples and patterns to the flock of Christ?"

Answer: "I will apply myself thereto, the Lord being my helper."

5. "Will you maintain and set forward, as much as lieth in you, quietness, peace and love among all Christian people, and especially among them that are or shall be committed to your care?"

Answer: "I will so do, the Lord being my helper."

WOMAN DOCTOR IS ACCUSED OF LARCENY.

Dr. Mary E. Webb, Prominent in Back Bay, to Be Arraigned To-morrow.

Dr. Mary E. Webb, a prominent Back Bay physician, will be arraigned in the Municipal Criminal Court to-morrow morning on the charge of larceny of $240 from Mrs. Ethel Stewart, also a well known Back Bay resident.

Both women live at the fashionable Hotel Westland, on Westland avenue, and had been friends of long standing.

Saturday night on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Stewart, inspectors from police headquarters called at the office of Dr. Webb and took her to the Tombs. She was later released on bail.

According to Mrs. Stewart she has for some time been a patient of Dr. Webb's and several weeks ago, through friendly motives, gave the doctor a power of attorney to act for her in all cases.

Last week, Mrs. Stewart says, Dr. Webb went to the Workingman's Co-operative Bank and drew out the sum of $240, which had been on deposit in Ethel Stewart's name.

On April 26, the power of attorney having expired, Mrs. Stewart asked Dr. Webb for the return of the money, and, according to her story, Dr. Webb refused to give the money to her, whereupon she swore out the warrant.

MOULDERS STRIKE IN HYDE PARK PLANT

The moulders of the American Tool & Machine Company, of Hyde Park, went on a strike when they quit work at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. All other employees of the company have struck in sympathy with the moulders.

Early in the week about forty of the moulders of the Brocker & Brainard Machine Company, also of Hyde Park, together with several moulders from the Sturtevant Blower Company, of Readville, went on strike. The moulders are demanding $3 per day. They are receiving $2.75.

Against the virgin birth of Jesus he has said:

"Jesus did not succeed because He was born of a virgin or because He was reported to have risen bodily from the dead. These legends concerning Him are the result, not the cause, of the marvellous success of the Man. These stories were told of Him only because the simple folk could in no other way adequately express their conception of the greatness of Jesus. Only a virgin born could be as pure as Jesus. Only a son of God could be as great as Jesus. Only a life more powerful than death could have the strength of Jesus. The creeds of Christendom are of value, not as historical statements, for the primitive and mediaeval Christian had no historical sense." (Page [illegible] Religion and Politics.)

MITCHELL FLAYS MINE OWNERS AS STUPID DESPOTS.

Says Concession [illegible] Wrested from [illegible] Force in the Past

"THEIR'S IS BLAME FOR STRIKE," HE DECLARES

MINERS' CONVENTION WILL MEET ON TUESDAY

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 28.—In reply to the flat refusal of the mine operators to accept the compromise suggested by him and their attempt to put the miners in a compromising position, President Mitchell has issued the following statement:

"I have just received the formal reply of the anthracite operators. It appears perfectly evident that they have not changed their attitude in any particular during the past six years, and the strikes of 1900 to 1902 were no lesson to them.

"There is no instance on record during the quarter of a century in which the railroads have dominated the anthracite industry that a voluntary advance in wages has been granted their employes.

Concessions Always Forced.

"Every concession has been wrung from them by strikes and the pressure of public sentiment. The railroad coal combination not only fixes arbitrarily the price at which coal is sold to the consumers, but they seek to fix absolutely and arbitrarily the price at which labor shall be [illegible]. It seems that every conciliatory overture we have made for a peaceful settlement has been interpreted by them as a sign of weakness and our conservatism as an evidence of cowardice.

"The question is asked by the operators where is the advance to come from if not charged up to the consumers of domestic coal. It occurred to me that the small advance proposed by the miners might have been taken off the exorbitant freight rates charged by them. What the outcome will be I cannot even predict until the convention is held.

"Personally I am much disappointed and I am sure all mine employes expected more consideration than they have received."

Operators Defiant.

The operators declare in a lengthy statement that they will consider only arbitration by the strike commission or concession to their terms. They say that they are prepared for a strike and have returned Mitchell's compromise offer without going back a step.

The question will be officially answered next week. The whole anthracite region is in a ferment of excitement.

The letter announcing the decision of the operators concludes with the significant words:

"We trust that on Tuesday next the deliberate judgment of the anthracite workers will result in the acceptance of that proposition (the renewal of the expired agreement) but if not that they will join with us in the arbitration we have offered. Failing to meet us on either proposition, the responsibility of a strike must rest upon you."

New York and every [illegible] consuming centre will suffer [illegible] shortage within three months, and coal will sell at the strike prices of [illegible] ago if a strike is declared. The [illegible] storage supply, said to be 8,000,000 tons, which it was declared would [illegible] next fall, already shows [illegible] the normal demand. Operators, though [illegible] region admit that the [illegible] will be exhausted by the middle of August in the event of a strike. Under the present situation very little coal is being [illegible]. The coal production of the whole [illegible] region is but 15,000 tons a day at present, while the daily output with every [illegible] in operation is 225,000 tons.

HUB MILLIONAIRE IS HELD: RAN DOWN AGED MAN.

Thomas W. Peirce, the millionaire, a member of the firm of Fiske & Company, No. 161 Devonshire street, was arrested and brought into court in Springfield yesterday, charged with over speeding his automobile and injuring George H. Rand of that city. He pleaded not guilty, gave cash bail and will be given hearing May 7.

Mr. Peirce, who lives at Topsfield, was with W. F. Conlan, his chauffeur, in the auto. At the corner of State street and St. James avenue, in Springfield, the auto ran into Rand, who was riding his bicycle. Rand, who is over seventy years old, was taken home in an ambulance, suffering from several bad cuts and an injured spine. Peirce was arrested for going over twenty miles an hour.

ROOSEVELT PLUNGES OVER JUMPS AT NIGHT

Steeplechasing Takes Place of Horseback Riding, Which He Has Found Too Tame.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Washington, April 28.—The President has found plain horseback riding too tame a sport. He likes the excitement of hurdling and steeplechasing. For the last few weeks workmen have been quietly constructing two steeplechase jumps on the [illegible] House grounds in the rear of the lot. One is a brush hedge and the other a stiff hurdle. The President only utilizes these jumps at night, or when no one is likely to see him. He slips out of the White House, mounts a big hunter and plunges over the jumps.

Miss Annie V. McGourty regained from Miss Alice J. O'Gara the coveted fourth position, which calls for one of the "European Tours." Miss Nellie G. In Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont there was no change of teachers in the winning list in spite of heavy voting. Among the notable gains among those coming up from below were those of Mrs. James Elmer of Brattleboro, Vt., and Miss A. Mabelle Warner, of Newton Junction, New Hampshire.

CHASE MYSTERY TO BE PROBED AGAIN.

Inquest Into Death of Wealthy Swampscott Woman to Be Continued.

Lynn, Apr. 28.—Judge John W. Berry of the Lynn Police Court has set Thursday, May 3, for the continued hearing of the inquest which he has been conducting into the death of Mrs. Jennie P. Chase, wife of Dr. Horace Chase of Swampscott. Mrs. Chase died last September under mysterious circumstances. District Attorney W. Scott Peters has had the hearing adjourned from time to time to procure new evidence.

The death of Samuel P. Harris, chief of police of Swampscott, was a severe blow to the district attorney's labors as Harris had accumulated much evidence since the inquest was postponed. At the inquest next week it is expected the district attorney will present all of the evidence he has. Dr. Chase, husband of the dead woman, will be recalled to the stand as well as Professor W. F. Whitney of the Harvard Medical School, who told at the last hearing of finding arsenic in the stomach of the dead woman in quantity sufficient to cause death. Servants of the family will be called to testify about the arsenic which it is said was always kept in the house as rat poison. The hearing was adjourned January 3 while Professor Whitney was on the stand.

LINCOLN & PARKER

Offer some exceptional bargains in slightly used pianos. Six uprights, standard makers, returned from Winter renting, at lower price than you will pay elsewhere for a piano ten years old. These are not pianos picked up in out-of-the-way places, but they are practically new instruments and carry our guarantee.

We also offer a Chickering Grand, which has been used quite a little, but is in good condition and just the thing for a hall, hotel or large room. Price $160.

PIANO SLAUGHTER

STORAGE SALE

A GREAT many people are ignorant of the fact that the best possible opportunity to buy a piano at the lowest possible price is to get one at the Storage Sale. Sometimes the finest pianos that are made go almost for a song. Some pianos of the best makes that have been used only slightly and at that in the best of homes, are sold for prices that seem [illegible]. New and second hand pianos are sold [illegible].

Pianos go for prices much lower than an auction would bring. There [illegible] to bid at a piano storage sale; the price is [illegible] put on, first come, first served, and the [illegible] economical man or woman who wants to buy a piano economically, in fact more than ever [illegible] will watch the storage sales carefully.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Several nice upright pianos which must be sold at a sacrifice, 2 nice uprights, Chickering and Vose, $40 and $50, nearly new mahogany uprights, 3 pedals, latest style, at ¼ Boston prices, reason why, no large rents, big salaries or commissions to be paid; no fancy floors, our expenses about $5 a day; Boston warerooms' expense $300 to $500 daily; our terms the most liberal; free carting, free tuning and 3 months' lessons with each piano; why not see us at once and thus save the agents' enormous profits? SHAWMUT PIANO CO., 190A Shawmut av., Roxbury, Mass.; open till 9 P. M.

PROMINENT MUSIC TEACHER will sell her beautiful guaranteed upright piano cheap, cash or easy terms; would give one year's lessons to purchaser. Apply after 4 p. m., all day Sunday, at 30 Moreland st., Roxbury.

COLLINS' MEN MAKE FINE FINISH, BEATING CHAMPS IN FINAL GAME, 7 TO 6

Special to the Sunday American.

Philadelphia, April 28.—The Boston Americans wound up their series with the Philadelphia American champions this afternoon with a victory pulled out of the fire at the last moment, 7 to 6.

It was a grand jubilee for the visitors, who thus not only break even on the series, but secured ample revenge on Rube Waddell for his shutout of the first game by batting him all over the lot in the last few innings. Rube Waddell was wild throughout, yet he seemed to be eective right up to the sixth inning. Up to this time the only hit made off Connie Mack's eccentric southpaw was a two-bagger by Graham in the third inning.

The Athletics fell on Dinneen in the fourth inning, finding him for two doubles, a single and a base on balls, which, with a passed ball added, netted the Philadelphians three runs.

Started After Rube.

In the sixth Manager Collins's men started to go for the Rube with one out. Waddell gave two bases on balls which, followed by three singles and a wild throw by the Rube himself, caused his downfall, and incidentally tied the score.

The Athletics put on one run in the sixth, a home run over the right field fence by Seybold, and two more in the seventh, a drive by Hartsel to centre which Stahl misjudged, allowing Topay to clear the [illegible] leaving Schreck ahead of him.

At the beginning of the eight inning the score [illegible] 6 to 3 in favor of the champions [illegible] more it looked like a moral certainty that Boston would be beaten.

Grimshaw started off with a cracking single, however, and with Ferris an easy out, Boston's first-baseman romped home on Graham's drive to right. Dinneen pulled himself together and retired the Athletics without a run or a hit, purposely passing the mighty Seybold to avoid a possible repetition of his home run stunt.

Waddell in the Air.

Waddell gave Selbach a free pass in the ninth, then went clean to pieces as Collins singled near short and Selbach by a daring piece of work stole third while Brouthers was off the bag having been drawn in on Collins's hit. Stahl sacrificed. Parent then cracked a drive in centre field, scoring Selbach and Collins, and tying the score. The

MERRY LARK WINNER OF EXCELSIOR HANDICAP; ROSEBEN AN ALSO RAN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Merry Lark, running in the colors of Steward Andrew Miller, captured the Excelsior Handicap, at one and one sixteenth miles at Jamaica to-day, beating a grand field in which was the mighty Roseben. Ormonde's Right got small money and Eugenia Burch third.

The winner was at 10 to 1 in the closing betting. The second horse paid his backers 5 to 2 for the place, while Eugenia Burch was quoted at 60, 20 and 10 to 1.

The race was a sensational one in every respect. Tremendous betting was done [illegible] it bringing a loss of many thousands to the public, which backed Roseben at all sorts of prices, and in every book.

The withdrawal of Captain Williams's Ram's Horn, caused by the illness of that great racer, robbed the race of a great deal of interest.

The race was a beautiful one to watch. It was a struggle of thoroughbred kings and queens such as is seldom seen. Every inch of the way was battled for, and the winner was certainly the best horse under [illegible].

The pool room war went on apace. Captain [illegible] of the Pinkertons had great far-spreading canvas barriers erected over the top of the club house fence in order to shut off the wig-wagging signals of the pool room agents anxious to secure the tabooed racing information. The queer arrangement excited the curiosity of all beholders.

Escutcheon, at as good as 4 to 1, won the opening event at three quarters of a

HOLY CROSS NINE HAS A WALKOVER WITH TRINITY.

Worcester Pounds Pitchers of Rivals, and Wins Game to Tune of 18 to 1.

Worcester, April 28. Holy Cross added [illegible] to its credit to-day, defeating Trinity in a one sided game, 18 to 1. The visitors were painfully outclassed and after the first inning the outcome of the game was never in doubt.

The Hartford men made their sole run in the first inning, when a timely three-bagger by Powell following a single by Burwell [illegible] later across the plate.

In the [illegible] Holy Cross [illegible] three well [illegible] two doubles and [illegible] five singles, on [illegible] Holy Cross eleven runs, seven men crossing the plate in the fourth inning alone.

Powell replaced Xander in the fifth inning and proved somewhat more effective than his predecessor. In the eighth inning, however, with two [illegible] on bases Flynn [illegible] left field, scoring two [illegible] for Holy Cross [illegible] three hits in [illegible] this period [illegible]

GAME THROWN OUT.

By the order of President Murnane, the New Bedford-Lowell game, the opening one in the eNw England leageu series, was ordered thrown out, as New Bedford played Klobedanz, the pitcher who was suspended last season and has not been reinstated.

The action of the Whalers in playing the man will come before the governing board of the organization and summary action taken with the managements of the two teams.

TIFT OF BROWN GIVES TIGERS A WHITEWASH.

Special to the Boston American.

Providence, April 28. Three thousand people watched the Brown boys close out the Tigers 2 to 0 on Andrews Field yesterday. The game was bright and snappy and showed some clean work on fielding. Byron for the visitors pitched a heady game, striking out nine men and allowing but four hits to a total of five bases. Tift did the slab work for Paine on the home team and the Tigers could get but one hit, which [illegible] would have saved.

The score [illegible] the first two innings [illegible] the only pass Byron gave and Tift [illegible] around the bag with a pretty two-bagger between left and centre field. In the second Brown earned a run. Dickinson got a single, stole second and Dennie drove him in with a line drive over second.

Sides played a whirlwind game for the visitors on third, saving a ground hit of Raymond's over third bag in the sixth. Elrod was the star for the home team and his catch of a high line drive to right field [illegible] saved a [illegible] hit for Tift.

NOTED BOXERS SHOW AT BIG HUB BENEFIT

Sporting Fraternity Out in Force to Aid Frisco Sufferers.

It was a grand testimonial of the Hub sporting fraternity by the big turnout at the Hub Theatre last night, the occasion being for the benefit for the San Francisco sufferers.

There were few vacant seats when the big entertainment, consisting chiefly of boxing bouts, started up, and those who missed the event failed to see some fast sparring between world champions and others of lesser note.

When the sports of this city were called upon to contribute toward allaying the national calamity their response was instantaneous, and the Hub can boast of a set of sport lovers who are true to the cause, and a better indication could not be given than the willingness of all the active boxing talent and athletic people to offer their services for the relief fund.

Loyal Hub Sports.

The receipts for last night will swell the total of the big sums going west every day to aid the stricken, and every cent of it that was raised through the efforts of the loyal Hub sports was cheerfully donated.

The committee who worked zealously for the entertainment deserves much worthy praise, as they never tired in their earnestness toward making it a memorable occasion.

Wakefield, April 28.—The Wakefield High School team ran up against a "wizard" when they faced Chase, of the Reading High School, on the Common here this afternoon. The Wakefield players were utterly helpless against the twirler from Reading, and one after another would fan three times and walk to the bench. Twenty-three of these batters struck out. HART AND SCHRECK OPEN FIGHT CLUB IN GOTHAM.

New York, April 28. Marvin Hart, the Louisville boxer who is matched to meet Mike Schreck at the opening stag of the Twentieth Century Athletic Club at Johnson Sport [illegible] next Thursday night in a four round bout, arrived in the city yesterday. Arrangements have been made for Hart to finish his training at Johnson's road house on Jerome avenue. Willie Lewis, the well known New York lightweight, is quartered at Johnson's, and will work in conjunction with the Louisville man.

Schreck, who has been here for several days, is working away like a beaver at the New Polo A. C. under the watchful eye of Johnny Oliver. Schreck is very confident of winning in the go with Hart.

One of the preliminaries arranged for next Thursday's stag promises to furnish a fast contest. It will bring together [illegible] Tucker and Young Donohue, both of whom are top notchers among the little men in this vicinity.

The Twentieth Century A. C. is a private club, and will not be open to the public upon nights of entertainments. Those who see the fights will, therefore, be obliged to become members before they can gain admittance. Application blanks for membership can be procured at the club headquarters and at Madison Square Garden.

Our Athletes Capture More Honors in Great Olympic Games.

Athens, Greece, April 28.—Fewer spectators were present to-day at the Olympic games than usual. In the early morning events there was considerable ill nature shown by the Grecian spectators, who several times hissed the winning Americans when they crossed the tape first in trials. The number of points, standing 37 for the United States, against the 10 held by other nations, and the continued success of the Americans, is explained as the cause of the ill feeling.

Martin Sheridan of the Irish-American A. C. of New York won the first event of the day, putting the weight 43 feet 4 inches. Second place was won by a Hungarian athlete; third place went to Sweden.

Lawson Robertson, also of the Irish-American A. C., took the next event, the "Little Cy" Young was the whole thing in the final game yesterday with the Trolley Dodgers at the South End and he made them grovel in the dust, not allowing a run and [illegible] a solitary hit getting the [illegible]

It was an extra fine exhibition of pitching art on the part of the farmer twirler and he showed a bit of excellent form so early in the season.

The tail enders could do nothing with his wide sweeps and his break ball had them chasing. He fanned nine batters and such good stickers as Lumley and Maloney were made to look foolish.

Pulliam Saw the Game.

President Harry Pulliam was an interested spectator of the exquisite shooting of the [illegible] member of the Tenney pitching corps and had only complimentary words for Young's stunt.

The Brooklyns never had a look in and only two men reached second during the entire nine innings.

The locals got busy at the outset and drove McIntire to the stable in the fourth and Mal Eason, the old Boston pitcher, substituted. He did good service, as not a run was produced in the four innings he officiated, and but two hits were secured off his delivery.

Snappy [illegible] marked the progress of the contest and the home players contributed some features that combined well with Young's [illegible] work.

Broke Even in Series.

HARVARD NINE DEFEATED BY DARTMOUTH, 3 TO 1, IN A PITCHERS' BATTLE

London, April 28. Hugh L. Doherty, the holder of the tennis championship for singles, retained his title yesterday by defeating A. W. Gore, three sets to none.

In the ladies singles Miss D. K. Douglas, who challenged for the trophy defeated the holder, Miss Lane, two sets to none.

In the doubles yesterday the Doherty brothers defeated A. W. Gore and G. A. Garida. A. F. Wilding and Miss Douglas beat R. F. Doherty and Miss Smith in mixed doubles. Both matches were for the covered court tennis championship.

The ancient Pentathlon, of five exercises, composed of throwing the discus, leaping, throwing the javelin and spear and wrestling, which was conceded [illegible] sure victory to Sheridan, will not be contested for by the latter, as he injured his knee in practice yesterday, not seriously but enough to make him lay off for to-day. He will be in shape for later events. Twenty-six contestants are entered for this event. The discus throw was won by Hudin, Hungary, with a throw of 32 metres 64 centimetres; Lemwing, Sweden, second; Sostera, Bohemia, third.

The relay swimming races between the different nations, in which the Americans were supposed to have a good chance for first place, were won by the Hungarians, Germany was second and England third. America managed to squeeze in fourth. There was no time taken.

King George, accompanied by Princess George and Nicholas, were again present at the Stadium. His royal highness had a ten minute conversation with James E. Sullivan, manager of the American team, and expressed himself as delighted with the keen exhibitions put up by the Yankees.

SLUGGING FEST IS PROMISED CHELSEA FIGHT FANS.

Two fierce-fighting lightweights will be the attraction at the Lincoln A. C. to-morrow night, when Jimmy Briggs of Chelsea and Charley Neary of Milwaukee meet in the feature event of fifteen rounds.

It is the first appearance of Neary, but his reputation is known in the East, and he has two decisions on Briggs.

Rarely has such an evenly matched pair been seen inside the ropes at Pythian Rink. Stocky in build and possessing the strength of perfectly trained athletes, they will be able to travel at a terrific clip from start to finish.

Slugging Bout Likely.

It will be a slugging fest from the first gong, as neither boy has a great amount of science, but knows how to hit and keep the pace warm.

Briggs won a lot of admiration in his last bout, when he took Dave Deshler's scalp, and he surprised many by his wonderful aggressiveness and ability to push such a clever worker as the Cambridge boy.

Neary is bound to make a favorable impression with the local fans by his determined style of fighting, and his fast action will just suit those who like a fiery mill.

Neary holds a win over Battling Nelson and has knocked out that tough ring general, Maurice Sayers.

Both boys are gluttons for punishment, and can take a lot of hammering. As they will be tearing in continually, it will be a severe test of physical endurance, but both are exceptionally rugged and can stand it. There will be no fancy frills to their action in the ring, but a succession of hard impacts when they come together at every step.

Good Minor Bouts.

There will be some fine entertainment on the bill before the big card, as Harry Gilman of Roxbury is to face Frank Adams of Newton. Gilman will make his reappearance in the ring, and is going better than at any time in his career. Jerry Gaines will be seen in an eight-round bout with Billy Paine, who has studied the Marketman's style and has figured a way to beat him.

LYNN, 9; LAWRENCE, 2.

Special to the Sunday American.

Lawrence, April 28.—Showing a complete reversal of form from yesterday, Lawrence was an easy victim for Lynn to-day. Leith was batted out of the box, and McGrady, a local boy, took his place in the fourth inning, and his pitching was the one bright feature of Lawrence's play. The score:

LOWELL, 2; NEW BEDFORD, 1.

Lowell, April 28.—The actual first game of the Lowell team resulted to-day in a victory for Lowell, over New Bedford, 2 to 1. Yesterday's game is declared off because Klobedanz pitched. He has not yet been reinstated because of leaving the Lawrence team last year. President Murnane telegraphed Umpire Henry to that effect this afternoon. To-day's game was a great one for the fans, and although the weather was cold, a large crowd was in attendance. The score:

HAVERHILLS WON OPENER.

Haverhill, April 28.—Carroll's single in the tenth inning, scoring Madden from second, gave Haverhill the first game of the season at Athletic Park this afternoon, although Manchester had considerably the better of the game up to that time. SCHOOLBOY CREWS HANDICAPPED BY CHOPPY SEA.

Little Improvement in Form Due Largely to Illness and Absence of Coach Graney.

A strong breeze kicked up a chop on the Charles yesterday morning that made smooth work impossible for the few schoolboy crews that took to their boats. The air was too chilly for the men to stay out long, and on account of sickness Coach Graney of the B. A. A. was unable to go out with his charges during the short time they were on the water.

Two crews from Boston Latin School and the same from DeMerritte's were the only ones to put out from the B. A. A. After practicing starting and taking a long row as far as the Allston bridge the shells were taken in.

Stone's fleet went out from the Union boathouse at noon. The past week has seen a few changes in the makeup of the various boats. Lee, stroke of the second eight, has given up sculling and his place has been taken by Knowlton. In a semi interesting race the first eight defeated the Harvard senior crew in the middle of the week and showed good speed, though the form wasn't [illegible] smooth.

[illegible] has been [illegible] improvement shown at the B. B. A. house on account of the enforced absence of Coach Graney. He was at the float yesterday, but unable to go out with the megaphone.

This week he promises to make up for the absence. Without his eagle eye the crews have gathered more pleasure out of the rowing than knowledge.

Under Coach "Pat" Donovan, at the Union boathouse, the usual improvement is noticeable. Noble & Greenough continues to keep four shells on the river each afternoon, and it seems quite possible that a winning squad will be developed from the bunch of sturdy material that is on hand.

HARVARD SECOND WON.

The Harvard second nine, on Soldiers' Field, defeated Brookline High 8 to 5 yesterday. The Crimson men bunched hits and took advantage of all that offered, though their field work was very poor. Taylor, for Harvard, pitched a good game while he was in the box.

Bateries—Harvard second, Taylor, Coffin and Lovering; Brookline High, Bentley and O'Hea.

CRIMSON TRACK ATHLETES STAND GOOD CHANCE OF BEATING YALE

Harvard's track athletes are looking forward to the dual track competition to be held with Yale on Soldiers Field two weeks from next Saturday with the keenest anticipation, for they believe that they have an excellent chance of defeating their rivals of the dark blue. The annual class games held on Soldiers Field last Friday developed the fact that the Crimson team has a collection of new men who are dangerous to any company of track men, no matter how fast they are.

Hill, the speedy mile runner of the Yale team, watched the Harvard men competing in their class games, and was evidently much impressed by what he saw. He turned to a friend after Minot had won the mile in the very fast time of 4 minutes 28 2-5 seconds and said:

"I guess that I had better take the first train for New Haven and get my track suit on to do a little training. It's exciting."

Meets Dartmouth Saturday.

In no event, except possibly the broad and high jumps, is Harvard going to be awake when she meets Dartmouth next Saturday and Yale two weeks later. With G. E. Roosevelt, Clark, Ford and Somers in the high jump, the Crimson will undoubtedly get at least a third and probably better, in this event. In the broad jump, Captain Dives will rely on W. B. Jordan, '08, the winner of the event last year in the Yale games, to draw points for Harvard. Ford is another man eligible to compete for Harvard again this year, who won a point in the broad jump against Yale. Stoddard, Kerans and Morse, the winners of places in the broad jump in the class games, are all new men.

The "finds" of the class games of Friday were undoubtedly L. Brinsmade in the high hurdles and W. Minot '07 in the mile. The time made by Alcott of Yale when he won the mile in the Harvard-Yale dual games last year was 4.32 1-5. After following Miller and Turner for three laps in the class games Friday Minot let out a wonderful sprint for the last lap and won the event by thirty-five yards in the time of 4.28 4-5. He was fresh as a daisy when he finished this remarkable run and picked up his sweater and raced off the field to the locker building.

Turner Is Reliable.

H. Turner '08 is another very reliable runner in the mile. He won third in the mile in the dual games last year. Brinsmade won the high hurdles in 16 2-5 seconds in one of the prettiest races ever seen on Soldiers Field. Brinsmade runs the high timbers in beautiful form, skimming them like a bird and very rarely striking one of them. He has always up to this year run the half mile, but being tried out at the hurdles this Spring in a general attempt to find some good timber toppers, Brinsmade showed considerable natural abilities. He has developed until Friday he won the high hurdles in exactly the same time in which Eales of Yale won that event in the dual games at New Haven last Spring. Rand '09 and Doyle '07 were not more than a foot behind Brinsmade when he finished his great race Friday, so that Harvard will enter three very high-class men in the high hurdles against Dartmouth and Yale. Doyle, R. L. Young '07 and O. F. Rogers '08 are running well in the low hurdles.

Five Good Sprinters.

Dodge, Lockwood, Ford, Hamilton and Captain Dives are five sprinters who make the dust fly fast in their events. Dodge is undoubtedly the best in both the 100 and 220, but Lockwood can push him hard in the 100. The latter won his event in the class games, but beat the pistol badly. Ford has shown considerable speed in the 100. In the 220, Dives is a factor that must be counted in. He is probably the second best man on the Harvard string for this distance if he does not kill himself in the 440.

In the quarter-mile, Dives, O'Brien '08 and Van Brunt '08, are a trio who have shown very nearly equal speed up to the present time, with Dives the best. H. H. Whitman, '06, and A. S. Cobb, '07, will be the mainstays in the half. Whitman can be relied upon in this event to do under two minutes and should make Parsons of Yale move very fast to beat him. Stone, '07, King, '31, and Crosby, '08, will be the Crimson trio sent into the two-mile. This event was won by Hall of Yale last Spring in the Harvard-Yale games in 9 minutes 59⅗ seconds. Stone won the event in 9 minutes 58 3-5 seconds Friday, and had no one to push him.

Clever Pole Vaulters.

In the pole vault, Gring, '08, Grant, '07 and Tyng, 2G, will be the Harvard representatives. Grant and Gring should get 11 feet 6 inches, and Tyng close to 11 feet. Yale is strong in these events, but Grant and Gring will make the Eli's jump their best to defeat them.

In the shot put, Harvard is strong with Ben Stephenson, W. A. Hanley, '07, and Bangs, '08. All three of these men can get over 40 feet. Stephenson won the event in the class games with a put of 43 feet 6½ inches. Kersburg, '08, Oveson, 2L, and M. Gilmore, '08, are the Harvard hammer throwers. Kersburg and Oveson can be relied upon to get over 135 feet. Kersburg is capable of coming close to 150 feet, but is erratic.

ANDOVER, 4; HARVARD '09, 1.

Andover, April 28.—Phillips-Andover had an easy time winning to-day and defeated the Harvard Freshmen 4 to 1. The home team showed up in its best form and had the game in hand all the way. Daly's three-bagger was the feature of the game. Score:

HAVERHILL WILL HAVE SPEEDWAY

Road and speedway drivers in Haverhill are in high glee over the promised building of a speedway that is to cost at least $400,000. Work will be commenced on the project right away.

The driving club of that city has opened a new clubhouse for members. It has been very tastefully fitted up, and some of the most prominent pictures of race horses decorate the walls. On almost every evening about fifty of the members drop in to spend the time talking horse and speedway.

SALEM H., 9; R. H. S., 8.

Salem, April 28.—Roxbury High met defeat on the Bridge street grounds this afternoon in a fast game. Salem High won the contest on consistent base running and the inability of Connolly to locate the plate in the first inning. He gave five passes and made three wild pitches. Allen, Roxbury's third baseman, broke a rib in collision with the corner of the grand stand. Donaldson, who succeeded him, did better work.

DARTMOUTH IS WINNER OVER QUAKERS.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28.—The relay races of the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin Field this afternoon were productive of some of the most classic college competitions ever seen in the East, and the finishes were most all of a sensational nature. Harvard, always a competitor to be respected, failed to send down any of the first Crimson runners or mighty field men, while Yale failed to capture an event. Once again the hosts of Michigan showed their power by taking the field events and the [illegible] relay.

Dartmouth ran a great race in the two-mile relay and beat Pennsylvania in three smashing races, and [illegible] galloped away with the [illegible].

The 100-yard dash resulted in a dead heat between Dear, Pennsylvania, and Castleman of Colgate. They ran neck and neck from the start. Castleman landed the [illegible]. [illegible] won the preparatory relay championship and Wendell Phillips of Chicago won the high school title.

NO VEHICLES AT EX-CHAMPS' GROUNDS

At the request of the fire and accident insurance companies, vehicles of any description will not be allowed on the grounds of the Boston American League baseball club on Huntington avenue.

The possibilities which were suggested by the runaway accident on the opening day indicate that this step is necessary to protect the lives of patrons, even if it had not been ordered by the insurance companies.

All vehicles, therefore, will remain on Huntington avenue or on Rogers avenue. The side entrance to the grounds is on Rogers avenue.

DARTMOUTH BOYS CELEBRATE THEIR DOUBLE VICTORY

Hanover, N. H., April 28.—Dartmouth turned herself loose to-night when the returns came in from the Harvard game. Add to this the telegram which came just after the last Harvard report, that Dartmouth had won the inter-collegiate relay race, and nothing was needed to stir up enthusiasm.

The freshmen immediately hiked for the material for a great bonfire, big enough to celebrate the double victory. The songs and cheers were repeatedly given. Not until midnight were the boys ready to turn in and forget it.

MANY SYMPTOMS—ONE CAUSE

A blood cell is like a sponge, it absorbs whatever it touches—food or poison.

It floats the poisons of contracted disease into every tissue of the body, producing a different symptom in each.

Evidences quickly appear in the skin, heart, brain, liver, kidneys, muscles and nervous system.

I go back of the local symptoms and cleanse the blood current. Nature will take care of the rest.

GRIMSHAW'S HIT SENT IN THE WINNING RUN FOR COLLINS' PILGRIMS

fans were by this time yelling to the Rube to "get together."

Godwin died easy enough, but Grimshaw's two-bagger brought Parent home with the run that eventually won the game as the Philadelphians were unable to score in the last half of the ninth.

It was a game full of the incidents that go to make baseball popular. Soon before he left with his team for the hotel Manager Collins [illegible]

Collins Well Satisfied.

"It is what you least expect is sure to come true," said the Bostonian. "With only one hit in five innings, things certainly looked blue, especially with the Rube in the box. We certainly got there at the finish, though, and I am perfectly satisfied to have made an even break of it."

Collins said that he had decided to rest up in town over night, leaving for New York in the morning on the 9.50 train. "We play in New York on Monday and Tuesday and leave for Boston on Tuesday evening. Even down the ladder as we are, I shall be glad to get home. We will have a month's games on our own grounds, and playing at the present clip there ought to be something doing. We are going right up the line from now on."

The attendance was 11,600 to-day.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Uncertainty as to the time of starting the game kept the attendance down to 10,000.

The Pilgrims sometimes appear afraid of Rube and at other times take kindly to his delivery. To-day they didn't fear him a bit.

Big Bill Dinneen lasted the game out in fine style. When he passed Monte Cross in the ninth the fans set up an awful din, but Bill was as cool as ice and the next three men were easy.

Rube was wild at times and that sixth inning made him sweat. When finally, with two out Selbach rolled a grounder at him, he grabbed the ball and ran over to first with it, being afraid of a throw.

Collins and his men will remain in Philadelphia over to-night, going to New York on Sunday for their series of the games with Griffith's team.

NEW YORK 5, WASHINGTON 1.

Washington, April 28.—The New Yorks showed a decided reversal of form to-day and easily defeated Washington, 5 to 1. Clarkson was invincible after the first inning, allowing but five safe hits. Washington tried three pitchers in the box, but failed to stop the Highlanders. The batting and fielding of Chase shared honors with Clarkson's pitching. Score:

CLEVELAND, 14; DETROIT, 7.

Detroit, April 28.—Cleveland defeated Detroit to-day by a batting bee in the ninth inning. Eubanks, who had relieved Wiggs in the fourth, went completely to pieces after Turner, with bases full, had singled to left, tieing the score. Detroit hit Rhoades hard in the fifth, but he held them safe at the finish. The batting of Bay and Bemis was a feature. An error by Payne gave Detroit a chance to hold Cleveland to a tie before Turner started the cannonading. Score:

Beals Wright Defeats Little Two Sets to One

Philadelphia, April 28.—The Belmont Cricket Club was favored with delightful weather to-day for its formal opening of the season. The usual custom of playing a cricket match on opening day was departed from and an invitation was extended to the tennis players who will go to England to endeavor to lift the Davis challenge cup to play a round robin tournament.

Beals C. Wright, the National champion, Raymond D. Little, W. J. Clothier and F. G. Anderson, responded to the invitation and although it was plain that each man was short of practice, some good tennis was witnessed by a large number of spectators. Only two matches were played during the afternoon, owing to the unavoidably late arrival of the players.

In the doubles Wright and Clothier opposed Little and Anderson, and although the first named won by two sets to one, their opponents put up a game struggle. Scores:

Singles—Beals C. Wright defeated Raymond D. Little 8—6, 3—6, 6—1.

Doubles—Beals C. Wright and W. J. Clothier defeated Raymond D. Little and F. G. Anderson 6—4, 6—4.

much speed been displayed this Spring as at Combination Park. The pacing gelding Checkers, 2.20¼, has turned the course in a half in 1.08¾, and repeated the same notch, while at the Readville track, where are all of the crackajacks headed for the Grand Circuit, none of the horses has as yet been a 2.40 gait.

All of the trainers at the "parlor half mile track of the world" are anticipating a most successful season. Jimmy Timothy has had rather a tough siege of it with an attack of pneumonia, but is now out and getting into harness once more. It will not be surprising if he is seen behind Eddie Rice's great pacing gelding John M., 2.02¾, when the bell rings for the starters in the free-for-all to score up in the June meeting at Saugus. At present he is looking after about a dozen head of prospective winners.

Trainer C. O. Bailey is preparing his string for the money at the first drop of the hat. Among the number he is feeding is noted Montana Girl, 2.18¼. The Governess, 2.18¼, Wilkeswood, 2.21¼, John O'Donnell, 2.26½, Little Ben, 2.24¼, Maud Graham, a likely green pacing mare and a couple of green trotters. Frank Fix has moved over with a dozen, and Gloria, 2.10¼, is the fastest.

J. J. Crowley has Puss Parker, 2.20¼, and a few others. His patron, Hugh Morrison, is on the lookout for one or two that will do to take the races, so that "Whitey" will be in clover at the local meetings. S. A. Rockford has Gen. Fiske, 2.14¼, and Pencherina, 2.19¼.

CREDIT DUE CHRISTIE FOR HIS CLEVER WORK AT ATLANTIC CITY

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Walter Christie and his big front drive racing machine have at last gotten into [illegible] man in the motor world has worked harder or more persistently to acquire fame and honor in the racing game with motor vehicles than has Christie. [illegible] he has been forced to taste the bitterness of defeat. Nevertheless, with great persistency and a thorough determination to win, he has kept at his self appointed task, until now he has the distinction and honor of having driven the fastest mile ever ridden away from the smooth course at Ormond.

At the Atlantic City races Christie's work shone out far above all others, and the car, which met with [illegible] after failure at Ormond, and suffered [illegible] in the Vanderbilt, [illegible] made the fastest [illegible] during the meet. The mark [illegible] seconds, which two years [illegible] a world's record [illegible] ever which the [illegible] good shape for that course, it cannot really compare with the one at Florida, and is in its very best of condition several seconds slower than the course on the east coast of Florida. It is possible that Christie will be seen in this city [illegible] Memorial day, as he is now considering a proposition to ride a match race against some particular car at the coming meet of the Bay State Automobile Club.

What the Meet Proved.

The meet proved conclusively that interesting [illegible] could be held between stock cars. It likewise showed that even beach races can be run off pretty close to Hoyle, and that, too, without any great delay. Al Reeves, the racing secretary of the Atlantic City Automobile Club, proved a veritable fiend for work, and with the assistance of Fred Wagner there were but few delays. [illegible] was run off with but one protest, and that was not sustained, Referee Morrell feeling that the protesting party was at fault. It came on the part of the English Daimler, who failed to score at the start of a final heat, and this same driver later showed the same inability to get away with the field. The only thing was that the driver was outgeneralled at the start.

Excellent work was done in the majority of cases with the stock car races. It was interesting in one event, that which was engaged in by 10 h. p. Maxwells, to notice that two amateur drivers, both women, outgeneralled and outrivalled such veterans as Kelsey and Fleming. These were Mrs. [illegible] and Mrs. H. [illegible] R[illegible], [illegible] first and second respectively in [illegible] class. Both drivers managed to get more speed out of their cars than did the men, and their work received the approbation it was entitled to. They both exhibited daring and ability, and considering that this was the first race that Mrs. Rogers has ever driven her work must be recognized as of the highest order.

Rogers's Clever Work.

Mr. H. E. Rogers was one of the stars of the meeting, he driving his steamer with the same ability that has characterized his performances with [illegible] car. He scored the second fastest mile of the meet and [illegible] Ormond [illegible] January. Only once was he beaten and then it was by Tony Vaughan with the Vanderbilt Darracq. An accident put Rogers out of the final running for the free for all championship. He won the first heat against such cars as Darracq, the Thomas Vanderbilt cup car [illegible] immediately upon finishing his brakes became frozen and he was unable to compete in the second heat. He got into the third heat and as [illegible] the event being [illegible] two out of three heats. [illegible] of injured, [illegible] out of the running.

Vaughan Finished Well.

[illegible] Vaughan, with the Vanderbilt racer, did [illegible] work on the last day, although, [illegible] show up to any con[illegible] the first two days of the [illegible] owing to the fact that [illegible] in from Cuba it had [illegible] loose, and there had been no opportunity to tune it up. Two days were necessary to get it in trim, and then she did the work expected. The free for all championship was won by Vaughan.

The Stoddard Dayton cars scored heavily on the first day, taking the honors in their classes. The Pope Toledo stock touring cars driven by Charles Soules were likewise in the running and throughout the meet showed to good advantage, capturing their [illegible] and proving that the stock car is a tolerably speedy proposition, while the Pierce and Thomas cars were not to be overlooked in the running, they all defeating some of the big foreign cars in the big touring car class race. In the trials all these cars showed up excellently, while in the final the Pierce Arrow won out, with the Thomas second. It was in this race that the English Daimler was outgeneraled at the start, and a protest was subsequently lodged.

White Steamers in Front.

Some excellent work was done by the White steamers driven by Mrs. Cuneo and F. C. Johnson, the latter winning the chauffeurs' handicap against a particularly strong field. The car which did this was a stock car in every sense of the word, having been driven over the roads from Philadelphia earlier in the week.

The Thomas stock car showed up to considerable advantage, winning the one-minute class race in good work and excellent time.

The Columbia cars were not out of the running by any means, although the car used in the races was suffering more or less from the results of an accident while en route to the races, and the time was too short to place it in the very best of condition. The Grout steamer, which is now in the hands of private individuals and which had been revamped for these events proved somewhat unfortunate. Maynes burned out a boiler on the second day, and the last day of the meet he broke a crank shaft. It must be remembered, however, that this car is not a regular stock car, but the speed creation made for the races at Readville last Memorial Day.

Cedrino More Careful.

There was considerable regret expressed that the Fiat Junior, driven by Cedrino, had no opportunity to show its real ability. In the record trials for middleweight cars [illegible] would not go down the beach after crossing the line, because a car was coming the other way. In the open weight [illegible], although he had an excellent opportunity to win, he would not take a chance owing to the large number of entrants. Cedrino's experience in Cuba seems to have made him less daring. One cannot, however, blame him for refusing to take too many chances in a race of this character, although of course such hesitancy on his part may prevent a car from showing its true merits.

Taken all in all the meet was most successful. It was the best meet that has ever been held outside of Ormond, and [illegible]

J. A. Lamper of Lynn Will Compete in Glidden Tour

J. A. Lamper of Lynn has recently sprung into prominence as an amateur driver of ability, and one who is capable of driving his machine at its height of power and speed. Although he has been a yearly visitor to the South, and has witnessed almost all the Southern contests, he has heretofore refrained from entering any speed contests, owing to the fact that while enjoying speed in touring, he never had any ambition to pose as a racing man.

During the racing at Palm Beach, Fla., Mr. Lamper was induced to enter his twenty four horsepower Peerless stock car for the stock events and the championship races, and carried off the majority of events in which he competed, as well as establishing a five mile world's record for stock cars in 5m. 8s. The Peerless car used was in exactly the same condition in these events as it is when Mr. Lamper uses the same in road touring, it having undergone no change whatever.

Mr. Lamper will be a competitor in the Glidden tour and will unquestionably be one of the participants in the pleasure tour from New York to the White Mountains, to be held under the joint auspices of the Motor Club of New York and the Bay State Automobile Association of this city.

News and Notes of the Local Auto Mart

Mr. Russell Drisko, who for several months has been associated with Frederick E. One of the features of the Atlantic City meet was the using of kerosene in place of gasoline in one of the 10-h. p. Maxwells. This was the first time kerosene had been used in this respect by the Maxwell, and the fact that the car went a mile in 56 seconds speaks for itself.

Among the female automobile contingent of Boston who can handle the steering wheel and throttle with any of them, is Mrs. Edward L. Though long an ardent horsewoman Mrs. Oppenheimer readily took to the automobile and such is her confidence [illegible] that she has already entered [illegible] in the two-cylinder class for the Worcester Hill climb, and will also participate in the Glidden tour. She will drive her Reo herself in [illegible]

UNIQUE FEATURES OF COLUMBIA CARS' CARBURETEUR.

The carbureteur used on this year's Columbia cars presents some new features, which, Manager J. H. MacAlman claims, are of great practical value. The primary supply is received through a round port opening directly between the cylinders, the temperature of the air admitted being equalized, whatever the outside temperature. The auxiliary air supply is taken in at the bottom of the carbureteur, through a series of small ports opened and closed by the barrel having [illegible] ports which move up and down automatically according as the engine demands more or less gas. This barrel is made of just the size and weight to effect the proper resistance to the suction of the engine, and rises slowly and drops back easily of its own weight against the air cushion [illegible] the bottom of the containing chamber.

The throttle is set horizontally in the mixing chamber at the point where the gas intake pipe leaves the carbureteur. This throttle is not connected [illegible] or, but is actuated by a foot lever in the toe board, the governor speed being determined by a hand lever mounted in the steering wheel. The governor controls [illegible] valve, which is mechanically operated [illegible] the governor ball throws in and out. It is claimed that the use of this carbureteur effects a large saving in fuel consumption; that there is no need for adjustments of any kind and that beyond occasional cleaning it requires little attention.

BIG 6-CYLINDER FORD CAR HAS ARRIVED

The much heralded six-cylinder Ford, the big sister to the four-cylinder runabout of the same make, has reached Boston, and Manager Charlie E. Fay of the local branch of that company is correspondingly happy. The big car in appearance and ability seems to carry out the contention of its makers, and in its many trial spins in this vicinity has, in the hands of [illegible] street, made good. It is attractive, to say the least, and the sound of its explosions is music to the well-trained ear of the master operator.

H. W. WHIPPLE'S NEW CAR.

Ex-President Harlan W. Whipple of the American Automobile Association and the vice-president of the Bay State Automobile Association, who has but recently returned from an extensive tour through Europe, has selected a thirty-five-horse power [illegible] for his own use in this section.

AUTOISTS MAY CARRY THEIR BAIL BONDS WITH THEM.

Members of the Automobile Club of America may now carry their own bail bonds with them. Under the new State law which permits automobilists when arrested for violation of regulations governing the use of motor vehicles to offer as bail a security company bond the club has entered into an arrangement with the National Security Company whereby members of the club will be supplied with special bonds of the company.

Books are to be issued this week, each of which will contain five bonds. Each bond will bear the signature of the person to whom it is issued. When the holder of one of these books is arrested he may sign his name as the principal and then the name of the surety company, thus making himself a duly appointed attorney of the company. Each bond will be good for any sum up to $500, and will be operative for one year from date of issue. A fee of $20 a year will be charged for this service.

The use of these bonds is to be restricted to members of the Automobile Club of America, though it is possible that later on other clubs may be included in the privilege. The holder of a bond, of course, may [illegible] his friends or his chauffeur and it will [illegible] necessary for him to offer cash bail or to leave his machine for security when arrested himself. The bonds will be recognized in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Minnesota, Wisconsin and California.

GREAT DEMAND HERE FOR PACKARD CARS

[illegible] excellence of the Packard cars is perhaps best shown by the fact that during the past week Alvan T. Fuller, the local agent for the same, paid a bonus of $400 to an agent in another city in order to satisfy one of his local customers. Although he has disposed of his consignment of Packard cars some few weeks ago, Mr. Fuller is not losing any flesh, as the demand for Cadillacs of both the four and single-cylinder variety keeps him keyed up to concert pitch.

WINTON COMPANY CHANGES.

Upon his return from Mexico, George Arbuckle was appointed by the Winton Motor Carriage Company, to be Western supervisor, with headquarters at Chicago, to succeed Harry L. Owesney, who has become central supervisor with headquarters at Cleveland.

MAMMOTH WINTON PLANT.

Work has begun on the mammoth addition to the Winton plant at Cleveland and will be pushed rapidly to completion. Having already covered practically all the ground of its property, the company is now compelled to extend its buildings upward, and the [illegible] work will mean the addition of a second st[illegible] to the machine, painting and varnishing bui[illegible]

EFFICIENCY CONTEST FOR AUTOS OF IMPORTANCE TO MOTOR INDUSTRY

The two gallon efficiency contest of the Automobile Club of America, which is to be held May 5, will be of vital importance to the motor industry. It is to be held for the purpose of bringing out some points about motor cars which the average user would like to know and about which [illegible] the conditions [illegible] the faster [illegible] fuel consumption for a given distance.

The rules that have been adopted by the committee are intended to provide for the accurate and prompt conduct of the event. The formula and handicaps provided should bring cars of all sizes and kinds into one class with a degree of fairness which it is hoped will be found reasonable for a first attempt at such classification. While the relation, in point of efficiency, of all varieties of cars is really definite, since it is so largely a question of the laws of mechanics, the necessary [illegible] to determine the [illegible] is yet at hand.

Freak Cars Excluded.

The contest is limited to self propelled pleasure vehicles of individual owners, or of manufacturers taken from stock. Special or so-called freak cars will be excluded, and no alteration of mechanism or any other part will be permitted other than that necessary for proper [illegible] on the roads.

The contest will start at [illegible] May 5 from [illegible] New York [illegible] car, and [illegible] its carbureteur, must be emptied of all gasolene down to the point where its engine stops. A sufficient number of independent [illegible] to examine the cars at this time, and in any case where it appears to the committee that an attempt has been made to avoid compliance with this rule, the car will be excluded from competition.

[illegible] two gallons of gasolene, [illegible] will be at [illegible] to the cars. [illegible]

Four or More Cylinders.

The rating is based on cars having four or more cylinders. Cars having two cylinders will be rated as though they weighed, loaded, 75 per cent. of their [illegible] weight; [illegible] one cylinder will be rated as though they weighed, loaded, 70 per cent. of their actual weight.

The scores made in the contest will be [illegible] to the actual weight of the car with passengers as weighed at the [illegible] by the distance in miles traveled to obtain the score.

The cars making the [illegible] and the second and third highest scores will receive the first, second and third prizes respectively. [illegible] for first, a [illegible] for second, and [illegible] for third [illegible] who will remain in [illegible] from the time the contest begins until the conclusions are reached, and the winners will be announced and the prizes awarded and delivered before [illegible]

GLIDDEN COMMITTEE TO DECIDE ROUTE FOR TOUR.

The future of the Glidden trophy is [illegible]. At present it is held by Percy Pierce of Buffalo. He has won it [illegible] and yet seemingly cares not to attempt to repeat his past successes in [illegible]. Instead of remaining here in [illegible] country to compete in the coming contest for the same, he has gone abroad seeking new fields to conquer.

In the meantime there is much speculation as to just what the powers that be may determine to do. To be sure, there will be a contest for the trophy, but the conditions governing the same will be radically different from those in vogue during the first tour.

Little Official Data.

Then it was difficult, indeed, to tell just what were and what were not conditions. It was a sort of happy-go-lucky, hit or miss combination, and what practical results were obtained were admittedly of little value to the industry, owing to the almost entire absence of official data as to the real performances of the several cars. This fact has been so prominent that the contest committee of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers has considered it more or less, and yet has been unable to devise a satisfactory basis of award. The idea and desire is, of course, to devise a basis whereby machines of all types, sizes and powers shall have equal opportunity of winning the trophy. Where six and single-cylinder machines [illegible] in the same event, as they did a year ago, this will, of course, be a difficult proposition, to say the least. Whatever the results, it cannot be satisfactory to all concerned.

It is stated on excellent authority that the contest committee of the W. A. A. M. rather frowns upon the tour as a whole, and much prefers the holding of a contest where it will be possible to place the several cars in classes of their own. It will then be possible to gain more comprehensive and valuable data than under the conditions existent a year ago.

Committee Not Appointed.

The entire personnel of the touring committee of the A. A. A., which is virtually the Glidden Trophy Commission, has yet to be made known. Then will come the strenuous work of making arrangements for the tour. A meeting of the committee is scheduled for this week, when Chairman Paul Deeming will make known his ideas relative to the route and conditions which shall govern the tour.

There is no question but what the tentative route through the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec, with the return through Maine and the White Mountains will be considerably altered. The length of the daily journeys and the [illegible] road condition over the greater portion of the route would certainly convert the event from a pleasure to a difficult competitive event, which would necessarily result in a further reduction of the interest and value of the tour.

May Favor Western Route.

It is possible that Chairman Deeming will be in favor of a Western route, one starting say from Buffalo and running through Canada from Niagara Falls to Montreal, and return via the Lake Champlain Valley and Saratoga to New York. In order, however, to satisfy the motorists of Boston and New York, it is possible that separate tours shall start simultaneously in those cities converging at some central point, and continue to Montreal as a trophy contest.

The meeting will determine this question in full, and then it is hoped the committee will take some definite and active measures to secure a good, large list of entrants.

AUTO HILL CLIMBERS WILL NEXT TRY GIANT DESPAIR.

The next big event in automobile sport will be the "Centennial Wilkes-Barre Hill Climb" up the Wilkes-Barre mountain, known as "Giant Despair." Several cars have climbed the mountain, including runabouts, and it will be a question of speed and power as to who will win in the various classes.

The Centennial Jubilee Committee have had made some very handsome prizes commemorating the jubilee and climb, which will be on exhibition in New York in a few days.

The entries for the climb will close with W. J. Morgan, 116 Nassau street, N. Y., on May 3. The various clases will include machines listing from $1,000 to $8,000, and it is quite possible that two motorcycle events will also be included in the day's sport, which will occur Thursday morning, May 10. Mr. Morgan arrived from Florida yesterday to take charge of the final preparations for the climb. Many automobilists who have entered and who will enter for the climb will tour to Wilkes-Barre, as the trip is a most interesting and delightful one.

The Wilkes-Barre event will have thousands of spectators, as the Pennsylvania city will have the biggest three days' celebration in its history and the freedom of the city will be extended to all visitors to the centennial. This climb will possibly be the most important of the year and will give all aspirants for climbing honors a fine opportunity to demonstrate the power and speed of their cars.

BAY STATE CLUB TO HAVE NEW QUARTERS

The special committee on intown clubhouse of the Bay State Automobile Club has its eyes upon an admirable site for such purpose. It will make its report to the board of directors at its next meeting, and then it is believed it will be given instructions to go ahead.

Chairman J. H. MacAlman, E. A. Gilmore and Secretary Fortescue have been most persistent in their efforts to locate a satisfactory clubhouse, and have at last found one in the heart of the city.

The exact location of the house, for it is a whole house, will be made public within a few days, as will also news as to just what the club will do in this respect. The idea is to maintain headquarters in this city, and to secure a chef who will make a specialty of lunches. The new quarters being within easy reach of the motor trade, it will become most popular immediately. The noon-day meetings of members so popular in the early days of the club will unquestionably be renewed.

STAR MOTORISTS MAY MEET AT READVILLE.

Efforts are now being made to bring about a meeting at Readville, May 30, between Walter Christie, the star of the Atlantic City races, and W. H. Hilliard, the man who has the distinction of having made the ascent of Mt. Washington in record time. Hilliard is willing to place his Napier car in a match race against the front drive Christie. Mr. Christie is likewise willing, providing that he can arrange his business affairs to permit of his coming to Boston to get in shape for the event and learn the track.

Racing is a pastime with the New Yorker, but he is one of the men who refuses to permit his pleasure to interfere with his business. It had been hoped that a match race could have been made between the Napier and the Darracq, which won the Vanderbilt. The owner of the latter car, Mr. S. B. Stevens of Rome, N. Y., would not, however, match the car for a track race, as it has no differential. He says it would be too dangerous to drive this car on a track, although he would come East for a straightaway mark.

The bank that only has enough cash for its daily requirements falls down in an emergency.

The car with only enough power for smooth city streets falls down completely when it strikes a hill, sandy or muddy roads.

The Ford 6 cylinder car has reserve power without great weight.

Two of its cylinders alone will give power enough to run along the smooth streets of a city, yet in the country no sand, no hill, no mud, can put the whole six out of business. It is reserve power that counts.

Alcantarina, Trial 2:15¼.

STANDARD bred and registered, Vol. XVI; bred by Chas. Backman, Stony Ford, N. Y.; Alcantarina was sired by the great Alcantara, 223, the sire of 162 in the list and the sire of the dams of 83, including Moth Miller, 2:07; Surfeet, 2:06½; Oscar L. 2:08¼; Raven, 2:10; Sir Alcantara, 2:05¾, etc., including the dams of Don Derby, 2:04½; Heir at Law, 2:05¾; Lady Sealskin, 2:06½; Charlie Hayt, 2:06¾, and two others better than 2:10; out of the great brood mare, Alma Mater, the dam of eight in the list, including Alcyone, the sire of 100 in 2:30 or better, by Mambrino Patchen, the sire of 25, and the dams of 158; Alcantarina's dam was Inheritance by Leland 1800, the sire of 9, in the list including Geneva 2:11½; Inheritance was out of Integrity dam of Instant, 2:14½, a producer, and four others better than 2:30 by Belmont, 4th dam by Bertrand.

Alcantarina in her two-year-old form won first prize at the Orange Co., New York, Horse Show, and second prize at the National Horse Show. Alcantarina is one of the most valuable and best bred daughters of Alcantara, having the combination of Wilkes-Mambrino-Patchen through Alma Mater, Hambletonian and Belmont, backing two of the great speed producers. She is a show winner; has great speed, handsome, stylish and sound, and was driven last fall by Dave Clippenger a full mile in 2:15¼, on the trot. She wears only a pair of quarter boots and harness, is a race mare sure and people need not go to Kentucky looking for prospects. I will guarantee her to be just as written and anyone purchasing her I will give the official certificate of the American Trotting Register, certifying that she has been duly registered and is Alcantarina; $250 will buy her; come and look at her and I will show you how she can step and convince you that she will do to race this summer. I believe her to be the best prospect in sight for the show classes. Remember, she must be Alcantarina, and, as I have said, I will guarantee her. Come and look this mare over and ride behind her; can be seen at 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown, Mass.

ANDREW MACK, $85.

BEAUTIFUL BLACK HORSE, Andrew Mack, 7 years old, weighs 1,000 lbs., a perfect model of beauty. Has clean, strong feet and limbs, long flowing mane and tail, as sound as a dollar, very clever and absolutely fearless. He is a natural roadster of 11 miles per hour, and can step mile to light wagon in 2:16; has no official record. He has as many matinee races to his credit as any horse in New England. The only fault with him is the fact that he does not like the elevated cars, but will soon get used to them. Autos, electric cars or any other objects do not bother him in the least. Here is a fine piece of horseflesh for practically nothing for some party who lives outside of Boston or away from the elevated cars. Come and see him. Will be pleased to answer any inquiry either by letter or by "phoning." Phone 21935 Tremont. 120 Dover st. Stable right at foot of stairs of Dover st. elevated station.

BIG BALLOON FLIES 60 MILES IN 3 HOURS' TIME.

De La Vaulx's Aerial Trip from Pittsfield Is Made Without Accident—30,000 People Cheer His Start

Pittsfield, April 28.—After a sixty-mile trip through the air in the great balloon, Centaure, Count Henri de la Vaulx, the famous French aeronaut, landed at Woodville, Ct., to-night at 6:43 o'clock. With him were Homer W. Hedge, president of the Aero Club of America, which has bought the balloon, and Charles Jerome Edwards, a Brooklyn insurance man.

The start was made from Aeronautical Park at 2:36 before a crowd of almost 3,000 persons. Owing to delay in some of the equipment it was after 1 o'clock when the work of inflation was begun. When released the balloon shot up about 1,200 feet, and then drifted toward the southeast.

The air was very light, but it was hoped that favorable winds would be encountered as a higher altitude was reached. The aeronaut was disappointed, however, and at the height of about 1,200 feet the great yellow bag began to drift down the Housatonic Valley at even less speed than on the last trip, which ended at Colebrook, Conn.

Before the start Count de la Vaulx announced that he would sail for Havre on La Provence on May 3. He expects to return to New York for a month next year to instruct members of the Aero Club in long distance ballooning. When the club has reached a position where it will arrange races the count will be glad, he says, to come over to race. He believes that races of 1,000 miles or more will eventually be held in this country, as he anticipates that the Americans will take to ballooning as they have to automobiling.

TRIES TO STOP DOG FIGHT—LOST FINGERS

As the result of trying to stop two fighting bulldogs Edward Flagg, thirty years old, of No. 234 Eliot street, Newton Upper Falls, had two fingers bitten off and several of the small bones of his right hand fractured yesterday by the jaws of one of the dogs. One of the dogs belonged to Alfred Wier of No. 95 High street. Only with the assistance of Patrolman Dugan were the animals finally separated.

Winsome Girl Rules Lions by Her Quickness, Firmness, Gentleness

MISS HELIOT MAKES THEM DO HER WILL

Miss Claire Heliot, a pretty, soft-voiced young woman of fresh, glowing complexion, medium height and graceful figure, spends hours every day of her life among lions, some just imported from the jungles of Africa. She makes the royal animals her friends more for the love of it rather than the splendid salary which she draws from the Hippodrome company.

"A lion at any time is apt to dig at you with its paw, just like a cat playing with a mouse—then look out!" she says, and Miss Heliot shows her fair, plump hands and arms upon which are any number of scars, all of which were once bleeding rents made in her flesh by her rude and terrible playfellows, the lions.

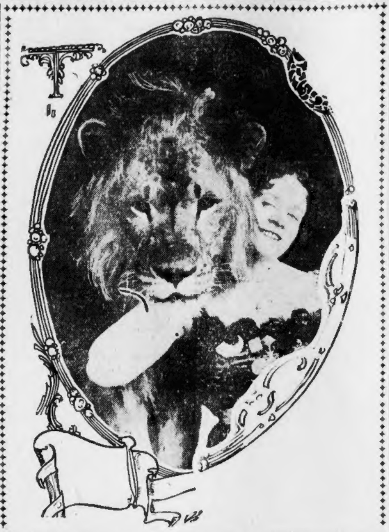
Into a big cage where twelve great lions are rolling, snarling, stretching, without a protector in the world, save her own superb courage, this winsome French girl will trip when the big Hippodrome company presents "A Yankee Circus on Mars" in the Boston Theatre to-morrow evening.

Called the Woman Without Fear.

She is called "the woman without fear" and her mastery of the lions, with four huge Danish wolf hounds as an escort, proves her right to the title. At the close of the first act of "A Yankee Circus on Mars," Miss Heliot enters the lions' cage, bareheaded and with a light woolen wrapper thrown over her street dress. Lightly cracking her whip she bows to her audience and then to her friends, the lions.

"My lions are not afraid of me," she explains. "I have the same affection for them and discipline over them that one would have with a lot of children. They have their own individual dispositions. No two of them are alike. When they are bad I scold them, but never punish. As a rule they are willing and anxious to do whatever I want, but I have to be firm and quick, that's all."

Every one of the twelve great lions is a splendid specimen of its kind. They are cared by Miss Heliot herself, and are kept in as good form as Dr. Barlow's elephants, the pride of the Hippodrome circus.



MISS CLAIRE HELIOT AND ONE OF HER PETS.

Miss Heliot's wonderful performance with her trained lions is one of twenty equally remarkable features in the wonderful show. "A Yankee Circus on Mars" comes here right from New York, where for months it has held the boards and delighted more thousands than any like attraction this country has ever heard of.

ELM TREE PLANTED ON COMMON BY THE MAYOR.

In accordance with the proclamation of Governor Guild, advising the planting of trees on Arbor Day, Mayor Fitzgerald yesterday planted an English Elm on the Common at the head of the State House walk. He read the Governor's proclamation before throwing in the earth about the roots of the tree with a spade made especially for the occasion.

Governor Guild in his proclamation urged the planting of trees as an encouragement to the multiplication of birds, which, he said, were the most effective crusaders against the brown-tail and gypsy moths.

THOUSANDS OF UNION MEN PLAN DEMANDS ON MAY DAY

ARBITRATION MAY BLOCK ALL STRIKES

On the first day of May, next Tuesday, demands will be made on employers by many labor unions in the city, involving thousands of union workmen.

Although May 1 has come to be known as "Strike Day," few strikes are anticipated this year, as many of the demands have been granted in advance, and there is an increasing tendency on the part of both capital and labor to submit all differences to arbitration.

The most important unions which will present demands are the freight handlers, carpenters and cigarmakers. The bricklayers and building laborers will not act until June 1.

A ten per cent. increase in wages has been requested by the freight handlers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine Railroads. Then men are now paid $1.90 a day, and want $2. The freight handlers on all three roads are thoroughly organized, having a membership of 2,000. It is expected that the Boston & Maine will grant the demands this week, and that the other two railroads will fall in line. In the event of a strike, the Longshoremen's District Council and District Assembly No. 30, K. of L., have voted not to handle any freight on these roads.

Cigarmakers' Demand.

Cigarmakers' Union No. 97, with a membership of over 2,000, has requested employers for an increase of ten cents per thousand cigars. It has asked the International Cigarmakers' Union for permission to strike, if necessary. According to international law there can be strikes in but four cities throughout the country at one time. The local unions all over the United States are now voting on the matter of giving the Boston union permission to strike.

A renew of the present agreement is what is asked by the various unions comprising the Carpenters' District Council. This calls for a minimum rate of wages of forty-one cents an hour and Saturday half-holiday the year round. There are over 4,000 union carpenters involved.

Painters' Union No. 11 wants to fix the minimum rate of wages for house painters at $3 a day, an advance from $2.80, the rate before the strike two years ago. Several firms have voluntarily granted the increase. The Painters' District Council has voted to strike all firms on May 1 that do not give $3.

Wood Carvers on Strike.

Eighty wood carvers are now on strike against seven shops for an increase of $2 all round. Twenty shops have signed.

Slate and Soapstone Workers' Union No. 1 has requested a slight raise in the minimum rate of wages, to go into effect May 1. Twenty men have already struck against four shops in this city.

The members of Iron Moulders' Union have already struck for an increase of from $2.75 to $3 a day.

A 50-cent advance for all members of the Roofers' Protective Union has been placed before the employers for consideration. The daily wage at present is: Helpers, $2.25; gravel roofers, $2.50; all-round roofers, $3.

The scale committee of the Laundry Workers' Union has recommended that $6 a week be established as a minimum wage for which any member of the union could work.

At present the gilders work ten hours a day. The desire is for nine.

Tile Layers Want Raise.

The Tile Layers' Union is looking for $4.60 a day, except Saturday, when $2.50 will be the rate for working from 8 o'clock until noon. The members now receive $4.25 a day.

The Tile Layers Helpers' Union is to demand a raise of from $2.25 to $2.60 a day, and $1.50 for the Saturday half-holiday.

The agreement of Plumbers' Union No. 12, for the Chelsea boss plumbers, provides for a minimum wage of $3.50, instead of $3, for an eight-hour day. Thirty men are involved.

Iron, Furring and Metallic Lathers' Assembly, K. of L., asks that forty-five cents be the minimum wage rate per hour, an increase of two-and-one-half cents.

Asbestos Workers' Union has asked for an advance in wages to go into effect May 1.

On June 1, Bricklayers' Union No. 3 will ask for one cent a minute and Saturday half-holiday throughout the year. The men are now receiving fifty-five cents an hour.

Plasterers' Union No. 10 has notified the employers that in the Spring of 1908 they will expect $5 flat for eight hours, with a Saturday half-holiday the year round. The men are now receiving $4.60, with the Saturday half-holiday throughout the year, with Saturday half-holiday for six months. The union has a membership of 1,600. A strike was declared in 1903 for an increase of from fifty to fifty-five cents, which lasted fourteen weeks.

The delegates to the Building Laborers' District Council have recommended that the six affiliated unions ask for an increase of wages from $2.40 to $2.75, beginning June 1.

A FEAST OF DRUG STORE BARGAINS

JAYNES & CO.

Trade Mark

BLACKLISTED BY THE DRUG TRUST

Twenty years ago we began to fight the Drug Trust.

In all these years we have constantly and consistently sold all drug store goods at the lowest possible prices.

Every year we have been obliged to fight that element of the drug trade which is bound to raise prices to the consumer.

The effort of this Drug Trust to make the medicine-buying public pay high or regular retail prices for their goods is an insult and an imposition to the intelligent people of America.

The Drug Trust says that we must not sell lower than their prices. Nevertheless we shall continue to sell goods at the lowest prices, and merely wish to give the public an idea of what the monopoly wishes to do.

Because of our determined efforts to thus protect your pocketbooks, because under no circumstances will we take a stand that will compel us to charge you extortionate prices for goods, a combine formed by other dealers, for the sole purpose of raising prices, has endeavored to persuade wholesale dealers and manufacturers to blacklist us: in other words, not to sell us any goods.

We want your co-operation. It is essential to our business. It is essential to our interests. All far-seeing purchasers of drug store goods must realize that the time has come when this monopoly must be fought to a finish, and we propose to stand for the people's rights, no matter how great the expense, in establishing fair prices, within the reach of all, for this class of goods. Our enormous volume of business enables us to sell all Drug Store Goods at the lowest prices, and we solicit the continued patronage of the public to assist us in fighting high prices.

Let's Have a Little Talk

What about?

Why, about the weather!

When winter dies she leaves the usual number of legacies—Weakness, Nervousness, Bad Blood and all the other Spring Disorders.

You know all about them—how they interfere with your work and pleasure—how the headache aggravates you—how the Stomach rebels at the sight of food—how you worry about trifles.

What's the use?

Why not get rid of your ills?

There's a remedy—and a good one—so good that you don't have to have faith in it.

The medicine cures you—not the faith. But we have the faith—so much of it that we guarantee a cure or money back.

It's Jaynes' Blood and Nerve Tonic.

It costs you 60c. if it cures you.

Guaranteed to cure or money refunded.
